AIR LINER TO TAKE OFF WEDNESDAY ON VOYAGE TO U. S.

Graf Zeppelin Will Carry 20 Passengers and Crew of 40 From Germany Rate Mark Period.

MANY MORE WANT TO GO ON DIRIGIBLE

Gifts of Food and Drink for Use on Maiden Trip Deluge Commander — 200-Lb. Piano Offered.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 6.—The Graf Zeppelin, the world's first transocean passenger and mail airliner, is now scheduled to start for America next Wednesday. On its first trans-Atlantic air voyage there will be 60 souls aboard, including the crew.

There promises to be 20 passengers—19 men and one woman. They are:

Americans: C. E. Rosendahl, Lieutenant-Commander U. S. N.; Frederick Gilfallen, Robert Reinz, manufacturer, of Weehawken; Karl H. Von Wiegand.

English: Lady Grace Drummond Hay, widow of a British diplomat, society woman and writer.

Germans: Count Bradenstein Zeppelin, Herr Grezynski, Prussian Minister of the Interior; Herr Brandenburg, chief of the German Air Ministry; Herr Kaas, Reichstag deputy; Rolf Brandt, journalist; Walter Kleffel, journalist; Robert Hartman, cameraman; Herr Von Hacka, director of an insurance company; Prof. Ludwig Dettmann, of the Berlin Academy of Art, a painter; Herr Optiz, of the Zeiss Optical Works; Herr Berk, of the Telefunken Wireless Co., and a German meteorologist.

Austrians: Theodore Mateiko, noted artist.

Swiss. Herr Maym, photographer.

Sold Out for Maiden Voyage.

One or possibly two out of many more applicants still may be added to the list. Graf Zeppelin, majestic silver ship of the air," makes its maiden trip over the Atlantic "sold out." All the cabins are full.

The airship also will take between 12,000 and 15,000 post cards and letters with the world's first trans-Atlantic airmail stamps, which sold at 50 cents and $1 each. They were specially issued by the German Ministry of Posts. At the last moment there was a deluge of applications for air passage to America, the rush following the success of the airship on its first flight to England and the enthusiasm created everywhere by that trip. The applications came by telephone, telegraph and mail, as well as in person. Women, particularly, want to share with Lady Drummond Hay the distinction of being the first to cross the ocean to America from Europe by air.

Many More Want to Go.

As Dr. Eckener already had a list of "alternates," he has been compelled to tell all the late comers that the ship is "sold out." Some offered to do without berths or cabins, or to bring sleeping bags, or to sleep with the crew or officers and carry enough sandwiches to sustain them until they reached Lakehurst.

Among those who were too late with their applications was Mrs. Mildred Champagne Moore of Boston, to whom Dr. Eckener had telegraph that he could not possibly make room for her.

"I am sorry to have to turn down so many," said Dr. Eckener. "Put in an airship, just as in ships on the sea, the first to come are the first considered."

The flight to England and the return through rough weather caused great interest. Europe seems only awakening to the fact that Germany is again in the vanguard in air traffic development.

Rush of Applicants.

Dr. Eckener could hardly talk to the correspondent because of constantly having to take down the telephone receiver. The Ministry of the Interior at Berlin called up, and immediately afterward there was a call from the Minister of Transportation. Reichstag Deputies, newspapers, friends telegraphed and telephoned or came in. The telegrams included one from former Crown Prince Wilhelm, who sent his congratulations and good wishes for the American flight.

There are many more or less amusing letters. One is from a New Yorker who wants a dog sent by the Graf Zeppelin, requesting that his "actions and psychology be closely observed and studied en

Messages to the German airship may be filed at any of the 25,000 offices of the Western Union. The "Graf Zeppelin" will also accept regular paid traffic to this country and will send press matter to Berlin, via United States coastal stations.

HEAD OF MARSHALL FIELD FORESEES HOOVER'S ELECTION

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—James P. Simpson of Chicago, president of Marshall Field & Co., sailing on the Carinthia today for a business trip in England and France, said the corn belt would "go 100 per cent for Mr. Hoover." The merchant added he had no doubt of the Republican candidate's election.

Simpson expressed the view that the result of the election, be the choice Hoover or Smith, would have no effect upon the country's prosperity, since no economic issues were involved that would disturb the present busines equilibrium.

READS HIS DEATH SENTENCE

Deaf Canadian Convicted of Killing Farmer During Quarrel.

By the Associated Press.

MELVILLE, Sask., Oct. 6.—Because he is deaf, Michael Haack, Canadian farmer, who was convicted last night of murder, read the sentence of Justice MacLean condemning him to be hanged Jan. 9. Throughout his trial, four court reporters working in 15 minute relays, typed the evidence and gave it to Haack to read. In this way he was able to follow the testimony closely. When sentence was pronounced, it was copied in longhand for the defendant to read.

Haack, who is 38 years old, was accused of killing George Edy, of Duff, Sask., in a quarrel on Edy's farm last May.

WHY STREET CAR COMPANY OPPOSES INCREASING PAY

Power Superintendent Bryan Says Present Wage of Electricians is "More Than Adequate."

EMPLOYERS PROVIDE INSURANCE FOR THEM

Arbitration Hearing to Take Up Demands of Carmen and Shopmen Wednesday.

Reasons of the Public Service Co. for opposing the demands for a large pay increase of its electrical workers were explained to the State Public Service Commission yesterday in the wage arbitration hearing at City Hall, by Walter E. Bryan, power superintendent for the company.

He said that 141 men were sufficient for this work at present, with an annual payroll of $238,920, but that the aggregate of increases sought for various classifications was 60 per cent, which would raise the payroll to $383,040, and that because of changes in working hours would compel the company to increase this force to 158.

The extent of the electrical workers' demands was not known to the company, officers said, until they were presented before the commission on Friday. The company declines to deal with the electrical union as such, but nearly all of these employes belong to this union, whose representative is their spokesman. After cross examination of Bryan is completed on Wednesday by O. E. Jennings, the representative of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the hearing will revert to the matter of the wage increase sought by the union of the 4600 carmen and shopmen.

Recess Until Wednesday.

Adjournment was taken until Wednesday, in the language of Chairman Ing of the commission, "for good and sufficient reasons." He was smiling. He said nothing about the world series ball games here in the intervening time, but added a facetious remark about important business the commission had in Jefferson City. Then the lawyers and others participating began discussing their comparative luck in getting tickets for the series.

It is expected that the street car company will complete its case by the end of this week.

Bryan produced an exhibit which showed that the increase asked by the electrical workers varied from 10 per cent for eight line foremen to 171 per cent for trouble men, whose number would be increased from 28 to 45 if the demands were granted. Others affected are 40 switchboard operators, 11 powerhouse electricians and 54 linemen.

Qualifying as an expert, Bryan said he had been with the company since 1907, starting for 26 cents an hour after he had been graduated from Washington University as an electrical engineer. He related that the system had power generating plants at Thirty-ninth street and Park avenue and at Broadway and Salisbury street, and had 25 substations, of which seven, developed within the last few years, were automatic.

Company Insures Workers.

The company carried its own workmen's compensation insurance and paid the men in accordance with terms of the compensation law when they are hurt. Bryan related in discussing the hazard of the electrical workers. Jennings had testified that 110 volts can give a fatal shock if "received properly," but Bryan declared that 600 volts, which is carried in trolley wires, was "not enough to kill." He added: "It will give you a severe jolt; I've had it several times."

Nearly all trolley poles in the city are of iron, he said, and are reached from platform trucks which are insulated by their rubber tires. Therefore, he asserted, with ordinary precautions, there was no danger to men handling live trolley wires. In dealing with power circuits of higher voltage, he added, the current was shut off under strict rules and, in addition, the wires were short-circuited.

Pay More Than Adequate.

"Are the present wages fair to these men?" Lloyd H. Landau, company attorney, asked. W. W. Henderson, lawyer for the workers, objected on the ground that this was the question before the commission for decision. Landau recalled that Jennings had testified that the wages were unfair. Withdrawing the question, Landau qualified Bryan as an expert on this phase, and inquired: "Under the conditions under which these men work, are they adequately paid for

F. D. ROOSEVELT GAMELY RESPONDS TO PARTY'S CALL

His Entry Into New York Governorship Fight May Retard His Recovery From Paralysis.

SAID 'YES' WHEN SMITH URGED HIM

Instant Support Given Him by Two G. O. P. Newspapers, a Tribute to His Reputation.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Franklin D. Roosevelt bestowed on Gov. Smith the nickname, "The happy warrior." It is a title he can bear as well himself.

When he was stricken with infantile paralysis seven years ago, and robbed of the use of both his legs, it was said that there was the end of young Roosevelt's promising political career. But he showed how much of a warrior he really is. For seven long years he has battled to regain the use of his legs. It was a great fight, and this year he was on the brink of victory. He had discarded his crutches for two strong sticks. The doctors told him that two more winters bathing in the South might bring him a complete cure.

Then came the call to another battle. Last Tuesday he was nominated for the governorship of New York State by the Democratic State convention. If he accepted, and if he were elected, it meant he would have to spend his winters in the North, and victory in fight with paralysis might be postponed for years.

The call to this other battle came to him through Gov. Smith, his old friend and fellow-warrior, whose policies and personality he so much admired. Gov. Smith wanted him to run. So it came about that, after long deliberation, he decided that this other battle for the liberal Democracy in New York State was the more important of the two.

Tomorrow afternoon he will be receiving the plaudits of his fellow townsfolk at Hyde Park, N. Y., on his candidacy for the Governorship. Monday night or Tuesday he will begin his campaign.

A Battler From the Start.

The whole story of the career in politics of Franklin D. Roosevelt is a stirring one. From the very start he has been a battler.

He was born in 1882, two years after his fifth cousin, Theodore Roosevelt, graduated from Harvard College. He himself went to Groton School and thence to Harvard, and finished his schooling with a course in law at Columbia University.

At Harvard he was distinguished as a crack athlete. Tennis and swimming were his favorite sports, and he excelled at both of them. But he was even more noted for his work as managing editor of the college paper, the Crimson.

As its managing editor, he showed some of the fight he harbors by lambasting the university corporation for its failure to provide fire escapes on the dormitories, and fire escapes were installed.

After he was graduated from Columbia law school, Roosevelt served an apprenticeship with the old law firm of Carter, Ledyard & Milburn. Three years later he was a member of the firm of Marvin, Hooker & Roosevelt.

Entered Politics in 1910.

It was in 1910 that he first marched militantly into politics. Running as a Democrat in the heavily Republican Dutchess County, he was sent to the State Senate in a sweeping victory.

It has been a peculiar thing about his battles that he always seems to be fighting for somebody else, for causes which can yield him no personal gain.

He leaped into nation-wide prominence as a young State Senator from New York when he took up arms in favor of the presidential nomination of Woodrow Wilson in 1912. It was a fight. Tammany Hall did not want Wilson. If the Tammany powers had had their way, the New York delegates would have gone to the convention instructed against Wilson. And standing up against it, the most powerful Democratic organization in the State found a young man not yet in his thirties—a young man tall and broad of shoulder who laughed and won.

He was Tammany's uncompromising foe. While he was in the State Senate he threw down the gauntlet to the forces of the late Charles F. Murphy by sponsoring

Welcome Parade for Pennant-Winning Cardinals

—By a Post-Dispatch Staff Photographer.

AUTOMOBILE carrying Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Breadon, Branch Rickey and Mayor Miller leading the home-coming procession down Washington Avenue at Sixth Street.

FANS WAIT ALL NIGHT TO SEE SERIES GAME

Ten Women and Two Babies in Line at Sportsman's Park.

The bleacherites, waiting for a chance to buy their places in the sun for today's game, the first of three world series contests to be played in St. Louis, numbered 160 men and boys at 9:30 o'clock last night. In a double line, the ranks extended from the bleacher gate on Sullivan avenue to Spring avenue, a half block west.

The line entertained with "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," and other more or less tuneful offerings, while a much larger crowd of spectators milled about on the sidewalks watching the fun and ignoring the orders of policemen to "Keep moving."

Jack Todd, 15 years old, of 4543A Lucky street, who camped at the head of the line on a cracker box, was willing to sell his seat and the right to buy two tickets for $5. He had been waiting there since 9 a. m. Saturday, he explained, and was a bit tired.

Would Sell Place for $5.

J. B. Payne of Bakersfield, Cal., who occupied second place, also was willing to sell out for $5, but had no box to offer. He was camped on a khaki shoulder bag, with which he had hitch-hiked from his home town. No. 3 man, too timid to disclose his name, played soft melodies with a bit of glazed paper and a pocket comb.

Up and down the line, passers-by were hailed with cries of "box seats, 15 cents," or "two-bits," or a dollar, or $5, depending on how near the head of the line were the marketable seats. Many decks of cards were being used to while away the time, men and boys who happened to be together in the line joining in games of poker and rummy and pinochle and, of all things, auction bridge.

10 Women in Line.

Around the corner, on Grand boulevard, a quieter and more dignified line of about 70 men and 10 women waited on boxes and camp-stools for the pavilion gate to open at 8:30 a. m., when tickets would be sold for $3 each.

Charles Douthit, 19, of 2900A Michigan avenue, who disclaimed relation to the Cardinals' centerfielder of the same name, had held first place since 10 a. m. Midway in the line, Mrs. Ruby Leist of 2815 North Grand boulevard, with her 2-month-old son in her arms, said, "Glen is going to see his first world series game." Mr. and Mrs. Albert Ganneman, 1383 Hodiamont avenue, sitting on a box, jiggled a baby carriage in which their 11-month-old child was resting.

9000 LONG DISTANCE CALLS AS RESULT OF WORLD SERIES

2000 Above Normal and Total Does Not Include Incoming Conversations.

More than 9000 long-distance telephone calls, 2000 above normal, were handled out of St. Louis yesterday as the result of last-minute arrangements for world series seats and preparations for out-of-town visitors coming to St. Louis. Incoming calls which ran into the thousands were not tabulated.

More than 35 additional operators were employed to handle the telephone traffic. Friday the outgoing calls numbered 1600 above normal. The long-distance traffic yesterday has been exceeded only on the day of the tornado a year ago.

St. Louis Welcomes Back Cardinal Team; Cheering Crowd Voices Confidence

Parade Covers 45 Blocks, All Lined With Enthusiastic Rooters Urging Players on to Victory

By William F. Allen.

As triumphantly as though they came lugging two victories instead of limping with two defeats, the Cardinals were welcomed home yesterday afternoon.

Dozens of thousands lined the 45 blocks through which they were paraded in automobiles after their arrival at Union Station at 3:50 p. m. From the multitude there came little of reproach and a continuous fire of verbal encouragement. Of course, the bleacherite and his razzberry rasped out occasionally, but the temper of the majority distinctly was confidence that the team which thrust back threat after threat in the torrid National League stretch would find itself in the familiar shadows of Sportsman's Park.

The crowd was notable for the large percentage of women and children. It was like a season of ladies' days and Knotholers' afternoons rolled into one mob. To most of St. Louis, the Cardinals are only figures on a baseball field. Yesterday they became men with noses and eyes and mouths. The police were helpless to keep the crowd back. The spectators jammed into the middle of the streets so closely that they could reach out and touch the players. And they did. They repeatedly nearly pulled the coat off Alexander. They tried to pat the other players.

Crowd as Large as in 1926.

The crowd tried its best to hearten the players. It was a large crowd. Most observers would have said that it was smaller than the 1926 crowd which welcomed the first winning of a pennant by a St. Louis ball team in 38 years. To this reporter it appeared that the crowd was as large as the 1926 crowd. Most of the people, in that year, tried to cram on the levee where the players left the train. The result was a great jam. Yesterday's crowd was scattered along a route three times longer than the 1926 crowd and hence did not appear so large.

When the Cardinals' special from New York reached the yards outside Union Station, Tommy Thevenow and "Chick" Hafey leaped off and legged across the yards, making a half-mile run to a taxicab rather than undergo the ordeal of the parade.

The other players docilely permitted themselves to be led to the automobiles lined up in Twentieth street. The tops of all the cars were down. Each bore a pennon on which, clearly legible, were the names of the ball playing passengers. The married men were accompanied by their wives.

Women Dress in Red.

Bombs were set off, the procession moved into a lane of people and thereafter the lane never was broken. The crowd was armed with all sorts of noise-makers. Every woman who had anything red in her wardrobe had it on—red dresses, red ribbons, red hats—some in specially made red costumes.

Perhaps never in any parade in St. Louis except that for Lindbergh and the Cardinals in 1926 was there such obvious eagerness to see. It was unmistakable in the eyes of the thousands. Many carried published lists of the order of the cars and the names of the players, prepared to spot their favorite. Some of the women made their favorites known by pictures sewed across the front of their dresses.

Crowd Cheers for Alex.

The crowd moves north from Union Station along Twentieth street to Washington avenue. Bombs overhead continue to herald its approach. Alexander and Wilson, the losing battery Friday, are in the first players' car. Such a reception as Alexander is given. He is called all his endearing names —"Old Pete," "Alex," "the Master."

Whether it is sympathy or unquenchable confidence, it appears that Alexander is the most popular player in the procession. He is in a great mood. He pats the heads of children. He shakes all the hands that are offered. He is patient when someone in the crowd —and hundreds did—tries to maul him. His face beams. He nods and smiles right and left. And whenever the chance offered he hauls out a large picture of Gov. Smith and waves it aloft. That always brings more cheers.

In the next car is Maranville —he of the basket catch, the good spirits of the team; the irrepressible, unconquerable "Rabbit." His seatmate is "Pepper" Martin, who may be called upon for the pinch hit that may decide the game that may give the team—.

Sherdel, who pitches well enough to win most of his games, but who seems dogged by a fate that always pits him against the best that the enemy has, is next. He is missing Hafey, who was assigned to ride with him.

Throng Chokes the Street.

The procession is turning into Washington avenue and as far as one in the line can look there are people. East of Twelfth street there is density that, in spots, choked the streets from curb to curb.

Next are Haines and Smith. Haines sits quietly, a dour figure. He is solemn with the responsibility of keeping the team in the race today. On his broad shoulders rest the fortunes of the city and his mates. He does not smile.

But from the crowd comes continuous encouragement. "All right, Jess; you will make them like it." "We're with you, Jess." The crowd expects Haines to turn to the impotency of rubber the bats of the savage Yankees.

Next are Douthit and Haid. Is there a whisper that Douthit might have routed Pipgras in the second inning Friday with a single, instead of hitting into a costly double play? There is not. Haid, relief pitcher, rides with him.

Here is Roettger, the city's own boy, whose brilliant season's start was cut down by a leg fracture. Thevenow was to have ridden with him, but Tommy was crowd-shy.

Mitchell and High, Bottomley and Holm. Bottomley comes in for chiding. Just the grouchy bleach-

HOOVER IN TENNESSEE URGES VALUE OF TARIFF

25,000 From Three States at Elizabethton Cheer Stand on Immigration and Dry Law.

HE PAYS TRIBUTE TO WAR VETERANS

Addresses Them in Soldiers' Home at Johnson City, Then Returns to Washington.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Ringed about by a crowd of about 25,000 people in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains in Eastern Tennessee, Herbert Hoover this afternoon preached his doctrine of protective tariff, restriction of immigration, farm relief through the creation of a Federal farm board, and prohibition through enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. His climax was a eulogy of the people of "Main street."

What appealed to the crowd more than anything else, judging from the applause was his sharp declaration against any increase in immigration. Nearly, if not quite equal, in volume was the cheering for his views on the eighteenth amendment.

Picturesque, indeed, was the setting of the speech. The candidate faced the microphone on a platform built high upon the side of Lynn Mountain. Hundreds of listeners were on the wooded slope behind him, and a large crowd spread out over the level ground in front. In the near foreground were the hills in their autumn colors, and above a blue sky from which the threat of rain had just been removed the conditions were more picturesque than comfortable, the heads of the crowd were in a blazing sun that beat down through the whole of the speech and their feet in a quagmire made by the rain of the night before.

Praised by Ex-Gov. Taylor.

The speech was on the edge of Elizabethton, a sprawling little industrial town, whose chief pride is its two large silk mills. Swarms of people from this section of Tennessee—a Republican stronghold—and from the neighboring States of Virginia and North Carolina had come into the town for its annual celebration of the revolutionary victory of King's Mountain, and to hear the Republican candidate. Hoover was introduced by former Gov. "Alf" Taylor, 80 years old, who in 1886 was defeated by his brother, Bob Taylor, a Democrat, for the governorship in Tennessee's famous "war of the roses." Taylor stirred the crowd to enthusiasm by declaring that Hoover was "sound" on the great issues of the tariff, temperance and immigration. He eulogized him handsomely as "a great engineer, humanitarian organizer and practical statesman and in his peroration declared that the life of the candidate had been one of the most exemplary and most useful in history. As is customary with him, Hoover read his address without any material departures from the prepared text. The crowd was plainly eager to see and hear him. It was a cordial crowd—not the tumultuous kind to which one grows accustomed in tours with candidates in the large centers of population.

Points That Pleased Crowd.

The candidate's speech was interrupted several times by the cry of an ardent partisan near the platform: "Hurrah for Herbert Hoover." Hoover got his first applause when he told of his ancestor, Andrew Hoover, who migrated from Maryland to establish a home in North Carolina. Thereafter there were ripples of applause several times as he set out various points in his policy. Many in the gathering approved his remark that the prosperity of the South had been promoted by the governmental policies of the last seven and a half years. His tariff pronouncement also got a hand. As already noted, however, the enthusiasm rose highest when he declared for immigration restriction and spoke of the "sacred obligation" of the President to secure enforcement of the eighteenth amendment. The applause on those occasions had a militant note.

On his way to Elizabethton, Hoover spoke to a crowd of about

OWEN DECLARES SMITH IS UNFIT FOR PRESIDENCY

Former Democratic Senator From Oklahoma Attacks Candidate as Product of Tammany.

SAYS 'TIGER' WOULD RULE WHITE HOUSE

Defends Hoover in Speech Here, Asserting He Had Embargo Lifted to Feed Germans.

Attacking Gov. Smith as a product and part of the Tammany organization and denouncing the New York Democratic political machine as "a stench in the nostrils of honest men," Robert L. Owen, former Democratic Senator from Oklahoma, declared last night at Moolah Temple that the Democratic candidate was unfit for the office of President.

Before an audience of about 500 persons which only partly filled the auditorium, Owen eulogized Herbert Hoover as a man of achievement, and while affirming his allegiance to Democratic ideals, declared his approval of the policy of Coolidge economy, one of the strong Republican battle cries.

Owen spoke under the auspices of the National Constitutional Democratic Committee, whose chairman, M. D. Lightfoot, claims a membership of 3500 anti-Smith Democrats in St. Louis and more than 80,000 in Missouri.

Disclaims Religious Prejudice.

Speaking without heat, an attitude im impersonality he preserved throughout his speech, Owen declared he opposed Smith only because Smith had departed from tude of impersonality he preserved made an emphatic disclaimer of religious prejudice as motivating his political stand.

"My father was a Catholic," he said. "My secretary for a time was a Catholic. My brother-in-law is a Catholic and so is my attorney. No man in the world has ever heard me say an unkind word of a Roman Catholic because of his faith. Let me say then that I deeply deplore the injection of the religious issue in this campaign."

It was during the early portion of his speech that an elderly woman arose from a seat near the stage, walked to a position in front of t speaker and raised an American flag on which had been pinned photographs of Gov. Smith. In a moment the hall was in confusion which subsided within a few minutes when policemen escorted her from the hall.

"I am opposed to Gov. Smith," the speaker continued after order had been restored, "because he has been trained by an organization 139 years old, one which has developed a high degree of efficiency by hook or by crook in using the government for private profit.

"Summing Up Evidence."

"I am not a witness against Tammany. I am merely a lawyer summing up the evidence. Tammany is in every way opposed to the Jeffersonian principle of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. If you would sell bootlegging privileges, if you would sell gambling privileges in the city of New York, and would turn the money into the coffers of Tammany Hall for political purposes, aye, even for a presidential campaign, then you are not a true Democrat.

"Every position that Gov. Smith has held in his lifetime, he has held by grace of Tammany. He is so under obligation to the machine that I am confident it would rule his actions were he sent to the White House.

"He is loyal and faithful to Tammany. Why shouldn't he be? Tammany has been engineering the presidential nomination for him since 1920. Why shouldn't he feel grateful?"

Winning the Nomination.

Owen made the charge that, in anticipation of the Smith campaign, Tammany had placed its own men, "capable men," at the head of each State Democratic organization and had actually organized its forces through the congressional district committees and down into the precincts, so that Smith would be assured adequate support.

He recalled that on last July 4 Smith was invested with the velvet collar of Tamany and that he said on that occasion that an organization for evil would not live 139 years, as had Tammany.

"That," continued Owen, "he said with greater boldness than veracity. On that same basis he could give a certificate of character to the devil himself, who has been in business even longer than Tammany.

"Gov. Smith does not attempt to vindicate the past record of Tammany, or the present, either. What does he say of the frauds of the Tammany of today, the street cleaning scandal, the Queensborough sewer scandal and the other disgraceful manipulations of his own political machine."

Impeachment of Sulzer.

Owen reviewed the circumstances surrounding the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer of New York in 1913, declaring that Tammany procured his downfall because he was about to expose a great road paving fraud. Working down to later years, he described the administration of Mayor Walker of New York, a Smith supporter and Tammany leader, as wasteful, and asserted municipal expenditures had increased $75,000,000 annually under Walker's rule.

"That," he said, "is one way of doing it. Economy is the better way. Personally, I like the Coolidge economy."

Owen pictured the Smith candidacy as an open effort by Tammany Hall to take control of the Democratic party, and declared that, if it came to that, he favored a new Democratic party "to throw out Tammany and give it a good licking."

In Defense of Hoover.

The speaker reviewed at length the public and private life of Hoover and gave what he described as the true version of the report that Hoover told emissaries of Germany they "could go to hell" when they asked him for food after the armistice.

"It was to two individuals purporting to represent the people that he said that," Owen declared. "Both of them were men who during the war had tried by military measures to hinder Hoover from feeding the Belgians. Of course, Hoover told them to go to hell.

"But it is the fact that it was Hoover who had the embargo raised so that Germany might be fed. It is the fact that Hoover was the Germans' best friend in the days after the war, when the allies sought to starve the beaten foe to death. And for that German-Americans have Hoover to praise rather than condemn."

During his speech Owen quoted frequently from newspaper editorials and from M. R. Werner's book, "Tammany Hall." Another authority whom he quoted for details of Gov. Smith's record was Gilbert Nations, former editor of an anti-Catholic newspaper in Missouri and more recently a writer of anti-Catholic literature in Washington.

the services they perform?" Bryan replied: "I feel they are more than adequately paid and base that assertion on the fact that they receive more than the men of other companies doing the same class of work and that we have no trouble getting men."

To bear out this assertion, Bryan produced an exhibit showing that his employes, at present wage rates, generally receive more pay and have shorter hours than similar workers in what he called comparable cities—Cincinnati, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Pittsburg and Detroit. The union wanted overtime pay for men working after 5 p. m., but, as in the case of linemen, he asserted this was not justified for night crews, in view of the nature of the business. For example, he cited the necessity of night work to hang wires downtown.

The proposed union contract provided there should be no outdoor work during rain, Bryan said, although it had been the policy to provide sheltered work at such times to keep the linemen busy. If this provision stood, Bryan declared, there could be no guarantee of steady pay. He related that his department had a small labor turnover and that, although some men quit to take jobs that paid a higher hourly rate, they often returned because they found their new employment was not steady, whereas with the street car company it was steady. Bryan insisted that contracts in evidence between the union and various Illinois utilities near here were not comparable with the Public Service Co. work, as to pay and hours, except that of the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway.

"Trouble Shooters'" Work.

The 28 trouble men, Bryan related, were divided into 12 crews, and in the year which ended June 30 they answered 7680 emergency calls, of which 48 per cent were for wire and other electrical troubles and the rest for traffic troubles, collisions and stalled cars. Only 10 per cent of the time of these men on duty was spent answering calls, the average number of calls being 147 a week, and the average time spent in each call 41 minutes. To grant the pay increase for this group of workers would be to triple the cost of the necessary "trouble shooting" department, Bryan averred. Although the night watch worked 14 hours, he explained, the men had quarters like fire-engine companies, where they could sleep, play cards or otherwise amuse themselves. In December, the worst month for trouble, there was a call only every fourth night, on the average, between 1 and 5 a. m., and it required an average of only 12 minutes. Bryan praised the ability and fidelity of his trouble men.

On cross-examination, Bryan said the electrical workers had not received an increase in pay since 1923.

SMITH TO VISIT TENNESSEE, BUT PLANS NO SPEECH

Will Confer With Party Leaders at Chattanooga and Nashville Before Address at Louisville.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Placing the "solid South" outside of his future speech-making plans, Gov. Smith will invade the border State of Kentucky for the first address of his second campaign tour, Next Saturday night at Louisville he will make his seventh speech on national issues since his notification, Aug. 22.

This announcement was made today by the Democratic presidential nominee at the daily press conference at he Executive Mansion.

After a day or two in New York City, in conference with party leaders, the Governor will leave by special train Thursday morning for Chattanooga and Nashville, Tenn., for further conferences with Democratic chieftains of that section, but no speeches.

The time of his arrival in Louisville for his Saturday speech had not been definitely determined today. Nor had the Governor decided what his text would be.

Visit to Chicago Soon.

Beyond his engagement in Kentucky, the Governor said nothing had been decided as final. It is quite generally believed, however, that the week of Oct. 15 will find him in Chicago and somewhere in Missouri for the second and third speeches.

Whether any stops for greeting crowds along the way will be made between New York and Chattanooga was not known today.

Considerable surprise was caused by the nominee's decision to make no spech in Tennessee. It had been generally expected that he would pick this State for the first speech of his second stumping tour, and that at one time consideration was said to have been given to invading the "solid South."

Seeks Line on Situation.

The Governor, however, is said to have good reasons for making a speechless visit to the Border State and hopes to make the most of the opportunity there to get some first-hand information on the political trend in that section. What leaders he intends to meet in Chattanooga and Nashville he was unprepared to say today.

In going to Kentucky, where he has been informed he has a good chance to win in November, Gov. Smith will enter a State which was carried by President Coolidge four years ago by about 25,000 plurality and by the Democrats in 1920 by approximately 4000. It has 13 electoral votes, one Republican and one Democratic Senator, and eight of its 11 representatives in Congress are Democrats.

Smith today described in a single sentence his reaction to charges involving his sobriety, alleged to have been made last August in Indiana by the Rev. Manning E. Van Nostrand, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church of this city.

"I'm satisfied that the fair-minded citizen will be compelled to reach the conclusion that the Rev. Dr. Van Nostrand convicted himself out of his own mouth," said the Governor.

ST. PAUL WOMEN'S CLUB BARS SPEECH BY MRS. WILLEBRANDT

Invitation Rescinded Because of Widespread Opposition of Members, President Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney-General, who was invited to address the Business and Professional Women's Association of St. Paul, has received word that the invitation has been withdrawn.

"The invitation was rescinded," said Mrs. Olivia Johnson, president of the organization, "because of widespread opposition among members to sponsoring Mrs. Willebrandt's proposed visit here."

Mrs. Johnson pointed out that the invitation was extended before Mrs. Willebrandt had figured so conspicuously in the public press as a result of her activities in behalf of the Republican party.

While a large faction of the club opposed Mrs. Willebrandt's speaking here, another group stanchly upheld the engagement. Two hours of debate preceded action by the board of directors to rescind the invitation.

Despite withdrawal of the invitation, Mrs. Willebrandt may speak in St. Paul under auspices of the Women's Republican Club. She is to come here Oct. 30, to be the guest of Miss Laura Volstead, daughter of Andrew Volstead, father of the prohibition law. The Republican Women's Club, through Mrs. Pauline Warner, chairman, began negotiations for Mrs. Willebrandt to speak as soon as the business and professional women canceled the engagement.

AIR LINER TO TAKE OFF WEDNESDAY ON VOYAGE TO U. S.

route." He was told that the Zeppelin officers have at present enough to do to observe the psychology of the human passengers in the air, but that they might get to study dogs in the air later.

A musical instrument manufacturer, an enthusiastic admirer of Commodore Eckener, sent him a beautiful golden harmonica, asking him to play it on the way to America. The same manufacturer has tried to create a "Zeppelin orchestra" by presenting each member of the crew a silvered harmonica.

Another firm made especially for the Graf Zeppelin and presented to Dr. Eckener, an extraordinarily light piano, made of aluminum and weighing about 200 pounds. There will not be room for the piano on this trip, much to the regret of Gregoire Gourevitch, Russian pianist, who had hoped he could "play his way over." He is convinced that the air voyage to America will inspire him to compose music that will make him still more famous, which he will dedicate to Dr. Eckener.

Other admirers of the airship express their sentiments in well-meaning forms of slabs of cheese, pumpernickel, strings of bologna sausages, and cases of beer, wine and champagne.

"Champagne for the officers and crew—if we accepted everything that is offered and took it along, our ship would never leave the ground," remarked Capt. Ernst A. Lehmann, whose good humor is never ruffled by the flood of inquiries and telephone calls, visits and appeals.

"One thing which is causing no little resentment is that the Graf Zeppelin may no longer be viewed by visitors. The rule is being enforced with great vigor. Only the personal signature of Dr. Eckener admits visitors to the hangar. For those of us who go in and out there is a special pass similar to the ones carried by the members of the crew. Even members of the State Government and parliament are turned away."

Contributors Want a Look.

Some demand the right to see the airship on the contention that they are co-owners, having contributed toward its building. The contributions of some of them ranged from 25 cents to $1.25.

The usual Saturday half-holiday was suspended today. The work of getting the Graf Zeppelin in shape for the flight to America went on all day and will continue tomorrow. The silvery "skin" of the Leviathan of the air is being drawn more and more taut in places to prevent flapping in the flight.

Small staterooms of thinnest and lightest of wood are being built in to protect the crew against the cold, since we may get some of Greenland's icy blasts, should we go by the shortest route.

The contents of 400 steel bottles of compressed blue gas motive power have been shipped from Augsburg to augment the short supply being put in here.

Perplexity as to Titles.

With no "airine" corresponding to "marine" as yet in existence, Dr. Eckener is trying to find new designations for the officers of an airship. For himself, Dr. Eckener holds the naval rank of Captain but as four or five of his staff on the Graf Zeppelin held rank as Commanders on Zeppelins, one or two of them with the title of Captain, we have given Dr. Eckener the title of Commodore to rank him above his staff.

However, he has designated himself as first "fuehrer," Capt. Lehmann as second and Capt. Flemming at third "fuehrer." There is no exact or appropriate translation for the word. It might be anything including pilot, driver, director, leader or even chauffeur.

Lehmann, an old London raider with thousands of flights to his credit, is Staff Captain, and executive officer. Capt. Flemming has the functions of second officer. Commander Von Schiller and Capt. Wittemann will be chief navigators. Each of these is a qualified Commander of Zeppelins and hopes some day to be Captain of a passenger airship.

There are 17 motor mechanicians or engineers, and among the helmsmen on the rudder and elevators is Knut Eckener, son of Dr. Eckener.

St. Louis on Itinerary.

Dr. Eckener has not yet definitely fixed his American program and will not do so until he arrives at Lakehurst. Among the cities he hopes to visit with the Graf Zeppelin are Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, Wilmington, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit, Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, Akron and possibly Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

Word was received at Scott Field several days ago that Graf Zeppelin, the new giant dirigible which will fly from Germany to this country, would visit Scott Field.

Preparations have been made to receive the airship and in the event of inclement weather, the dirigible could slip into the field's largest hangar, which is 800 feet long, 150 feet high and 110 feet wide.

No definite word as to the date of the ship's arrival has been received. No further preparations, in any event, to take care of the dirigible on its arrival would be necessary, it was said.

The Post-Dispatch will publish exclusively in St. Louis dispatches from the Graf Zeppelin en route to the United States, written by Karl H. von Wiegand.

ASSAILS ANTI-SMITH DEMOCRATIC BODY

F. C. Smith of East St. Louis Suggests G. O. P. Finance It.

An implication that the National Constitutional Democratic Committee, an anti-Smith organization, is financed by the Republican National Committee is made in a letter sent to the organization yesterday by Frank C. Smith, East St. Louis attorney and former mayoralty candidate.

Smith, who is a Methodist and a dry, received a letter from the anti-Smith society recently and to its headquarters in the Boatmen's Bank Building made the following response:

"I am in receipt of your communication, asking for the names and addresses of at least 15 Democratic men and women, who are going to vote for Hoover. This I cannot do, because I know of but one Democrat who is going to vote for Hoover, and he is one of those notorious Ku Kluxers, for whom no one has any respect. He has always been willing to sell his vote to the highest bidder, and he is doing in this campaign only what he has done heretofore.

"However, I can give you the names of at least 15 Republicans, of honest repute, and who are first-class citizens, who are going to vote for Al Smith.

"No doubt you men, under the guise of a National Constitutional Democratic Committee, are having splendid success in obtaining funds from the National Republican Committee. So be it. We understand they have oodles of it and are abundantly able to buy every Democrat who is for sale.

"In our house, there are three Democrats, but not one of the three is for sale. We are for Al Smith."

Charged With Killing Two.

By the Associated Press.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Oct. 6.—A warrant for the arrest of John Morris, jointly charged with his father, Henry B. Morris of Carthage, Mo., with murder, was issued here today. Young Morris is thought to be in Carthage. His father is held here. County authorities last night conducted a secret inquest into the death of Mrs. Anna Grabe of Denver and her 5-year-old daughter, Geneva, whose parched bones were found buried in the cellar of a house here last August. Mrs. Grabe several years ago was the elder Morris' housekeeper.

2500 gathered about the rear platform of his train at Bristol, on the line between Virginia and Tennessee. Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican floor leader of the House, who was born in this section of Tennessee, introduced Hoover as "our beloved chief" and Mrs. Hoover as "the wonderful lady who is to be our next first lady of the land." Responding briefly from notes, Hoover said he was anxious that the campaign should be one of education and that the voters should form their judgment "solely on the issues."

On arrival at Elizabethton Hoover was taken to inspect a silk mill and was here the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the local Hoover-Curtis Club. In acknowledging the gift of a pottery elephant from a manufacturing plant, the candidate pleased the crowd with his remark that it was "an elephant rampant."

Among the guests at the luncheon was George Fort Milton of Chattanooga, a long-time lieutenant of McAdoo and one of those who tried to block the nomination of Al. Smith at Houston. Milton was seated with the candidate's personal party.

Addresses War Veterans.

From Elizabethton, the Hoover special train proceeded to Johnson City, where the candidate read a brief speech to a large crowd assembled in the mess hall of the National Soldiers' Home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were warmly applauded. Hoover said:

"This splendid home has long been a monument to the solicitude of our Government for those who have made heroic sacrifice in the service of our country. There is no greater obligation imposed upon a nation than its duty to those who have offered their lives in its time of need. It is an obligation which must be discharged with justice and generosity to the full extent of our ability. These beautiful surroundings and all that goes with them present evidence of the purpose of our Government to perform that obligation.

"There is no group in our country which has a deeper or more vivid realization and understanding of the horrors of war than you who have suffered from it. The desire of every American is for peace. It is the aspiration of the entire world. The unspeakable experiences of war are still vivid in men's minds as well as the narrow margin by which civilization has survived. There is no nation in the world today that does not earnestly wish for peace, that is not earnestly striving for peace.

"Peace comes only as the result of mutual good will and the determination to eliminate by fair negotiation the causes of misunderstanding and friction. The maintenance of peace depends upon a continuous effort to make that good will effective. Our duty requires that we shall be unceasing in our endeavors to build up and strengthen the fabric of friendly understanding and mutual interest among nations. We have earnestly wished for limitation of armament throughout the world as a definite contribution to peace. But peace must be founded upon respect. We must be prepared for defense. This does not apply to aggression—it is a contribution to peace.

"You have made the greatest sacrifice that the sons of America can make for their country. You have given your health and sacrificed your own rightful aspirations upon her altar. The care here bestowed is but a partial discharge of an obligation which the country can never fully repay, but you hold something more precious in the gratitude and affectionate esteem of your fellow countrymen for those who have served the country well."

Starts Back to Washington.

Johnson City, a town of 25,000, made a gala event of Hoover's visit. Crowds lined the streets for a view of the candidate. As he was driven in a gaily decorated automobile from the Soldiers' Home to a hotel, Hoover smiled and waved his hand.

The party was entertained at dinner by the Johnson City Chamber of Commerce and departed by special train at 8:15 p. m. for Washington, where it is due to arrive early tomorrow.

Democrat Praises Hoover as "Evangel of Home."

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Former Supreme Court Justice Samuel C. Williams, a prominent Democrat, hailed Hoover as the "evangel of the American home" at a dinner given by the Johnson City Chamber of Commerce in honor of the Republican presidential candidate.

Hoover in response said it was particularly pleasing to have so fine a thing said about him by a member of the opposition party.

"I have felt that we need not sever friendly relations because we are members of different political parties in this campaign," Hoover continued. "After this contest is over we all must work together as Americans, members of one big family."

The nominee received a gavel cut from a beech tree on "which Daniel Boone once killed a b'ar."

Mrs. Hoover Holds Impromptu Reception for Women.

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover held an impromptu reception for several hundred women on her arrival here with her husband's party today.

"I didn't know there were so many people in this half of the State as have come to greet us today," she told them as she took her place in a roped-off receiving line and accepted bouquets of roses.

"Don't bother to present them all by name; let them introduce themselves; it's quicker," she added, entering into the informal spirit of the occasion, and taking a hand in her hostesses' arrangements just as she has often taken a hand in directing the cameramen in the campaign.

Mrs. John Quincy Adams, of Elizabethton, dressed to represent her husband's distinguished ancestress, in white wig and trailing old-fashioned print dress, made a special impression on the candidate's wife.

"The resemblance is clear," she said. "I knew I had seen her somewhere." Mrs. Thomas Jefferson, impersonated by another member of an early Tennessee family, she found "not so easy to recognize."

THE text of Herbert Hoover's speech at Elizabethton, Tenn. is printed on Page four of this section.

VETERAN APPEALS WHEN PASSPORT IS DENIED TO WIFE

L. M. Ulrich, Wealthy New Haven Man, to Carry Case to U. S. Supreme Court.

JUDGE REFUSES MANDAMUS WRIT

Visa Refused Mrs. Ulrich, Now in Germany, on Charge She Was Once Convicted of Theft.

By the Associated Press.

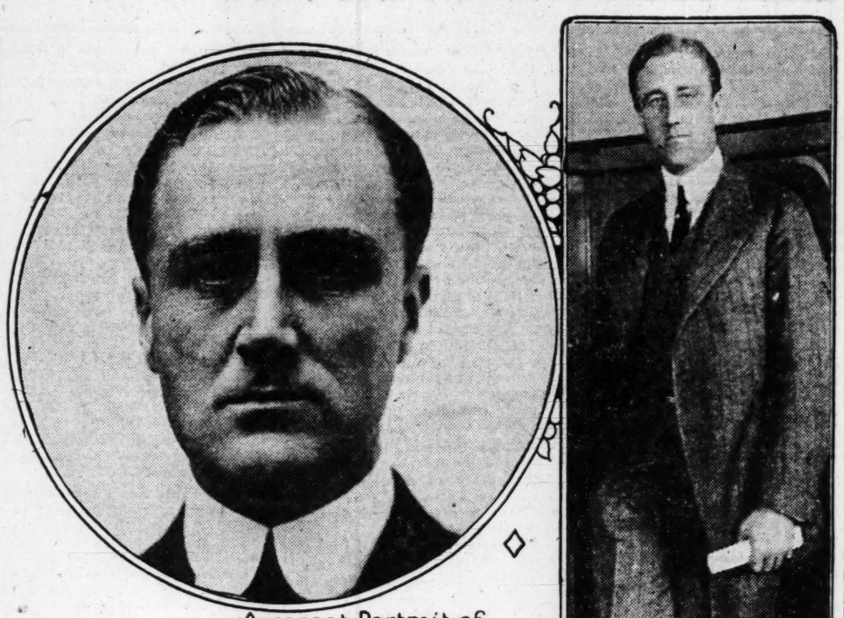
WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—When a writ of mandamus was denied him, which would have forced the State Department to issue a passport visa to his German wife, barred from the country on the ground of "moral turpitude," John Munsell Ulrich of New Haven, Conn., through counsel, turned to the United States Supreme Court today in his fight to bring his wife to the United States.

Joseph Koletsky, New Haven attorney acting for Ulrich, has filed a petition for the writ in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, bringing the action against Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Associate Justice Wendell P. Stafford denied the writ, whereupon Koletsky filed bond for appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

Ulrich's wife was Anna Minna Venzke, daughter of a German officer. Ulrich married her in Berlin in December, 1927, after he had filed notice with immigration officials of the United States that he intended to bring his bride to the United States. The passport visa had been authorized by Secretary Kellogg when Carelton Dailey Hurst, American Consul in Berlin, refused to issue it. Hurst said that Miss Venzke had been convicted of larceny of articles of clothing from a roommate several years before, and that this constituted violation of the "moral turpitude" clause of the immigration act.

Ulrich, member of a wealthy New Haven family, is a grandson of the late Gail Borden, condensed milk magnate. Ulrich served in the World War and declared that cases of war veterans had an unquestioned right to enter this country.

A Warrior for Democracy



A recent Portrait of Franklin D'Roosevelt

When he was nominated for Vice President in 1920

F. D. ROOSEVELT GAMELY RESPONDS TO PARTY'S CALL

the election of James A. O'Gorman to the United States Senate. The Tammany candidate was William F. Sheehan. They told him it was hopeless. He set his jaw, and O'Gorman was elected.

In the Wilson administration he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy. He was a fiend for work, able, honest and brilliant. Toward the close of the war he was sent to Europe to personally supervise the navy's work.

Then, in 1920, he was named by his party for the vice presidency. It was the year of the Harding landslide, and he went down to defeat.

Stricken by Infantile Paralysis.

It was during the next year, in the summer of 1921, that the worst opponent of all struck him down. At his summer camp on the Canadian island of Campobello, N. B., he lay ill for weeks with infantile paralysis. When the disease had run its course he was paralyzed from the waist down.

Great things had been expected of him. It seemed that these expectations were doomed. He was told he had practically no chance of ever recovering.

So he set his fighting spirit against his affliction. He refused to let himself be counted out. In three years he had become the leader in the fight to win the presidential nomination for Gov. Smith. Swaying on crutches, he stood in Madison Square Garden in the summer of 1924 and placed the Governor's name in nomination.

Since then he has striven with unabating zeal to recover his health. Having learned that a fellow sufferer from infantile paralysis had greatly improved by constant bathing in the waters at Warm Springs, Ga., he went there. At the end of a year he found he could move his legs. In another year he was able to leave his crutches and get about with heavy sticks and a brace. When he appeared on the platform at Houston to put Gov. Smith's name in nomination for the second time, the improvement was called startling. He was strong, and there was fine color in his cheeks, and in his blue eyes the light of his old courage.

After the convention, he went back to Warm Springs, which he had bought in the meantime, and where he had established a clinic for others sufferings from the same disability as his.

His health was building up. It seemed only a matter of time, now, before he would be as strong and as able-bodied as ever. The prospect delighted him. In the course of his cure, he had become one of the crack swimmers of Warm Springs, using his powerful arms and shoulders to pull himself through the water.

The call to serve as Democratic nominee for the governorship of New York State came to him at Warm Springs. At first he said no. He was not persuaded that he would not be able to serve even better by waiting a few years until he was cured and then entering politics again with his old-time dash and vigor.

Smith Made Personal Appeal.

But on Tuesday night Gov. Smith called him on the long-distance telephone, and told him how much he was needed. The convention had sought in vain for a man who could match him in fearlessness, honesty, intelligence and courage, and who could bear half so well the party standard and lend so much strength to the Smith campaign. He was needed, and needed badly. Not only was he Gov. Smith's choice as a man who could and would carry on his own State policies, but he was a man to whom the whole State could look for an able and honest governorship.

It was past midnight, when, after a consultation with his wife, who had nursed him through his illness, he told the Governor he would run. That telephone conversation marked the return into active politics of a man whose whole career has been one of unselfish and cleanly fought battles for the people.

That he is making this return as a personal sacrifice there is no doubt. But that, as has been charged, he was forced to cast himself on the altar of political expediency is not true. He was the first to deny it. He was not risking anything, he said. He is retarding his cure. That is all.

And he is not doing it because Gov. Smith asked him to. He is doing it because he is convinced that the voice of Gov. Smith on the telephone was the voice of his native State, calling him to come home and make the fight.

A Power for the Party.

His acceptance will mean much to the Democratic party. It does away forever with the Tammany charge against Gov. Smith, and gives the democracy in New York State a bold, high-minded leader.

So eminently well fitted for the governorship is he that two of the strongest Hoover supporters among New York City's newspapers, the Sun and the Telegram, came out for Roosevelt for Governor within 24 hours after his nomination.

The Sun in its editorial comment on the nomination "believes that the people of New York are fortunate to have the opportunity to vote for Mr. Roosevelt."

"Among men in public life Franklin D. Roosevelt is one in a million," the Telegram said editorially. "Throughout a long public career he has proved himself a statesman worthy of any honor that this State or this nation might bestow on him," and declared it "inconceivable that New York will fail to take advantage of the opportunity to secure so rare a public servant."

The following day, the Telegram amplified its first editorial in support of Roosevelt with the following comment: "No partisan stretch of the imagination is required to use such words as clean, honest, capable, patriotic, idealistic and just in describing his qualifications."

It is, perhaps, just these qualifications which led him to throw his own interests into the discard and prepare to enter a rigorous political campaign.

SIDELIGHTS ON PLANS FOR WORLD SERIES GAMES IN ST. LOUIS

Students in Soldan and probably most of the St. Louis high schools will have opportunity, beginning tomorrow, to follow the remaining world series adventures of the Cardinals and the Yankees by radio, a concession which their teachers think will keep them at school and away from street corner loud speakers in school hours.

Friday's game was reported to students at Soldan, Roosevelt and other high schools by the physics department receiving sets, which were set up in the auditorium. The entertainment proved wholesome and rather an aid to school work than a distraction, Principal Powell of Soldan said yesterday.

Broadcasting began during the lunch hour at Soldan. At the following assembly period, students were told to report to classrooms and study halls as usual, but that those who had idle periods might obtain permission to return to the auditorium for those periods and follow the game.

Many did so. Teachers sent messengers to keep the working students posted on the program of play.

Many classrooms kept the score inning by inning.

Diamond pins will be presented to the Cardinal players at the home plate, by the Mayor's reception committee, 10 minutes before the beginning of this afternoon's game. By the ruling of Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, this will be the one and only ceremonial presentation to take place at Sportsman's Park during the present world series.

The pins, valued at $100 each, have gold enamel figures of the Red Bird and of a bat, the latter containing the diamond. Similar trophies, of somewhat less value, will be presented to the club's office staff and scouts. The pins were purchased from the fund raised by the Mayor's committee for welcoming the Cardinals on their homecoming yesterday.

Woman Robbed of $325.

Mrs. Clara Feinberg lost $325, the day's receipts from her fish market at 1445 Hodiamont avenue, when a robber entered her store last night.

MAN IN ROOF-TOP FLIGHT FALLS 45 FEET

Roy La Brott Runs When Rival for Bride He Won Calls at His Home.

The sudden apearance last night of the rival from whom, three months ago, he won his present wife, caused Roy La Brott, 21-year-old waiter of 2103 Olive street, to set out upon a flight over several roof-tops which ended when he tripped over a chimney wire and fell 45 feet to the ground.

He suffered a fractured spine and fractured pelvis and was taken to City Hospital where his condition is critical.

Mrs. Katherne La Brott, his bride, told police that a man had paid her court up to the time of her marriage and had since shown resentment toward her husband. This man, she said, drove up to the house where she lived with La Brott last night, in company with another man. As the two men got out of their car, she urged La Brott to run, she said, fearing they would harm him.

La Brott fled up two flights of stairs, pushed open a skylight and jumped out on the roof.

La Brott slid for the edge of the roof and jumped across a gangway to the house at 2105 Olive street. Still running, he crossed that roof, and in leaping for the next, at 2107 Olive street, caught his ankle in a chimney wire and fell.

While La Brott was making for the roof, police said, the man and his companion rang the front doorbell, inquired for him, and when told that he was not at home, departed.

HAY SPEAKS AT CAPITOL

Senatorial Nominee Says People Demand a Change.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—Charles M. Hay, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, attacked the Republican administration of the last seven and a half years in an address here tonight and urged the election of Gov. Alfred E. Smith and the State Democratic ticket to bring about an "honest and better government." He spoke in the House of Representatives chamber in the State capitol.

Assailing the Republican National administration for the oil scandals, the Veterans' Bureau disclosures, the "plight" of the farmer, "failure" to work out any sound water power and utilities policy while the "power trust develops into a menace," and "failure to enforce prohibition," Hay asserted that there is "an imperative demand from the people that a change be made." Hay attacked Roscoe C. Patterson, Republican candidate for the Senate, for declaring in his recent speech at Springfield opening the campaign, that "the records of achievement of the past seven and a half years are accomplishments of the highest order."

FLYER ACOSTA'S WIFE FILES $150,000 ALIENATION SUIT

Charges Dorothy Walker of Beechhurst, L. I., Won His Affections From Her.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. — Mrs. Helen B. Acosto, wife of Bert Acoscta, trans-Atlantic flyer, today filed suit in Supreme Court at Mineola, L. I., against Dorothy Walker of Beechhurst, L. I., for $150,000 for alleged alienation of affections. The Acostas formerly lived at Rockville Centre, where the pilot still makes his home. Mrs. Acosta is living with a friend, Mrs. Ada McVeigh, at Hempstead.

Mrs. Acosta recites that Dorothy Walker "wrongfully, visiously and wickedly gained the affections of Bert Acosta," and "upursued him by offers of money and otherwise to induce him to leave the plaintiff and live with the defendant at her home in Beechhurst, L. I."

Mrs. Acosta says she has suffered great distress of mind and body since last May, when the alleged alienation began.

Zinc and Lead Unchanged.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 6.—Prices remained unchanged in the tristate zinc and lead district for the week ending today. Sinc ore was steady at $40 for the twenty-first consecutive week and lead ore ermained firm at $85 a ton. Demand for zinc was fair, with a purchase of 8640 tons being reported. This was considerably less than production, which probably exceeded 11,000 tons.

More Women Than Men Registered In Two Wards

Tabulation in 22 of 28 Divisions of City Shows This Result in the Fifteenth and Twenty-Eighth.

In two of 22 St. Louis wards more women voters than men are registered. A tabulation of race and sex in 22 of the 28 wards, completed last night, shows that in the Twenty-eighth Ward there are 8775 registered women voters and only 8068 men. Similarly in the Fifteenth Ward, there are 7010 women and 6575 men registered.

The heavy registration of women in all of the 22 wards is credited to the activity of women's organizations.

The tabulation of white voters who registered in these wards shows: First, 8780 men, 6913 women; Second, 6173 men, 4343 women; Third, 5436 men, 3406 women; Fourth, 3115 men, 1551 women; Fifth, 2627 men, 672 women; Seventh, 6259 men, 3703 women; Eighth, 7051 men, 4166 women; Ninth, 5935 men, 3560 women; Tenth, 6325 men, 3907 women; Twelfth, 7532 men, 5519 women; Thirteenth, 12,769 men, 9929 women; Fourteenth, 6097 men, 5871 women; Fifteenth, 6569 men, 7009 women; Sixteenth, 4860 men, 3583 women; Eighteenth, 5359 men, 4140 women; Nineteenth, 3334 men, 2548 women; Twentieth, 4830 men, 3743 women; Twenty-first, 6088 men, 5322 women; Twenty-second, 9551 men, 8327 women; Twenty-third, 3366 men, 2579 women; Twenty-eighth, 7972 men, 8724 women.

The ratio of men voters to women voters registered in the Negro race was about the same.

Of the voters listed in the five wards, 2752 of the men and 1360 of the women are Negroes. The tabulation will be carried out for all the wards.

In the last registration 362,847 men and women qualified as voters, exceeding by more than 60,000 the registration total of 1924, and by more than 45,000 the registration of 1920.

The increase has been ascribed not only to city growth, but to an awakening of interest in politics among women who have never before voted. The heightened interest is generally due to the religious and prohibition issues of the presidential campaign.

ONE OF CREW IN 'LIQUOR' BOAT SHOT IN COAST GUARD CHASE

Federal Officers Say Launch Off California Coast Threw Cargo Overboard.

In the chase that followed the Government men said the launch crew cast all the liquor overboard before surrendering. It was during the chase that the coast guard vessel opened fire.

Edgar Holt, a member of the launch crew, was held in the San Pedro Jail tonight, pending investigation.

Applications for treatment were received from 218 others, who could not be taken because of the limited facilities of the hospital.

Larry Semon Dangerously Ill.

By the Associated Press.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 6.—Larry Semon, motion picture comedian and director and former vaudeville performer, is dangerously ill with pneumonia at a Mojave Desert sanitarium, near Victorville. A message from Dr. H. Garcelon, Semon's physician, said that the actor had declined rapidly and that he was very low. Earlier in the day a report came from the desert town stating that someone, purporting to be Dr. Garcelon, had telephoned that Semon had died. Semon was removed to the sanitarium from his ranch where he had been ill for several months.

25-WEEK STRIKE ENDS BY TEXTILE MEN'S VOTE

New Bedford Unions Accept 5 Per Cent Wage Cut as Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 6.—The textile workers' strike which has kept goods and workers idle in this city for 25 weeks ended today. By vote of unions reported in the Textile Council, the strikers accepted a compromise agreement under which wages will be reduced 5 per cent and the manufacturers hereafter will give the workers 30 day's notice of any proposed general wage cut. The strike was called as a protest against an announced 10 per cent wage reduction.

The New Bedford Manufacturers' Association arranged a meeting for tonight, presumably to discuss plans for reopening the mills.

The strike was the longest in this city in 32 years. Although there were few really serious disturbances, picketing was constant and as a result of the stand taken by the authorities against mass picketing, there were large numbers of arrests. Large numbers of the picketers were fined or received jail sentences in the District Court, most of them taking appeals to the higher courts.

The majority of the strikers were members of craft unions affiliated with the Textile Council, an organization which for many years has been recognized by the Manufacturers' Association. Early in the strike a new organization calling itself the Textile Mill Committee made its appearance and conducted rival picket lines, making demands which were not sanctioned by the Textile Council.

The Textile Council in its conduct of the strike, including the raising of funds, was supported by the United Textile Workers of America. The task of caring for the 30,000 strikers from 27 mills and their families was a heavy one and in addition to the union relief funds the city departments were forced to extend much aid. Landlords for the most part were lenient in their demands for rent and store keepers extended liberal credit to the strikers.

OWEN DECLARES SMITH IS UNFIT FOR PRESIDENCY

Former Democratic Senator From Oklahoma Attacks Candidate as Product of Tammany.

SAYS 'TIGER' WOULD RULE WHITE HOUSE

Defends Hoover in Speech Here, Asserting He Had Embargo Lifted to Feed Germans.

Attacking Gov. Smith as a product and part of the Tammany organization and denouncing the New York Democratic political machine as "a stench in the nostrils of honest men," Robert L. Owen, former Democratic Senator from Oklahoma, declared last night at Moolah Temple that the Democratic candidate was unfit for the office of President.

Before an audience of about 500 persons which only partly filled the auditorium, Owen eulogized Herbert Hoover as a man of achievement, and while affirming his allegiance to Democratic ideals, declared his approval of the policy of Coolidge economy, one of the strong Republican battle cries.

Owen spoke under the auspices of the National Constitutional Democratic Committee, whose chairman, M. D. Lightfoot, claims a membership of 3500 anti-Smith Democrats in St. Louis and more than 80,000 in Missouri.

Disclaims Religious Prejudice.

Speaking without heat, an attitude in impersonality he preserved throughout his speech, Owen declared he opposed Smith only because Smith had departed from tude of impersonality he preserved made an emphatic disclaimer of religious prejudice as motivating his political stand.

"My father was a Catholic," he said. "My secretary for a time was a Catholic. My brother-in-law is a Catholic and so is my attorney. No man in the world has ever heard me say an unkind word of a Roman Catholic because of his faith. Let me say then that I deeply deplore the injection of the religious issue in this campaign."

It was during the early portion of his speech that an elderly woman arose from a seat near the stage, walked to a position in front of the speaker and raised an American flag on which had been pinned photographs of Gov. Smith. In a moment the hall was in confusion which subsided within a few minutes when policemen escorted her from the hall.

"I am opposed to Gov. Smith," the speaker continued after order had been restored, "because he has been trained by an organization 139 years old, one which has developed a high degree of efficiency by hook or by crook in using the government for private profit.

"Summing Up Evidence."

"I am not a witness against Tammany. I am merely a lawyer summing up the evidence. Tammany is in every way opposed to the Jeffersonian principle of equal rights to all and special privileges to none. If you would sell bootlegging privileges, if you would sell gambling privileges in the city of New York, and would turn the money into the coffers of Tammany Hall for political purposes, aye, even for a presidential campaign, then you are not a true Democrat.

"Every position that Gov. Smith has held in his lifetime, he has held by grace of Tammany. He is so under obligation to the machine that I am confident it would rule his actions were he sent to the White House.

"He is loyal and faithful to Tammany. Why shouldn't he be? Tammany has been engineering the presidential nomination for him since 1920. Why shouldn't he feel grateful?"

Winning the Nomination.

Owen made the charge that, in anticipation of the Smith campaign, Tammany had placed its own men, "capable men," at the head of each State Democratic organization and had actually organized its forces through the congressional district committees and down into the precincts, so that Smith would be assured adequate support.

He recalled that on last July 4 Smith was invested with the velvet collar of Tamany and that he said on that occasion that an organization for evil would not live 139 years, as had Tammany.

"That," continued Owen, "he said with greater boldness than veracity. On that same basis he could give a certificate of character to the devil himself, who has been in business even longer than Tammany.

"Gov. Smith does not attempt to vindicate the past record of Tammany, or the present, either. What does he say of the frauds of the Tammany of today, the street cleaning scandal, the Queensborough sewer scandal and the other disgraceful manipulations of his own political machine."

Impeachment of Sulzer.

Owen reviewed the circumstances surrounding the impeachment of Gov. Sulzer of New York in 1913, declaring that Tammany procured his downfall because he was about to expose a great road paving fraud. Working down to later years, he described the administration of Mayor Walker of New York, a Smith supporter and Tammany leader, as wasteful, and asserted municipal expenditures had increased $75,000,000 annually under Walker's rule.

"That," he said, "is one way of doing it. Economy is the better way. Personally, I like the Coolidge economy."

Owen pictured the Smith candidacy as an open effort by Tammany Hall to take control of the Democratic party, and declared that, if it came to that, he favored a new Democratic party "to throw out Tammany and give it a good licking."

In Defense of Hoover.

The speaker reviewed at length the public and private life of Hoover and gave what he described as the true version of the report that Hoover told emissaries of Germany they "could go to hell" when they asked him for food after the armistice.

"It was to two individuals purporting to represent the people that he said that," Owen declared. "Both of them were men who during the war had tried by military measures to hinder Hoover from feeding the Belgians. Of course, Hoover told them to go to hell.

"But it is the fact that it was Hoover who had the embargo raised so that Germany might be fed. It is the fact that Hoover was the Germans' best friend in the days after the war, when the allies sought to starve the beaten foe to death. And for that German-Americans have Hoover to praise rather than condemn."

During his speech Owen quoted frequently from newspaper editorials and from M. R. Werner's book, "Tammany Hall." Another authority whom he quoted for details of Gov. Smith's record was Gilbert Nations, former editor of an anti-Catholic newspaper in Missouri and more recently a writer of anti-Catholic literature in Washington.

the services they perform?" Bryan replied: "I feel they are more than adequately paid and base that assertion on the fact that they receive more than the men of other companies doing the same class of work and that we have no trouble getting men."

To bear out this assertion, Bryan produced an exhibit showing that his employes, at present wage rates, generally receive more pay and have shorter hours than similar workers in what he called comparable cities—Cincinnati, Kansas City, Minneapolis, Indianapolis, Pittsburg and Detroit. The union wanted overtime pay for men working after 5 p. m., but, as in the case of linemen, he asserted this was not justified for night crews, in view of the nature of the business. For example, he cited the necessity of night work to hang wires downtown.

The proposed union contract provided there should be no outdoor work during rain, Bryan said, although it had been the policy to provide sheltered work at such times to keep the linemen busy. If this provision stood, Bryan declared, there could be no guarantee of steady pay. He related that his department had a small labor turnover and that, although some men quit to take jobs that paid a higher hourly rate, they often returned because they found their new employment was not steady, whereas with the street car company it was steady. Bryan insisted that contracts in evidence between the union and various Illinois utilities near here were not comparable with the Public Service Co. work, as to pay and hours, except that of the East St. Louis & Suburban Railway.

"Trouble Shooters'" Work.

The 28 trouble men, Bryan related, were divided into 12 crews, and in the year which ended June 30 they answered 7689 emergency calls, of which 48 per cent were for wire and other electrical troubles and the rest for traffic troubles, collisions and stalled cars. Only 10 per cent of the time of these men on duty was spent answering calls, the average number of calls being 147 a week, and the average time spent in each call 41 minutes. To grant the pay increase for this group of workers would be to triple the cost of the necessary "trouble shooting" department, Bryan averred. Although the night watch worked 14 hours, he explained, the men had quarters like fire-engine companies, where they could sleep, play cards or otherwise amuse themselves. In December, the worst month for trouble, there was a call only every fourth night, on the average, between 1 and 5 a. m., and it required an average of only 12 minutes. Bryan praised the ability and fidelity of his trouble men.

On cross-examination, Bryan said the electrical workers had not received an increase in pay since 1923.

SMITH TO VISIT TENNESSEE, BUT PLANS NO SPEECH

Will Confer With Party Leaders at Chattanooga and Nashville Before Address at Louisville.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Placing the "solid South" outside of his future speech-making plans, Gov. Smith will invade the border State of Kentucky for the first address of his second campaign tour. Next Saturday night at Louisville he will make his seventh speech on national issues since his notification, Aug. 22.

This announcement was made today by the Democratic presidential nominee at the daily press conference at he Executive Mansion.

After a day or two in New York City, in conference with party leaders, the Governor will leave by special train Thursday morning for Chattanooga and Nashville, Tenn., for further conferences with Democratic chieftains of that section, but no speeches.

The time of his arrival in Louisville for his Saturday speech had not been definitely determined today. Nor had the Governor decided what his text would be.

Visit to Chicago Soon.

Beyond his engagement in Kentucky, the Governor said nothing had been decided as final. It is quite generally believed, however, that the week of Oct. 15 will find him in Chicago and somewhere in Missouri for the second and third speeches.

Whether any stops for greeting crowds along the way will be made between New York and Chattanooga was not known today.

Considerable surprise was caused by the nominee's decision to make no spech in Tennessee. It had been generally expected that he would pick this State for the first speech of his second stumping tour, and that at one time consideration was said to have been given to invading the "solid South."

Seeks Line on Situation.

The Governor, however, is said to have good reasons for making a speechless visit to the Border State and hopes to make the most of the opportunity there to get some first-hand information on the political trend in that section. What leaders he intends to meet in Chattanooga and Nashville he was unprepared to say today.

In going to Kentucky, where he has been informed he has a good chance to win in November, Gov. Smith will enter a State which was carried by President Coolidge four years ago by about 25,000 plurality and by the Democrats in 1920 by approximately 4000. It has 13 electoral votes, one Republican and one Democratic Senator, and eight of its 11 representatives in Congress are Democrats.

Smith today described in a single sentence his reaction to charges involving his sobriety, alleged to have been made last August in Indiana by the Rev. Manning E. Van Nostrand, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist Church of this city.

"I'm satisfied that the fair-minded citizen will be compelled to reach the conclusion that the Rev. Dr. Van Nostrand convicted himself out of his own mouth," said the Governor.

ST. PAUL WOMEN'S CLUB BARS SPEECH BY MRS. WILLEBRANDT

Invitation Rescinded Because of Widespread Opposition of Members, President Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, Assistant United States Attorney-General, who was invited to address the Business and Professional Women's Association of St. Paul, has received word that the invitation has been withdrawn.

"The invitation was rescinded," said Mrs. Olivia Johnson, president of the organization, "because of widespread opposition among members to sponsoring Mrs. Willebrandt's proposed visit here."

Mrs. Johnson pointed out that the invitation was extended before Mrs. Willebrandt had figured so conspicuously in the public press as a result of her activities in behalf of the Republican party.

While a large faction of the club opposed Mrs. Willebrandt's speaking here, another group stanchly upheld the engagement. Two hours of debate preceded action by the board of directors to rescind the invitation.

Despite withdrawal of the invitation, Mrs. Willebrandt may speak in St. Paul under auspices of the Women's Republican Club. She is to come here Oct. 30, to be the guest of Miss Laura Volstead, daughter of Andrew Volstead, father of the prohibition law. The Republican Women's Club, through Mrs. Pauline Warner, chairman, began negotiations for Mrs. Willebrandt to speak as soon as the business and professional women canceled the engagement.

AIR LINER TO TAKE OFF WEDNESDAY ON VOYAGE TO U. S.

route." He was told that the Zeppelin officers have at present enough to do to observe the psychology of the human passengers in the air, but that they might get to study dogs in the air later.

A musical instrument manufacturer, an enthusiastic admirer of Commodore Eckener, sent him a beautiful golden harmonica, asking him to play it on the way to America. The same manufacturer has tried to create a "Zeppelin orchestra" by presenting each member of the crew a silvered harmonica.

Another firm made especially for the Graf Zeppelin and presented to Dr. Eckener, an extraordinarily light piano, made of aluminum and weighing about 200 pounds. There will not be room for the piano on this trip, much to the regret of Gregoire Gourevitch, Russian pianist, who had hoped he could "play his way over." He is convinced that the air voyage to America will inspire him to compose music that will make him still more famous, which he will dedicate to Dr. Eckener.

Other admirers of the airship express their sentiments in well-meaning forms of slabs of cheese, pumpernickel, strings of bologna sausages, and cases of beer, wine and champagne.

"Champagne for the officers and crew—if we accepted everything that is offered and took it along, our ship would never leave the ground," remarked Capt. Ernst A. Lehmann, whose good humor is never ruffled by the flood of inquiries and telephone calls, visits and appeals.

"One thing which is causing no little resentment is that the Graf Zeppelin may no longer be viewed by visitors. The rule is being enforced with great vigor. Only the personal signature of Dr. Eckener admits visitors to the hangar. For those of us who go in and out there is a special pass similar to the ones carried by the members of the crew. Even members of the State Government and parliament are turned away."

Contributors Want a Look.

Some demand the right to see the airship on the contention that they are co-owners, having contributed toward its building. The contributions of some of them ranged from 25 cents to $1.25.

The usual Saturday half-holiday was suspended today. The work of getting the Graf Zeppelin in shape for the flight to America went on all day and will continue tomorrow. The silvery "skin" of the Leviathan of the air is being drawn more and more taut in places to prevent flapping in the flight.

Small staterooms of thinnest and lightest of wood are being built in to protect the crew against the cold, since we may get some of Greeuland's icy blasts, should we go by the shortest route.

The contents of 400 steel bottles of compressed blue gas motive power have been shipped from Augsburg to augment the short supply being put in here.

Perplexity as to Titles.

With no "airine" corresponding to "marine" as yet in existence, Dr. Eckener is trying to find new designations for the officers of an airship. For himself, Dr. Eckener holds the naval rank of Captain but as four or five of his staff on the Graf Zeppelin held rank as Commanders on Zeppelins, one or two of them with the title of Captain, we have given Dr. Eckener the title of Commodore to rank him above his staff.

However, he has designated himself as first "fuehrer," Capt. Lehmann as second and Capt. Flemming at third "fuehrer." There is no exact or appropriate translation for the word. It might be anything including pilot, driver, director, leader or even chauffeur.

Lehmann, an old London raider with thousands of flights to his credit, is Staff Captain and executive officer. Capt. Flemming has the functions of second officer. Commander Von Schiller and Capt. Wittemann will be chief navigators. Each of these is a qualified Commander of Zeppelins and hopes some day to be Captain of a passenger airship.

There are 17 motor mechanicians or engineers, and among the helmsmen on the rudder and elevators is Knut Eckener, son of Dr. Eckener.

St. Louis on Itinerary.

Dr. Eckener has not yet definitely fixed his American program and will not do so until he arrives at Lakehurst. Among the cities he hopes to visit with the Graf Zeppelin are Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Trenton, Wilmington, Baltimore, Washington, Detroit, Milwaukee, Chicago, St. Louis, Akron and possibly Cincinnati and Pittsburg.

Word was received at Scott Field several days ago that Graf Zeppelin, the new giant dirigible which will fly from Germany to this country, would visit Scott Field.

Preparations have been made to receive the airship and in the event of inclement weather, the dirigible could slip into the field's largest hangar, which is 800 feet long, 150 feet high and 110 feet wide.

No definite word as to the date of the ship's arrival has been received. No further preparations, in any event, to take care of the dirigible on its arrival would be necessary, it was said.

ASSAILS ANTI-SMITH DEMOCRATIC BODY

F. C. Smith of East St. Louis Suggests G. O. P. Finance It.

An implication that the National Constitutional Democratic Committee, an anti-Smith organization, is financed by the Republican National Committee is made in a letter sent to the organization yesterday by Frank C. Smith, East St. Louis attorney and former mayoralty candidate.

Smith, who is a Methodist and a dry, received a letter from the anti-Smith society recently and to its headquarters in the Boatmen's Bank Building made the following response:

"I am in receipt of your communication, asking for the names and addresses of at least 15 Democratic men and women, who are going to vote for Hoover. This I cannot do, because I know of but one Democrat who is going to vote for Hoover, and he is one of those notorious Ku Kluxers, for whom no one has any respect. He has always been willing to sell his vote to the highest bidder, and he is doing in this campaign only what he has done heretofore.

"However, I can give you the names of at least 15 Republicans, of honest repute, and who are first-class citizens, who are going to vote for Al Smith.

"No doubt you men, under the guise of a National Constitutional Democratic Committee, are having splendid success in obtaining funds from the National Republican Committee. So be it. We understand they have oodles of it and are abundantly able to buy every Democrat who is for sale.

"In our house, there are three Democrats, but not one of the three is for sale. We are for Al Smith."

Charged With Killing Two.

By the Associated Press.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., Oct. 6.—A warrant for the arrest of John Morris, jointly charged with his father, Henry B. Morris of Carthage, Mo., with murder, was issued here today. Young Morris is thought to be in Carthage. His father is held here. County authorities last night conducted a secret inquest into the death of Mrs. Anna Grabe of Denver and her 5-year-old daughter, Geneva, whose parched bones were found buried in the cellar of a house here last August. Mrs. Grabe several years ago was the elder Morris' housekeeper.

Hoover in Tennessee Urges Value of Tariff

2500 gathered about the rear platform of his train at Bristol, on the line between Virginia and Tennessee. Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, the Republican floor leader of the House, who was born in this section of Tennessee, introduced Hoover as "our beloved chief" and Mrs. Hoover as "the wonderful lady who is to be our next first lady of the land." Responding briefly from notes, Hoover said he was anxious that the campaign should be one of education and that the voters should form their judgment "solely on the issues."

On arrival at Elizabethton Hoover was taken to inspect a silk mill and was here the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the local Hoover-Curtis Club. In acknowledging the gift of a pottery elephant from a manufacturing plant, the candidate pleased the crowd with his remark that it was "an elephant rampant."

Among the guests at the luncheon was George Fort Milton of Chattanooga, a long-time lieutenant of McAdoo and one of those who tried to block the nomination of Al. Smith at Houston. Milton was seated with the candidate's personal party.

Addresses War Veterans.

From Elizabethton, the Hoover special train proceeded to Johnson City, where the candidate read a brief speech to a large crowd assembled in the mess hall of the National Soldiers' Home. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hoover were warmly applauded. Hoover said:

"This splendid home has long been a monument to the solicitude of our Government for those who have made heroic sacrifice in the service of our country. There is no greater obligation imposed upon a nation than its duty to those who have offered their lives in its time of need. It is an obligation which must be discharged with justice and generosity to the full extent of our ability. These beautiful surroundings and all that goes with them present evidence of the purpose of our Government to perform that obligation.

"There is no group in our country which has a deeper or more vivid realization and understanding of the horrors of war than you who have suffered from it. The desire of every American is for peace. It is the aspiration of the entire world. The unspeakable experiences of war are still vivid in men's minds as well as the narrow margin by which civilization has survived. There is no nation in the world today that does not earnestly wish for peace, that is not earnestly striving for peace.

"Peace comes only as the result of mutual good will and the determination to eliminate by fair negotiation the causes of misunderstanding and friction. The maintenance of peace depends upon a continuous effort to make that good will effective. Our duty requires that we shall be unceasing in our endeavors to build up and strengthen the fabric of friendly understanding and mutual interest among nations. We have earnestly wished for limitation of armament throughout the world as a definite contribution to peace. But peace must be founded upon respect. We must be prepared for defense. This does not apply to aggression—it is a contribution to peace.

"You have made the greatest sacrifice that the sons of America can make for their country. You have given your health and sacrificed your own rightful aspirations upon her altar. The care here bestowed is but a partial discharge of an obligation which the country can never fully repay, but you hold something more precious in the gratitude and affectionate esteem of your fellow countrymen for those who have served the country well."

Starts Back to Washington.

Johnson City, a town of 25,000, made a gala event of Hoover's visit. Crowds lined the streets for a view of the candidate. As he was driven in a gaily decorated automobile from the Soldiers' Home to a hotel, Hoover smiled and waved his hand.

The party was entertained at dinner by the Johnson City Chamber of Commerce and departed by special train at 8:15 p. m. for Washington, where it is due to arrive early tomorrow.

Democrat Praises Hoover as "Evangel of Home."

By the Associated Press.

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Former Supreme Court Justice Samuel C. Williams, a prominent Democrat, hailed Hoover as the "evangel of the American home" at a dinner given by the Johnson City Chamber of Commerce in honor of the Republican presidential candidate.

Hoover in response said it was particularly pleasing to have so fine a thing said about him by a member of the opposition party.

"I have felt that we need not sever friendly relations because we are members of different political parties in this campaign," Hoover continued. "After this contest is over we all must work together as Americans, members of one big family."

The nominee received a gavel cut from a beech tree on "which Daniel Boone once killed a b'ar."

Mrs. Hoover Holds Impromptu Reception for Women.

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Mrs. Herbert Hoover held an impromptu reception for several hundred women on her arrival here with her husband's party today.

"I didn't know there were so many people in this half of the State as have come to greet us today," she told them as she took her place in a roped-off receiving line and accepted bouquets of roses.

"Don't bother to present them all by name; let them introduce themselves; it's quicker," she added, entering into the informal spirit of the occasion, and taking a hand in her hostesses' arrangements just as she has often taken a hand in directing the cameramen in the campaign.

Mrs. John Quincy Adams, of Elizabethton, dressed to represent her husband's distinguished ancestress, in white wig and trailing old-fashioned print dress, made a special impression on the candidate's wife.

"The resemblance is clear," she said. "I knew I had seen her somewhere." Mrs. Thomas Jefferson, impersonated by another member of an early Tennessee family, she found "not so easy to recognize."

THE text of Herbert Hoover's speech at Elizabethton, Tenn. is printed on Page four of this section.

MISSOURI SAILOR IS KILLED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The Navy Department was advised today that Virgil T. Straight of Eldorado Springs, Mo., died yesterday at the Naval Air Station at Pearl Harbor, H. I., of injuries received in an encounter with a shipmate, James C. Rucker of Knoxville, Tenn. The dispatch said a court of inquiry had been appointed to investigate.

DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES ON FLIGHT TO TEXAS

Starts From Lakehurst, N. J., With 40 Aboard, for Legion Convention at San Antonio.

By the Associated Press.

NAVAL AIR STATION, Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 6.—The giant dirigible Los Angeles left its hangar here shortly after midnight to attend the American Legion convention in San Antonio, Tex. She carried a crew of men and officers, with Lieut.-Commander H. V. Wiley in command.

Although it had not been planned to start on the long trip before Monday, favorable weather conditions prompted the start tonight.

It was expected that the ship would be tied to a mooring mast at Fort Worth, Tex., by Monday morning.

It was said that, although the ship probably would travel approximately 4000 miles on the trip, it was inflated and fueled in an ordinary training flight with no extra preparations.

No attempt would be made to make a fast trip to Fort Worth, it was announced, but the estimated 1940 miles would be covered by Monday morning, at the latest, according to plans.

This flight is the longest the dirigible completed a 600-mile jaunt to France Field, Panama Canal Zone, on March 1.

Word was received from the dirigible as it passed over Atlantic City, Jersey, and it was believed its course would take it over Richmond, Va., and then south to Spartanburg, S. C., and Atlanta.

HICKMAN IN FINAL APPEAL

Petition on Way to U. S. Supreme Court by Air Mail.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 6.—The appeal to the United States Supreme Court on behalf of William Edward Hickman, Los Angeles slayer, was on its way to Washington today by air mail. Hickman signed the document at Quentin prison last night.

Filing of the appeal will automatically postpone Hickman's execution date, set for Oct. 19, unless the court takes action before that date, he will be hanged at the time set. Hickman was convicted of kidnaping and murdering 12-year-old Marion Parker, daughter of a Los Angeles banker.

VETERAN APPEALS WHEN PASSPORT IS DENIED TO WIFE

L. M. Ulrich, Wealthy New Haven Man, to Carry Case to U. S. Supreme Court.

JUDGE REFUSES MANDAMUS WRIT

Visa Refused Mrs. Ulrich, Now in Germany, on Charge She Was Once Convicted of Theft.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—When a writ of mandamus was denied him, which would have forced the State Department to issue a passport visa to his German wife, barred from the country on the ground of "moral turpitude," John Munsell Ulrich of New Haven, Conn., through counsel, turned to the United States Supreme Court today in his fight to bring his wife to the United States.

Joseph Koletsky, New Haven attorney acting for Ulrich, has filed a petition for the writ in the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, bringing the action against Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg and Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. Associate Justice Wendell P. Stafford denied the writ, whereupon Koletsky filed bond for appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

Ulrich's wife was Anna Minna Venzke, daughter of a German officer. Ulrich married her in Berlin in December, 1927, after he had filed notice with immigration officials of the United States that he intended to bring his bride to the United States. The passport visa had been authorized by Secretary Kellogg when Carelton Dailey Hurst, American Consul in Berlin, refused to issue it. Hurst said that Miss Venzke had been convicted of larceny of articles of clothing from a roommate several years before, and that this constituted violation of the "moral turpitude" clause of the immigration act.

Ulrich, member of a wealthy New Haven family, is a grandson of the late Gail Borden, condensed milk magnate. Ulrich served in the World War and declared that scores of war veterans had an unquestioned right to enter this country.

A Warrior for Democracy

A recent Portrait of Franklin D'Roosevelt

When he was nominated for Vice President in 1920

F. D. ROOSEVELT GAMELY RESPONDS TO PARTY'S CALL

the election of James A. O'Gorman to the United States Senate. The Tammany candidate was William F. Sheehan. They told him it was hopeless. He set his jaw, and O'Gorman was elected.

In the Wilson administration he was Assistant Secretary of the Navy. He was a fiend for work, able, honest and brilliant. Toward the close of the war he was sent to Europe to personally supervise the navy's work.

Then, in 1920, he was named by his party for the vice presidency. It was the year of the Harding landslide, and he went down to defeat.

Stricken by Infantile Paralysis.

It was during the next year, in the summer of 1921, that the worst opponent of all struck him down. At his summer camp on the Canadian island of Campobello, N. B., he lay ill for weeks with infantile paralysis. When the disease had run its course he was paralyzed from the waist down.

Great things had been expected of him. It seemed that these expectations were doomed. He was told he had practically no chance of ever recovering.

So he set his fighting spirit against his affliction. He refused to let himself be counted out. In three years he had become the leader in the fight to win the presidential nomination for Gov. Smith. Swaying on crutches, he stood in Madison Square Garden in the summer of 1924 and placed the Governor's name in nomination.

Since then he has striven with unabating zeal to recover his health. Having learned that a fellow sufferer from infantile paralysis had greatly improved by constant bathing in the waters at Warm Springs, Ga., he went there. At the end of a year he found he could move his legs. In another year he was able to leave his cruitches and get about with heavy sticks and a brace. When he appeared on the platform at Houston to put Gov. Smith's name in nomination for the second time, the improvement was called startling. He was strong, and there was fine color in his cheeks, and in his blue eyes the light of his old courage.

After the convention, he went back to Warm Springs, which he had bought in the meantime, and where he had established a clinic for others sufferings from the same disability as his.

His health was building up. It seemed only a matter of time, now, before he would be as strong and as able-bodied as ever. The prospect delighted him. In the course of his cure, he had become one of the crack swimmers of Warm Springs, using his powerful arms and shoulders to pull himself through the water.

The call to serve as Democratic nominee for the governorship of New York State came to him at Warm Springs. At first he said no. He was not persuaded that he would not be able to serve even better by waiting a few years until he was cured and then entering politics again with his old-time dash and vigor.

Smith Made Personal Appeal.

But on Tuesday night Gov. Smith called him on the long-distance telephone, and told him how much he was needed. The convention had sought in vain for a man who could match him in fearlessness, honesty, intelligence and courage, and who could bear half so well the party standard and lend so much strength to the Smith campaign. He was needed, and needed badly. Not only was he Gov. Smith's choice as a man who could and would carry on his own State policies, but he was a man to whom the whole State could look for an able and honest governorship.

It was past midnight, when, after a consultation with his wife, who had nursed him through his illness, he told the Governor he would run. That telephone conversation marked the return into active politics of a man whose whole career has been one of unselfish and cleanly fought battles for the people.

That he is making this return as a personal sacrifice there is no doubt. But that, as has been charged, he was forced to cast himself on the altar of political expediency is not true. He was the first to deny it. He was not risking anything, he said. He is retarding his cure. That is all.

And he is not doing it because Gov. Smith asked him to. He is doing it because he is convinced that the voice of Gov. Smith on the telephone was the voice of his native State, calling him to come home and make the fight.

A Power for the Party.

His acceptance will mean much to the Democratic party. It does away forever with the Tammany charge against Gov. Smith, and gives the democracy in New York State a bold, high-minded leader.

So eminently well fitted for the governorship is he that two of the strongest Hoover supporters among New York City's newspapers, the Sun and the Telegram, came out for Roosevelt for Governor within 24 hours after his nomination.

The Sun in its editorial comment on the nomination "believes that the people of New York are fortunate to have the opportunity to vote for Mr. Roosevelt."

"Among men in public life Franklin D. Roosevelt is one in a million," the Telegram said editorially. "Throughout a long public career he has proved himself a statesman worthy of any honor that this State or this nation might bestow on him," and declared it "inconceivable that New York will fail to take advantage of the opportunity to secure so rare a public servant."

The following day, the Telegram amplified its first editorial in support of Roosevelt with the following comment: "No partisan stretch of the imagination is required to use such words as clean, honest, capable, patriotic, idealistic and just in describing his qualifications."

It is, perhaps, just these qualifications which led him to throw his own interests into the discard and prepare to enter a rigorous political campaign.

SIDELIGHTS ON PLANS FOR WORLD SERIES GAMES IN ST. LOUIS

Students in Soldan and probably most of the St. Louis high schools will have opportunity, beginning tomorrow, to follow the remaining world series adventures of the Cardinals and the Yankees by radio, a concession which their teachers think will keep them at school and away from street corner loud speakers in school hours.

Friday's game was reported to students at Soldan, Roosevelt and other high schools by the physics department receiving sets, which were set up in the auditorium. The entertainment proved wholesome and rather an aid to school work than a distraction, Principal Powell of Soldan said yesterday.

Broadcasting began during the lunch hour at Soldan. At the following assembly period, students were told to report to classrooms and study halls as usual, but that those who had idle periods might obtain permission to return to the auditorium for those periods and follow the game.

Many did so. Teachers sent messengers to keep the working students posted on the program of play.

Many classrooms kept the score inning by inning.

Diamond pins will be presented to the Cardinal players at the home plate, by the Mayor's reception committee, 10 minutes before the beginning of this afternoon's game. By the ruling of Judge Landis, baseball commissioner, this will be the one and only ceremonial presentation to take place at Sportsman's Park during the present world series.

The pins, valued at $100 each, have gold enamel figures of the Red Bird and of a bat, the latter containing the diamond. Similar trophies, of somewhat less value, will be presented to the club's office staff and scouts. The pins were purchased from the fund raised by the Mayor's committee for welcoming the Cardinals on their homecoming yesterday.

Woman Robbed of $325.

Mrs. Clara Feinberg lost $325, the day's receipts from her fish market at 1445 Hodiamont avenue, when a robber entered her store last night.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6. — Mrs. Helen B. Acosto, wife of Bert Acoscta, trans-Atlantic flyer, today filed suit in Supreme Court at Mineola, L. I., against Dorothy Walker of Beechhurst, L. I., for $150,000 for alleged alienation of affections. The Acostas formerly lived at Rockville Centre, where the pilot still makes his home. Mrs. Acosta is living with a friend, Mrs. Ada McVeigh, at Hempstead.

Mrs. Acosta recites that Dorothy Walker "wrongfully, visiously and wickedly gained the affections of Bert Acosta," and "uprsued him by offers of money and otherwise to induce him to leave the plaintiff and live with the defendant at her home in Beechhurst, L. I."

Mrs. Acosta says she has suffered great distress of mind and body since last May, when the alleged alienation began.

Zinc and Lead Unchanged.

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 6.—Prices remained unchanged in the tristate zinc and lead district for the week ending today. Sinc ore was steady at $40 for the twenty-first consecutive week and lead ore ermained firm at $85 a ton. Demand for zinc was fair, with a purchase of $640 tons being reported. This was considerably less than production, which probably exceeded 11,000 tons.

MAN IN ROOF-TOP FLIGHT FALLS 45 FEET

Roy La Brott Runs When Rival for Bride He Won Calls at His Home.

The sudden apearance last night of the rival from whom, three months ago, he won his present wife, caused Roy La Brott, 21-year-old waiter of 2103 Olive street, to set out upon a flight over several roof-tops which ended when he tripped over a chimney wire and fell 45 feet to the ground.

He suffered a fractured spine and fractured pelvis and was taken to City Hospital where his condition is critical.

Mrs. Katherne La Brott, his bride, told police that a man had paid her court up to the time of her marriage and had since shown resentment toward her husband. This man, she said, drove up to the house where she lived with La Brott last night, in company with another man. As the two men get out of their car, she urged La Brott to run, she said, fearing they would harm him.

La Brott fled up two flights of stairs, pushed open a skylight and jumped out on the roof.

La Brott slid for the edge of the roof and jumped across a gangway to the house at 2105 Olive street. Still running, he crossed that roof, and in leaping for the next, at 2107 Olive street, caught his ankle in a chimney wire and fell.

While La Brott was making for the roof, police said, the man and his companion rang the front doorbell, inquired for him, and when told that he was not at home, departed.

HAY SPEAKS AT CAPITOL

Senatorial Nominee Says People Demand a Change.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 6. —Charles M. Hay, Democratic nominee for the United States Senate, attacked the Republican administration of the last seven and a half years in an address here tonight and urged the election of Gov. Alfred E. Smith and the State Democratic ticket to bring about an "honest and better government." He spoke in the House of Representatives chamber in the State capitol.

Assailing the Republican National administration for the oil scandals, the Veterans' Bureau disclosures, the "plight" of the farmer, "failure" to work out any sound water power and utilities policy while the "power trust develops into a menace," and "failure to enforce prohibition," Hay asserted that there is "an imperative demand from the people that a change be made." Hay attacked Roscoe C. Patterson, Republican candidate for the Senate, for declaring in his recent speech at Springfield opening the campaign, that "the records of achievement of the past seven and a half years are accomplishments of the highest order."

Strikers and Police Hurt in Clash.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 6.—Several policemen were wounded and many textile strikers were hurt at Gierz today when a parade of strikers clashed with the officers as they neared a factory. The strike, which seeks increased wages for the mill hands, is spreading and 90,000 workmen now are out.

Fractures Skull in Fall.

Thomas Moran, 60 years old, fell over a banister from the second floor of 1032 South Eighth street last night. His skull, right collarbone and several ribs were fractured. His condition is serious.

More Women Than Men Registered In Two Wards

Tabulation in 22 of 28 Divisions of City Shows This Result in the Fifteenth and Twenty-Eighth.

In two of 22 St. Louis wards more women voters than men are registered. A tabulation of race and sex in 22 of the 28 wards, completed last night, shows that in the Twenty-eighth Ward there are 8775 registered women voters and only 8068 men. Similarly in the Fifteenth Ward, there are 7010 women and 6575 men registered.

The heavy registration of women in all of the 22 wards is credited to the activity of women's organizations.

The tabulation of white voters who registered in these wards shows: First, 8780 men, 6913 women; Second, 6173 men, 4343 women; Third, 5436 men, 3406 women; Fourth, 3115 men, 1551 women; Fifth, 2627 men, 672 women; Seventh, 6259 men, 3703 women; Eighth, 7051 men, 4166 women; Ninth, 5935 men, 3560 women; Tenth, 6325 men, 3907 women; Twelfth, 7532 men, 5519 women; Thirteenth, 12,769 men, 9929 women; Fourteenth, 6097 men, 5871 women; Fifteenth, 6569 men, 7009 women; Sixteenth, 4860 men, 3583 women; Eighteenth, 5359 men, 4140 women; Nineteenth, 3334 men, 2548 women; Twentieth, 4830 men, 3743 women; Twenty-first, 6088 men, 5322 women; Twenty-second, 9551 men, 8327 women; Twenty-third, 3366 men, 2579 women; Twenty-eighth, 7972 men, 8724 women.

The ratio of men voters to women voters registered in the Negro race was about the same.

Of the voters listed in the five wards, 2752 of the men and 1360 of the women are Negroes. The tabulation will be carried out for all the wards.

In the last registration 362,847 men and women qualified as voters, exceeding by more than 60,000 the registration total of 1924, and by more than 45,000 the registration of 1920.

The increase has been asscribed not only to city growth, but to an awakening of interest in politics among women who have never before voted. The heightened interest is generally due to the religious and prohibition issues of the presidential campaign.

ONE OF CREW IN 'LIQUOR' BOAT SHOT IN COAST GUARD CHASE

Federal Officers Say Launch Off California Coast Threw Cargo Overboard.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Oct. 6—Willis Young of Wilmington, Cal., member of a crew in a launch found speeding off the California coast by the coast guard cutter "Imp,' befor dawn today' was shot and seriously wounded when the federal vessel opened fire.

The coast guard officers said the launch was liquor laden and proceeding without lights when haled but refused to stop. In the chase that followed the Government men said the launch crew cast all the liquor overboard before surrendering. It was during the chase that the coast guard vessel opened fire.

Edgar Holt, a member of the launch crew, was held in the San Pedro Jail tonight, pending investigation.

RECORD AT SHRINE HOSPITAL

Last Month 45 Children Were Treated and Discharged.

Forty-five children — a record number—were treated and discharged at the Shriners' Hospital for crippled children, Kingshighway boulevard and Clayton avenue, it was announced yesterday in the monthly report of that institution. This number was nearly half of the hospital's capacity of 100 patients.

Applications for treatment were received from 218 others, who could not be taken because of the limited facilities of the hospital.

Larry Semon Dangerously Ill.

By the Associated Press.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Oct. 6.—Larry Semon, motion picture comedian and director and former vaudeville performer, is dangerously ill with pneumonia at a Mojave Desert sanitarium, near Victorville. A message from Dr. H. Garcelon, Semon's physician, said that the actor had declined rapidly and that he was very low. Earlier in the day a report came from the desert town stating that someone, purporting to be Dr. Garcelon, had telephoned that Semon had died. Semon was removed to the sanitarium from his ranch where he had been ill for several months.

25-WEEK STRIKE ENDS BY TEXTILE MEN'S VOTE

New Bedford Unions Accept 5 Per Cent Wage Cut as Compromise.

By the Associated Press.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Oct. 6. —The textile workers' strike which has kept goods and workers idle in this city for 25 weeks ended today. By vote of unions reported in the Textile Council, the strikers accepted a compromise agreement under which wages will be reduced 5 per cent and the manufacturers hereafter will give the workers 30 day's notice of any proposed general wage cut. The strike was called as a protest against an announced 10 per cent wage reduction.

The New Bedford Manufacturers' Association arranged a meeting for tonight, presumably to discuss plans for reopening the mills.

The strike was the longest in this city in 32 years. Although there were few really serious disturbances, picketing was constant and as a result of the stand taken by the authorities against mass picketing, there were large numbers of arrests. Large numbers of the picketers were fined or received jail sentences in the District Court, most of them taking appeals to the higher courts.

The majority of the strikers were members of craft unions affiliated with the Textile Council, an organization which for many years has been recognized by the Manufacturers' Association. Early in the strike a new organization calling itself the Textile Mill Committee made its appearance and conducted rival picket lines, making demands which were not sanctioned by the Textile Council.

The Textile Council in its conduct of the strike, including the raising of funds, was supported by the United Textile Workers of America. The task of caring for the 30,000 strikers from 27 mills and their families was a heavy one and in addition to the union relief funds the city departments were forced to extend much aid. Landlords for the most part were lenient in their demands for rent and store keepers extended liberal credit to the strikers.

TEXT OF SPEECH MADE BY HOOVER AT ELIZABETHTON, TENNESSEE

Declares Change in Policies Of National Government Can Bring Only Disaster

Makes Plea That Voters Should Not Be Bound by Regional Prejudice in Voting for President.

By the Associated Press.

ELIZABETHTON, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Following is the text of Herbert Hoover's address here today:

I am proud to have been invited as your guest in this celebration of your progress and this review of your part in national history.

When Southerners go North or Northerners go South to deliver public addresses they seem to feel it necessary to first launch an explanation that all lines of sectionalism have disappeared in the United States. I am from the West where our people are proud to be the melted product of both the North and the South. Our accent differs from that of the people of Alabama and Vermont but we have the same hearts, the same kind of homes, the same ideals and aspirations. Every morning and evening we read the same news; every night we listen by radio to the same voices. Our mental and physical frontiers are gone. It happens that we need geographical divisions for statistical and descriptive use but otherwise we could leave this question to orators and humorists.

Renewing National Ideals.

Your celebration today raises many memories of our national beginnings. Patriotism is of many inspirations. It receives refreshment from many springs. None are more powerful than our traditions of service, of suffering, of accomplishment and of heroism. The rivulets of these traditions from every part of our country in the course of history merge into that great stream of national memories which is the constant refreshment of national ideals. These memories are inded the imponderable force which builds and cements our national life.

To the Westerners, appreciative of history and tradition, this occasion presents a double significance. As you have shown today, this locality was once the nation's frontier. Here were enacted some of the most stirring scenes in the brilliant drama of our pioneer era. Seven years before the declaration of independence there came to the banks of the Watauga—which was then the Far West—the first permanent settlers. They were soon followed by others from the back country of North Carolina.

In these settlements, frontiersmen remote from the centers of civilization, freed by difficult distance from the sway of all governmental authority, voluntarily created their own form of popular government. They erected what was to all practical purposes a free and independent state, under their own Constitution. In the articles of the Watauga Association were implanted some of the great principles which later found permanent lodgment in our fundamental law. Similar associations sprang into being in other parts of these mountains. Historians of our frontier agree that no more striking proof of the native capacity of our early Americans for local self-government was ever given than by these associations.

Battle of King's Mountain.

They not only created a government; the Watauga men, determined in their independence, rallied to the improvised army during the revolution which at King's Mountain struck a decisive blow for the colonial cause. They, with their compariots from Virginia and the Carolinas, attacked and disastrously defeated a formidable army under competent leadership, fading again into the forest as soon as their task was accomplished. No battle more dramatic or marked by courag and skill of a higher order has been fought on this continent. It was a turning point in the revolutionary war. It compelled the retirement of Gen. Cornwallis toward the coast, revived the flagging spirits of the discouraged colonists, and opened the way for the final victory at Yorktown. I wish to compliment you upon your pageant commemorating these achievements.

Pioneers of the South.

These states in common with those to the north began the greatest drama of all history—the spread of Americans from a feeble foothold on the Atlantic seaboard to the most powerful nation in the world in scarce two centuries. The great west was won not by the action of the Government, but by the individual effort of intrepid and courageous men from all these Atlantic States. They builded their own self government. Tennessee, Kentucky and Texas were gained by pioneers under Sevier, Robertson, Clark, Boone, Houston and others. They won not only homes for themselves, but for a long time determined the course of history westward. The Mississippi River ceased to be a boundary and year after year the powerful pulsation of westward expansion throbbed with heroism and sacrifice. They were ready to fight for the simple right of self government. Gen. Fremont, the pathfinder to the Pacific Coast, came from Georgia, and true to tradition he fought for and erected the first self-government of my own state of California.

Claims Ancestral Link.

To me it is an inspiration to be standing on this spot, for in a sense I have a common heritage with you. The earliest ancestor of whom I have record, Andrew Hoover, a settler in Maryland, about two centuries ago, migrated to North Carolina and built his home a hundred miles from this spot. In Randolph County of that State he did his part in building the community, and his grave lies in the little burying ground of what was then the Uharrie River farm. His son, my great-great-grandfather, was part of that movement which started West from your frontier.

As Secretary of Commerce, I have been profoundly interested in the amazing progress of the South in this past seven and one-half years. In order that the department might assist to the fullest extent in that progress we increased our branch offices in the South from three in 1920 to 29 in 1928. As a result of the contact thus established we were able to observe your increasing prosperity.

Program of the South.

The record is impressive. There are in the South about 8,000,000 families and in this period they have shown increase in number by perhaps 10 per cent. Contrasted with this the manufacturing output has increased by over 60 per cent. The number of employes has increased by over 30 per cent. The value of crops has increased by over 45 per cent. The shipments from Southern ports have increased by 50 per cent; the net income of your railways has grown by over 140 per cent; electrical power in use has been increased by 125 per cent. The postal receipts have grown by 45 per cent.

That this enormous increase in wealth and production has had a wide distribution can be seen on every hand. It is indicated by increased wages and decreased cost of living; in 20 per cent of new homes, in a gain of 150 per cent of automobiles and 30 per cent in telephones. Life insurance in force has increased by 70 per cent and bank clearings have increased by 60 per cent. Depositors in savings banks have more than doubled. Building and loan association assets have increased 180 per cent. In nearly every case these percentages exceed the corresponding increase in the country as a whole. All this has been accomplished in seven and a half years.

A Record of Progress.

In every phase of life the South is moving forward. New vistas of betterment are opening. The ability and energy of the people is constantly growing and is of more dynamic scope. They have engaged in every form of useful community effort to improve both the material and spiritual side of life. I have had the honor to be president of the Better Homes Association. In that organization over 2000 towns have actively co-operated throughout the South during this past year. Fourteen out of 24 of the annual prizes given by this association for the most successful work during the last five years have been awarded to the southern committees for leadership in bettering homes. Moreover, as director in various national committees devoted to increase of playgrounds and public parks, I have had occasion to note with gratification the extraordinary progress made throughout the South in the provisions for wholesome recreation. You have not been negligent of education. In the past seven years the attendance in high schools has increased by 91 per cent and in institutions of higher learning by 70 per cent. Your moral and spiritual foundations have been strengthened.

Government's Part.

I know that the people of the South will agree with me that these results could never have been attained but for helpful co-operation and sound policies in the national Government, and that change of these policies can bring only distress and disaster.

The South possesses vast resources of raw materials and electric power, easy access to the sea, a great reserve of labor, a wealth of soil, a moderate climate. Most of these factors have been here always. Such resources exist in many other countries, but if they are not accompanied by fine leadership, by intellect and character as well as sound policies of government, there could be no such development as we have witnessed in the South during this last seven years. That leadership has not been by immigration from the North. It has been the product of Southern men and women. The South has again proved to have in her blood that strain of leadership and fortitude which contributed so much to found our republic and so much to build our own West.

I realize that I come here as the candidate of a political party with whose policies many of you within my sight and many within the sound of my voice have often differed. I respect your views regarding that difference. Yet so closely welded in common interest are the pressing issues of our nation today that it should be no longer unusual for a citizen of any region to vote for a President who represents the principles which correspond with his convictions.

Always Fellow Countrymen.

Our national officials are chosen in order that they may protect the political and economic health of the American people. In a contest such as this there is no place for personal bitterness. A great attribute of our political life has been the spirit of fair play with which our presidential contests have been waged in former years and the sportsmanlike spirit in which we have accepted the result. We prove ourselves worthy of self-government and worthy of confidence as officials in proporton as we keep these contests free from abuse, free from misrepresentation and free from words and acts which carry regret. Whatever the result, we remain fellow countrymen.

No better illustration of true sportsmanship in American politics can be found than in the historic contest waged in this State between two brilliant brothers, one of whom honors us with his presence at this meeting, the beloved Alfred Taylor of Tennessee. In the annals of chivalry no chapter portrays human nature to better advantage than your own "war of the roses" in which Alfred Taylor, the Republican, and Robert Tayolr, the Democrat, engaged in fierce political combat, attracted the attention of the whole nation, and stirred this whole State from center to circumference. Yet in the heat of strife they kept in mind the advice of that good mother who had admonished her two stalwart sons never to forget the tie of brotherhood.

It is in that spirit I wish to discuss the problems that concern our country and the methods I believe necessary to obtain this solution.

Post-War Problems.

Our country has entered upon an entirely new era. For 14 years our attention in public life has been mainly given to the great war and recontsruction from it. These 14 years have witnessed a revolution in our world relations, in many phases of our economic life and our relations of government to them. Due to the ingenuity and hard work of our people and the sound policies in government we have come since the war to be the greatest reservoir of the world's wealth. We have transformed ourselves from a country borrowing capital from abroad to the foremost lender of capital to foreign countries.

Our people, growing in efficiency and productive power, are pressing for expansion of world markets. Cmpetition for these markets grows keener each year. Our increasing foreign trade has penetrated into every country in the world. Political diseases arising from the war misery of foreign countries have at times disturbed us by their infection of certain of our people. The poverty of Europe presses huge immigration toward us. We still have unsettled debts due to us from the war. For all these reasons our international relations have vastly increased.

Our Responsibility for Peace.

By our growth of wealth and power we have a great burden of responsibility for the peace of the world. Abolition of the liquor traffic has become a part of our fundamental law and great problems of enforcement and obedience to law have arisen from it. From the violence of the war we have inherited increase in crime. Technicalities of court procedure have been used to defeat justice and to aid law violators. The inventor of the gas engine has brought the automobile and the airplane. It has shortened distances, but it has brought new problems in roads and traffic. Discoveries in electricity have meant an immense expansion in power and communication which bring also their problems of regulation to protect public rights.

The war has vastly increased the expenditures of the government. The assessment of taxes and expenditures of public monies have come to bear a vital part in business stability. During these years we have adopted a measure of federal control of credit. Errors in that delicate adjustmnt can cause us fabulous losses. The war has dislocated our transportation relations both within our country and with foreign countries. Development of inland waterways, of merchant marine and consolidation of railways are forced upon us.

Economic Questions.

More acute than all are the readjustments in the world's producing and consuming power. Great expansion of agricultural production in Canada and the southern hemisphere combined with increasing efficiency and larger production by our own farmers have rendered unstable those branches of our agriculture which are dependent upon foreign markets. These circumstances have brought a long train of difficulties to the American farmer.

With fewer men needed upon the farm and with more needed in other lines of production our great cities have, within this 14 years, a little less than doubled in population with resultant social problems. Increasing skill and prosperity have brought us more material comfort and greater leisure but also serious questions as to how we should use our leisure time. New inventions, including the automobile and the radio, have brought us into closer relations with our neighbors, and given us a keener knowledge of each other, a broader vision of the world and higher ambitions. This higher standard of living this new prosperity, is dependent upon an economic system vastly more intricate and delicately adjusted than ever before. It now must be kept in perfect tune if we would not, through its dislocation have a breakdown in employment and the standards of living of our people. From all this, new moral and spiritual as well as economic probems crowd upon us.

Our Government was created in the belief that economci activities—that is the forces of business and commerce—would translate themselves into widely distributed public welfare if left along by the Government. The Government has come more and more to touch this delicate web at a thousand points. We indeed wish the Government to leave it alone to the utmost degree, but yearly the relations of government to national prosperity become more and more intimate, regardless of what we wish or think. All this places a greater strain upon the flexibility of our Government, and should give us deep concern over every extension of its authority lest we overburden it to the breaking point.

I wish to remind you of something which may sound humble and commonplace. But it vibrates through every hope of the future. It is this—the unit of American life is the family and the home. It is the economic unit as well as the moral and spiritual unit. But it is more than this. It is the beginning of self-government. It is the throne of our highest ideals. It is the source of the spiritual energy of our people. For the perfecting of this unit of national life we must bend all our material and scientific ingenuity. For the attainment of this end we must lend every energy of the Government.

The Test of Government.

I have before emphasized that the test of our Government is what it does to insure that the home is secure in that material benefit and comfort; what it does to keep that home free from bureaucratic domination; what it does to open the door of opportunity to every boy and girl within it; what it does in building moral safeguards and strengthening moral and spiritual inspiration. From the homes of America must emanate that purity of inspiration only as a result of which we can succeed in self-government. I speak of this as a basic principle that should guide our national life. I speak of it as the living action of government in the building of a nation. I speak of it as the source from which government must itself rise to a higher and higher standards of perfection from year to year.

I cannot, within the limits of time, discuss in detail the policies of our Government or the solution of the multitude of issues that confront us and the attitude of my party and myself toward them. I shall mention shortly those which have more particular interest to the South.

As never before does the keeping of our economic machine in tune depend upon wise policies in the administrative side of the Government. And from its stability do we assure the home against unemployment and preserve its security and comfort.

Quotes Clay on Tariff.

I advocate strengthening of the protective tariff as Henry Clay of Kentucky advocated; not as an abstract economic theory but as a practical and definite policy of protecting the standards of living of the American family. The purpose of the tariff is not to balance the books of business corporations but to ifeguard the family budget. With the increasing pressure from countries of lower standards of living it has become the fundamental safeguard of the American workman and American farmer. I wish to see complete protection for the farmers of our home market. It is vital to the South as well as to other parts of the country. It would produce a needed further diversification of Southern agriculture. A retreat to the Underwood tariff schedules on farm produde would ruin millions of farmers today.

And likewise the great manufacturing industries of the South are dependent upon it. Your vast spinning industry, your iron and steel industries are the product of it. No more beneficent exhibit of the result of the protective tariff act passed in 1922 exists than in this very city. Here factories are in course of erection and expansion whose establishment within the United States is due solely to that tariff act. Directly and indirectly they will provide an improved livelihood to more than 15,000 homes. If it were not for that protection these goods would be imported today as the product of foreign labor.

We must continue our endeavor to restore economic equality to those farm families who have lagged behind in the march of progress.

Federal Farm Board Plan.

In the past seven and a half years Congress has passed more than a score of constructive acts in direct aid of the farmer and the improvement of his marketing system. They have contributed greatly to strengthen the agricultural industry. Our party has undertaken to go further than this and to still further reorganize farmers' marketing systems, placing it on a basis of greater stability and security. I may repeat these proposals.

We stand specifically pledged to create a Federal Farm Board of men sympathetic with the problem, to be clothed with powers and resources with which not only to further aid farmers' co-operatives and assist generally in solving the multitude of different farm problems which arise from all quarters of our nation, but in particular to build up with initial advances of capital from the Government, farmer-owned and farmer-controlled stabilization corporations which will protect the farmer from depressions and the demoralization of summer and periodic surpluses. Such an instrumentality should be able to develop as years go on the constructive measures necessary to solve the new farmers' problems that will inevitably arise. It is no proposal of subsidy or fee or tax upon the farmer. It is a proposal to assist the farmer onto his own feet, into control of his own destinies. This is not a theoretical formula. It is a business proposition designed to make farming more profitable. No such far-reaching and specific proposal has ever been made by a political party on behalf of any industry in our history. It marks our desire for establishment of farmers' stability and at the same time maintain his independence and individuality.

I do not favor any increase in immigration. Restriction protects the American home from widespread unemployment. At the same time we must humanize the laws but only within the present quotas.

Wishes Dry Law to Succeed.

The purpose of the eighteenth amendment is to protect the American home. A sacred obligation is imposed on the President to secure its honest enforcement and to eliminate the abuses which have grown up around it; I wish it to succeed.

I believe in continued development of good roads. They bring the farmers' produce to market more cheaply and by them we gain in neighborly contacts and uplift of spirit.

I advocate the enlarged and vigorous development of our inland waterways because they tend to diversify industry, they cheapen the transportation of farm produce and they bring larger returns to the farm.

I rejoice in the enactment of legislation authorizing the construction of flood control works in the Mississippi and other rivers for they give protection to thousands of homes and open the opportunity for new homes. We should complete these works with the utmost energy.

Because three millions of our homes obtain their support from manufacture of articles which we import and export, we must continue to promote and defend our foreign trade.

We must assure a sound merchant marine to safeguard our overseas trade against foreign discrimination.

We must inexorably pursue the present policies of economy in government for through every tax reduction we leave more income in every home.

Waste Production.

It is vital that the Government continue its effort to aid in the elimination of waste production and distribution, through scientific research and by direct co-operation with business. By it we have made great gains in stability. From stability in business comes increased consumption of farm products, regularity of employment and certainty to the family budget.

We must maintain our navy and our army in such fashion that we shall have complete defense of our homes from even the fear of foreign invasion.

Our foreign policies must be ever directed to the cause of peace that we never again need sacrifice our sons on the field of battle.

To our veterans who gave freely of their all in times of danger we must continue to be not only just but generous in enacting and interpreting the laws for their relief.

For Swifter Justice.

To protect our people from violence at home we must revise our court procedure to produce swifter and surer justice and we should begin with the Federal Government.

I believe in the merit system of the civil service and I believe further that appointive offices must be filled by those who deserve the confidence and respect of the communities they serve.

It is absolutely essential to the moral development and the enlarged opportunity of the boys and girls in every home that we increasingly strengthen our public school system and our institutions of higher learning.

All legislation, all administrative action must stand the supreme test that it provide equal opportunity for all our citizens—not for any special group.

I do not favor any general extension of the Federal Government into the operation of business in competition with its citizens. It is not the system of Lincoln or Roosevelt. It is not the American system. It not only undermines initiative but it undermines state and local self-government. It is the destruction of state rights.

For Conserving Natural Resources.

Democracy, however, must be master in its own house. It can assure the conservation of our governmentally controlled natural resources in the interest of the people. It has demonstrated that by the power of regulation it can prevent abuse; it can and must control natural monopolies in full public interest. It can do so without abdicating the very principles upon which our nation has been founded and through which we have reached a standard of living and comfort unparalleled in the world. Violations of public interest by individuals or corporations should be followed by the condemnation and punishment they deserve, but this should not induce us to abandon progressive principles and substitute in their place deadly and destructive loctrines. There are local instances where the Government must enter the business field as a by-product of some great major purpose such as improvement in navigation, flood control, scientific research of national defense, but they do not vitiate the general policy to which we should adhere.

Biggest Business in World.

The President has primarily the great task of administering the biggest business in the world—the United States Government. It is a business involving an expenditure of $3,500,000,000 a year and the employment of hundreds of thousands of people. Its honest and efficient administration touches the welfare of our people to a degree perhaps as great as the legislative and political policies.

The President also has the responsibility of co-operating with Congress in the enactment of laws and securing their enforcement. In the determination of policies he is not only the leader of a party. He is more than this. He is the President of the whole people. He must interpret the conscience of America. He must guide his conduct by the idealism of our people. The presidency is no dictatorship. It is not intended to be. Safeguards are provided to prevent it. The fathers knew that men were not made for government but government for men—to aid and serve them. Our Government rests solely upon the will of the people; it springs from the people; its policies must be approved by the people.

Co-Operative Government.

From my experience in Government in the past years both in war and peace I have been profoundly impressed with the fact that we have increasing need to replace dictation by law to the fullest extent possible by co-operation between the administrative side of our Government and the forces in the community. Scores of activities organized in these years through co-operation with voluntary bodies both on the economic and welfare side have convinced me that far more of the problem of progress can be accomplished

LOWER MAJORITY FOR DEMOCRATS LIKELY IN BOONE

Instead of Usual 5000 or 6000 They Expect to Carry Stronghold by About 3000.

PROHIBITION AND RELIGION FACTORS

Disaffection Less Than It Was, However — Hay Credited With Decreasing Smith Opposition.

BY CURTIS A. BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Oct. 6.—Boone County, which ranks with Randolph as one of the strong Democratic counties of the State, looked to in each election to add materially to the Democratic total, is a trouble spot in the Smith campaign in Missouri, but in present indications not nearly so troublesome as it appeared a few weeks ago it would be.

It is customary for political party disaffection to be ironed out to some extent as election day approaches, and that trend is now apparent in Boone, but even the most enthusiastic Democratic partisans here does not venture the opinion the county will return its normal Democratic majority of from 5000 to 6000.

It apears more likely that this year the Democrats will lose in the neighborhood of 2000 votes, some of which will go to Hoover, but with the majority not cast on the presidency. There are informed Democrats here who believe the number will not exceed 1500, and some who think it may go as high as 2500. The disaffection appears to be considerably less than in 1922, when 3000 Democrats either did not vote in the Reed-Brewster senatorial contest or voted for Brewster.

Smith undoubtedly has the full Reed strength of the county, and in addition there are Democrats prominent in the anti-Reed movement of 1922 who are supporting Smith, among them, Col. Willard D. Vandiver and Mrs. Emily S. Harshe.

Religion and Prohibition.

Here, as elsewhere in the State where there is extensive anti-Smith sentiment among Democrats, religion is the outstanding reason, with prohibition a close second. This is a strong Baptist territory, and that is certain to tell in the elecion returns.

So strong was the anti-Catholic sentiment, particularly among the women, that until a week or so ago informed Democrats looked for a Smith loss in the county equaling that of the Reed campaign, but almost without exception these Democrats report a noticeable change in conditions, a change which they say they are confident will progress until election time.

One of them, known as particularly well informed on conditions in the county, said:

"This is a very strong Democratic territory. To get a Boone County Democrat to scratch his ticket takes some great emotional crisis. A good many of them apparently are going to vote emotionally this year. Most of us Democrats are for Smith, and those against him are gradually decreasing in number. We know our difficulty is not as great as it was in the Reed campaign. Then there was a personal hatred for Reed in the minds of thousands of Democrats. There is not that feeling toward Smith. We could not do anything in the Reed campaign. We are straightening out conditions to some extent in this campaign."

Charles M. Hay, Democratic nominee for Senator, is credited with decreasing the Smith opposition.

Boone is known as a dry county and undoubtedly is, but Collet, wet opponent of Hay in the primary, polled 2500 votes, which was fully 1000 more than it had appeared possible he could get.

Smith will not get any large number of Republican votes in Boone County. The Republican vote is small. He will get a few wet Republicans in Columbia, and reports from Hartsburg, a small town in the south part of the county, are that he will pick up a number there, but necessarily few in comparison with the Democratic votes he will lose.

Past Performance.

That Democrats up this way are thoroughly informed how to scratch the ticket was indicated in the Reed election. Reed carried the county by only 1416, while State Superintendent of Schools Lee on the same ticket carried it by 4097.

Davis won the county in 1924 over Coolidge by 5110 and Hawes carried it over Williams for Senator in 1926 by 4874.

In view of conditions Democrats are inclined to look for a Smith majority here of from 2700 to 3000.

The Democratic State ticket will run much stronger in Boone than will the national ticket and apparently will lose only those Democrats who do not go to the polls. There is no apparent opposition to any of the Democratic State candidates, and on the other hand, there are reports of Republicans who will vote the Democratic State ticket as a protest against the record of the Baker administration.

HOOVER MAKES DIRECT APPEAL FOR SOUTHERN VOTES

plished by voluntary action, assisted with co-operation by the Government, than has been supposed.

One test of our economic and social system is its capacity to cure its own abuses. New abuses and new relationships to the public interest will occur as long as we continue to progress. If we are to be wholly dependent upon government to cure every evil we shall by this very method have created an engaged and deadening abuse through the extension of bureaucracy and the clumsy and incapable handling of delicate economic forces. And much abuse has been and can be cured by inspiration and co-operation rather than by regulation of the Government.

I have had the good fortune of many journeys to the South and of many warm friendships there. To me came the opportunity of service during the long months of greatest disaster which has ever come to our own country outside of war—the Mississippi flood. In that service I came to even more fully appreciate not only the character and the devotion of the Southern people, but I found proof of a phase of our American life that I had long believed existed but was difficult of demonstration.

Stands Up for Main Street.

I, with other Americans, have perhaps unduly resented the stream of criticism of American life, the stature and character of our people. More particularly have I resented the sneers at Main Street. For I have known that in the cottages that lay behind the street rested the strength of our national character.

When it came to the organization necessary to meet that great catastrophe the pressure of time alone made it necessary to rely wholly upon the leadership, intelligence, the devotion, the sense of integrity and service of hundreds of towns and villages on the border of the flood. It was they who must undertake the instant work of rescue, the building of gigantic camps, the care of children, the provision of food, the protection of health of three-quarters of a million of homeless people. All that we who were in the direction could do was to outline the nature of the service that every town and village should perform, assist them with resources. In the face of that terrific problem that would test the stamina and quality of any people there was not a failure in a single case.

Flood Relief Work.

This perhaps stands out larger in my mind than in most men because under a similar conditions of great emergency I have had the duty to organize populations abroad. And in no country does there exist the intelligence, the devotion, the porbity, the ability to rise to a great emergency that exists in the main street of the American town and village. I do not wish to disparage the usefulness of Broadway, Pennsylvania avenue, or State street, but it is from Main street and its countryside that the creative energies of the nation must be replenished and restored.

I rejoice with you at the wonderful development in the South not alone because of the benefits which it has brought but because it represents something more fundamental. Many of our most difficult problems in national life have come because of the extraordinary growth of our great cities. History shows that crowded cities too often breed injustices and crimes, misery and suffering. The people of the South and of New England especially are showing the country how to join industry with agriculture to their mutual benefit. The importance of your effort and your success cannot be overstated.

How Government Can Help.

The Federal Government can assist this movement of wider spread of industry by scientific research, by surveys of the resources of each region and study of its interest and adaptability of various industries. And the Government can do more. It can directly assist not only the South but the whole nation in the course by the improvement of our roads, waterways and ports and by the encouragement of the spread of electrical power to factory and farm by building up of the merchant marine and expansion of the foreign markets natural to each section.

I have endeavored in this address to present to you the policies which have made and will make for prosperity of our country. They hold the hope of the final abolition of poverty. They make for better homes. They make for more individuality in life. They open the door of opportunity to boys and girls of town and country as well as of the great cities. From these accomplishments comes the lift of moral and spiritual life. From them comes an American, an America greater and higher in purpose.

AUSTRALIAN STRIKERS AND WORKERS CLASH

Government May Send 500 Armed Men to Brisbane to Maintain Order.

By the Associated Press.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Oct. 6.—Brisbane has become the scene of renewed violence in the strike of maritime and transport workers, and the Government today had under consideration an offer of 500 mounted men to go there to maintain order.

Ten volunteer workers were attacked in the capital of Queensland, and an ambulance carrying one of the more severely wounded to a hospital was stoned.

Charged with hindering transport, eight members of the crew of the steamer Fiona were sentenced to a month of hard labor each. Eight others of the ship's crew of 17 had been sentenced previously.

Although union workers have returned to the wharves at Adelaide, there seemed to be little prospect of a settlement on the question of Government registration of workers, which the trade unions oppose. Labor Premier Philipp Collier of Western Australia requested Premier S. M. Bruce of the Commonwealth of Australia to suspend the Federal transport workers' act in Western Australia. The Federal Premier refused and announced that the Government would not consider modification of the new law until Parliament met. He advised the workers to obey the law in the meantime and register.

Mrs. McPherson Visits Night Clubs.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, toured the night haunts of London last night and newspapers today quoted her as saying, "London is not so wild as Paris or as many other big cities I have been in."

As a result of columns of news and comment, Mrs. McPherson is the most advertised personality in London at the moment. All boxes at Albert Hall have been sold at West End Theater prices for her first sermon tomorrow. The rest of the great hall will be opened to the public several hours before the service.

AUSTRIAN CITY BARRICADED FOR RIVAL POLITICAL MEETINGS

Wiener Expects 60,000 Socialists and 25,000 of Heimwehr to Gather.

By the Associated Press.

WIENER NIEUSTADT, Austria, Oct. 6.—Barricaded and under armed patrols, this city is prepared for any event tomorrow from the meeting of two rival political organizations. Several thousand inhabitants have sought the more peaceful countryside but their numbers will be more than regained when 34 special trains begin depositing the demonstrators tomorrow morning.

The parties which have scheduled giant mass meetings are the Social Democrats, who predominate here and in the capital, and the Heimwehr, or Home Defense League of Christian Socialists, who control the present National Government. Although the Austrian Government declined to forbid the political meetings, it has placed in the city 12,000 troops and armed gendarmes and has commandeered the municipal hospital. Private property is shuttered and banked about by sandbags. Work ceased today in 443 factories.

The city, once residence of sovereigns of Imperial Austria, today was a flaming mass of red Socialist flags, blazing streamers, banners and festoons.

The Socialists are expected to show a strength of 60,000 tomorrow, while the Heimwehr will muster 25,000. The Heimwehr followers are mainly former soldiers and army officers. It is reported they possess secret arms. The Socialists are indifferently accoutered.

The Heimwehr wear khaki coats and knickerbockers. They profess as their aim the security of the State by saving Austria from Socialism.

Federal Police Commissioner Puere and others said they believed the rival meetings would be largely a battle of words rather than force.

FOKKER PLANES WILL BE BUILT IN ST. LOUIS

Branch Factory Part of Plan of New $7,000,000 Universal Aviation Corporation.

ORGANIZATION IS HOLDING COMPANY

It Will Foster Commercial Lines and Flying Schools and Have Rail and Bus Connections.

Manufacture of Fokker airplanes in St. Louis is one of the purposes of the new Universial Aviation Corporation, the formation of which, with assets of approximately $7,000,000, was announced here yesterday.

A branch factory to manufacture Fokker airplanes in St. Louis is one of the definite features of the plan, it was announced, and the corporation also definitely plans a new air route from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico with St. Louis as an important terminal on the route.

The new corporation will hold the stock of airplane manufacturing and transportation companies. It will also control and foster companies conducting flying schools, agencies distributing airplanes and accessories, concerns carrying mail and express matter, and furnishing commercial air service, in photography and other branches.

The Robertson Aircraft Corporation of St. Louis, now operating passenger and mail service on several routes out of St. Louis, in included in the group to be controlled by the new company.

Rail and Bus Connections.

John A. Love, president of Love, Bryan & Co., dealers in investment securities, announced the plans for the Universal Aviation Corporation. He said it would control companies now operating scheduled air lines between Cleveland, Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Duluth and Fargo, N. D. Reciprocal arrangements with the New York Central and Canadian Pacific railroad systems, and with the Motor Transit Corporation, owning bus lines, will facilitate the sale of air line tickets.

"Tri-motor 12-passenger Fokker transport planes with a cruising speed of 125 miles an hour have been ordered for delivery in the spring of 1929 to replace the single motor cabin planes now in use on the line between Cleveland, Chicago and the Twin Cities," Love said. "It is planned to extend the air lines of the Universal System to other important cities in the United States as rapidly as the demand for air transportation on the part of the public makes such projects commercially feasible.

To Make Fokker Planes Here.

"Upon completion of present financing, the Universal Corporation will own 50,000 shares of common stock of the Fokker Corporation of America, which company is engaged in the manufacture of several types of aircraft ranging from three-passenger sport-commercial planes to 32-passenger multi-motor transport planes. The company is one of the largest and best known in the world and its products are accorded one of the highest ratings for reliability and efficiency. Anthony H. G. Fokker of the Fokker Corporation has made what is probably the outstanding record in the world of achievement in the manufacture of airplanes. This fact is illustrated by the world-famous flights made by Fokker planes which include the first non-stop flight across the the American continent, made by Lieuts. MacReady and Kelly in 1923; the first flight from Holland to the Dutch East Indies; Commander Byrd's flight over the North Pole in 1926; the first flight from the United States to Hawaii in 1927; Commander Byrd's trans-Atlantic flight in 1927; and Marine Corps flight from Washington to Nicaragua. Fokker equipment is included in the present Byrd expedition to the South Pole."

Board of Directors.

The board of directors of the Universal Aviation Corporation will include: B. O. Mahaffey, director Mercantile Trust, president Silurian Oil Co., president W. C. McBride Co.; Talton T. Francis of Francis Bro. & Co.; Russell E. Gardner Jr., president Gardner Motor Car Co.; Anthony H. G. Fokker, president Fokker Aircraft Corporation of America; John A. Love, president Love, Bryan & Co.; J. Gates Williams, vice president and director Mississippi Valley Trust Co.; Arnold G. Stifel of Stifel-Nicolaus & Co., investment bankers, director Mississippi Valley Trust Co.; Frank Robertson, president and general manager Robertson Aircraft Corporation; Rufus R. Rand, Minneapolis, Minn., former owner Minneapolis Gas Co.; R. L. Griggs, president Northern National Bank of Duluth, Minn.; A. F. Pillsbury, vice president Pillsbury Milling Co. of Minneapolis; Louis F. Piper, capitalist, Minneapolis; Harry C. Piper of Lane, Piper & Jaffray, investment securities, Minneapolis.

AUTOMOBILE VICTIM

CHARLES TURLEY.

NEW YORK GANGSTER SHOT TO DEATH IN HIS NEW AUTO

Body Found Slumped Over Wheel; Crime Witnessed by Bakery Truck Driver.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Michael Abbatemarco, alias Mike Shots, who aspired to the power of the murdered Frankie Yale, as boss of Brooklyn gangsters, today was found slumped over the wheel of his new automobile in Bensonhurst, three bullets in his head.

The slayer was a slim, business-like young fellow, who, contrary to the custom among gangsters, had let Abbatemarco take him for a ride.

A few minutes after 4 a. m., Jack Simon, driver of a bakery truck, told police, he started walking down the street on his way to work. A large coupe came to a halt across the street and a slight, dapper youth, in a gray felt hat and a dark fall coat, jumped out.

Continuing on his way, Simon turned his head and saw the youth open a door of the coupe and draw a revolver. He pulled the trigger so rapidly that Simon heard only three of the four shots fired. Then he closed the door of the automobile, crossed the street and disappeared through a vacant lot.

SAN ANTONIO PREPARES TO ENTERTAIN LEGIONNAIRES

Army Kitchens Established, Extra Beds Provided and Bootleg Liquor Seized.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 6.—The tempo of preparations for the American Legion national convention, which opens here Monday, quickened today with the arrival of the national commander, Edward E. Spafford of Indianapolis. Five army kitchens were established in the business district, five extra registration booths were erected, hotels packed every possible bed into their rooms, and headquarters were established for every department and committee of the organization. The greatest influx of legionnaires is expected tomorrow.

During the day an army of crack peace officers borrowed from every city in the United States that has ever entertained a legion convention reported to local authorities for duty. Local authorities seized 24 cases of bootleg liquor today and arrested four men who were attempting to deliver their cargo in the business district.

Commander Spafford said he expected this to be the biggest convention in legion history. He arrived in a tri-motored airplane, one of the hundreds that are expected to visit the city for the convention.

A notable visitor who arrived today was Lady Edward Spencer Churchill, titled English woman, whose first request on reaching the city was to see a pickanniny. "I have heard so much about them," she said, "but I have never seen one." Her wish was immediately granted. She is here as an honor guest of the American Legion Auxiliary. She was bubbling over with comments on her first visit to the United States.

$1,000,000 STEEL PLANT FIRE

20 Rolling Mills Destroyed After Oil Explosion at Reading, Pa.

By the Associated Press.

READING, Pa., Oct. 6.—Loss in the fire at the Carnpenter Steel Works which began after an explosion near several huge fuel oil tanks, was estimated today at nearly $1,000,000. Figures on the loss had rapidly mounted from the first estimate of $200,000, as the flames spread. Twenty rolling mills were destroyed in the fire.

Before the smoke cleared away, and while firemen were still putting water on the two main groups of buildings destroyed, the wire Mills and the Hot Roll Mills, draftsmen were put to work making plans for new buildings and some 500 workmen started cleaning away the debr .

DIES OF INJURIES IN AUTO COLLISION

Charles Turley Killed and Five Others Hurt in University City.

Internal injuries suffered in an automobile collision at 2 a. m. yesterday caused the death of Charles Turley, clerk in a Clayton drug-store, two hours later at St. Luke's Hospital. Three others who were riding in his small coupe, the driver of the other machine, Joseph Welsh, 25, of 4063A Maffitt avenue, and his companion, Miss Mabel Brooks, 22, a nurse, were injured.

Turley, who was 25 years old and resided at 135 North Hanley road, Clayton, was driving east on Olive boulevard near Partridge avenue, University City, and Welsh was driving west in a rented coupe. The machine "sideswiped" when they attempted to pass.

Elmo Davis, 18, of 135 North Hanley road, Miss Anna Vernier, 15, of 1030 Yale avenue, Richmond Heights, and Miss Margaret Hensiek, 22, of 4210 Harris street, who were riding with Turley, were treated at Missouri Baptist Hospital for cuts and bruises. Welsh and Miss Brooks were taken to Midland Sanitarium for treatment by two passing chauffeurs, who later were held by University City police when a ukulele and two compacts from one of the wrecked machines were found in their possession.

G. O. P. INDEPENDENT TO RUN AGAINST LA FOLLETTE

Wisconsin State Senator of Conservative Faction Precipitates 3-Cornered Race.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 6. — The fight for the United States Senate seat of Robert M. La Follette, Progressive Republican leader, took a new turn with the independent candidacy of State Senator William H. Markham, who filed his papers last night.

Markham, affiliated with the so-called conservative faction of the party in Wisconsin, will oppose La Follette, who easily won the Republican nomination. M. K. Reilly of Fon Du Lac, former Congressman, is the Democratic nominee and a three-cornered race appeared possible, although Reilly said this week that he might withdraw from the race.

Markham is a member of the State Central Committee, and is a supporter of Herbert Hoover.

BERNARD P. BOGY SUES WOMAN AWARDED DAMAGES FROM HIM

Former G. O. P. Candidate Says Mrs. Ollie Welp Obtained Verdict by Deception.

Bernard P. Bogy, former Republican candidate for Congress in the Eleventh District, has filed suit in Circuit Court against Mrs. Ollie Welp, 5152 St. Louis avenue, to enjoin her from attempting to enforce a judgment for $7915.55 she holds against him. He also asks that the judgment b set aside on the ground that it was obtained by concealment and deception. The case is pending before Judge Ossing.

The judgment was based on injuries Mrs. Welp suffered Jan. 20, 1921, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Bogy. He appealed to the Supreme Court, which affirmed the decision last July 3, after which Mrs. Welp obtained an attachment against funds of Bogy.

Bogy alleges that Mrs. Welp had another accident in which she suffered an injury to her back nearly two months before the final trial of her suit against him in the Circuit Court.

Mrs. Arnold told police she and her husband had decided to die together, but did not disclose the cause of their despondency. She is 31 years old. Arnold is 32 and is an accountant.

Roosevelt, Chairman of women's activities for the National Committee, to assist Senator Harry B. Hawes, regional director for Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Iowa, Illinois, Kansas, Kentucky and Tennessee. She has traveled extensively through those States.

FRANCO-BRITISH PACT "FATHERED BY U. S."

Naval Agreement Not Justified as Campaign Issue, Says Paris Paper.

Coverage [illegible] on the page not a line or a heading [illegible] the first [illegible] Paris and Washington.

Public fear that France and England contemplate new naval competition underlies opposition shown by Right Deputies to ratification of Anglo-French agreement at Geneva on March 31, and the United States a hindrance not justified in making a political campaign issue of it, says the Journal Officiel, official publication of the Chamber of Deputies.

In both countries and England, because the conciliation campaigns put out feelers for new contacts between the present French and English Governments would make a foreign debate a poor campaign issue.

The Temps quotes Briand as declaring that to prophesy disaster to Briand is positive "service to those opportunists persons, governments or interest groups of pro-armament." England and France have the organization problem in their hands, the Temps asserts, and the naval compromise has therefore really fathered by Briand.

Another Conservative newspaper, Echo de Paris, says there is no disguising the fact that the Geneva accord has made leading to the abandon of the compromise, which the Temps also admits to be correct.

First day News on page 28.

The first step was taken the day preceding any, when the British Ambassador, Lord Crewe, handed a note to the French Government on June 30. The note urged upon a reference to Admiral Briand's suggestion to Admiral Kelly of the British Government Delegation that naval limitation should be confined to capital ships, cruisers over 10,000 tons and large submarines. Limitations of the first two classes of vessels was regulated by the Washington Disarmament conference.

Lord Crewe's note and Britain was ready to accede to such a program and to assure that "world security" Britain is ready for disarming to the disarmament conference to withdraw opposition to the French claim that trained reserves should not be counted as part of military forces when land disarmament was under discussion.

Second Step on July 20.

The second step came when Briand replied to Chamberlain, July 20, saying that France would prefer to have had Britain accept France's proposal at the disarmament conference in March, 1927—that each nation use the total tonnage allotted to it as it pleased—but was ready to compromise on all matters having equal rights to build 10,000-ton cruisers within the limits of needs, with each agreeing to build within determined limits during the period of the accord.

Briand's note set forth that the same rule should apply to the building of submarines which are placed in two categories, those above and those below 600 tons. Briand proposed that the terms of this agreement be communicated to the United States, Italy and Japan, and presumed that those countries would accept.

If they refused, as the agreement applied to themselves—which has occurred in the case of America—Briand considered it imperative that France and England "continue to cooperate to secure agreement by other means or to face difficulties which might arise from failure."

Chamberlain's Attitude.

To this proposal Chamberlain replied by a note dated July 26 saying he preferred to stick to the original suggestion because he did not believe the distinction made by Admiral Violais between offensive and defensive submarines—above or below 600 tons—would hold. That a compromise might be reached, however, Chamberlain expressed willingness to agree to Briand's suggestions and also concurred on informing Washington, Rome and Tokio. The last paragraph of this note sets the test of the naval compromise.

The analysis given above of the diplomatic exchanges between London and Paris was sent to Washington, Rome and Tokio last week. The correspondence admitted Britain's support of the French conception that trained reserves ought not to be counted as troops in limiting land armaments, and hence permitted conscription; but it spoke of "continued cooperation" only in respect of naval limitation, leaving undisclosed whatever understanding might lie beyond that.

COUNTY DEMOCRATIC CLUB HEARS TWO TOWN OFFICIALS

Mayor of Richmond Heights and University City Alderman Tell of Efforts to Get Out Vote.

The weekly meeting of the St. Louis County Democratic Club was held Thursday night at the courthouse at Clayton with Edward Tiffin of Ferguson presiding. Mayor Edward J. Houlihan of Richmond Heights and Alderman H. A. Wellington of University City told of the efforts to get out the Democratic vote in their towns.

Kenneth Teasdale, president of the Jefferson Club of St. Louis, volunteered his services to aid the county organization. Bennett C. Clark of Clayton discussed national issues and the administrative record of Gov. Smith.

Joseph T. Davis is president of the club and Ralph W. Nolen secretary.

ROBINSON ATTACKS BIGOTRY IN NEW MEXICO SPEECH

Ku Kluxism Thrives Opposing Democratic Governor Because of Religion, Army Bill Committeeman Says.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ROSWELL, N. M., Oct. 1.—Senator Joseph T. Robinson, Democratic vice presidential candidate, swung in the campaign in New Mexico today with an attack upon those who oppose him, both because of his membership in the Catholic Church. He also assailed those who are against the Democratic ticket because of the New York Governor's connection with Tammany Hall and Chairman Davis' Republican record in the case of World War veterans.

The Senator briefly referred to a proposed military draft and soon came to the point in advance in the race and the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, and commentated the duty to occupy the presidential chair. He said that Governor is the proposed statesmanship that would give the nation a constructive administration.

Robinson was received through the streets of Roswell by a parade from the New Mexico Military Institute. This marched at the head of a long line of automobiles. The Senator's audience here was an enthusiastic one. It applauded frequently, particularly a quotation of a Kansas Democrat being a Republican who is ashamed to admit it.

The Senator in the prepared speech had declared that the Republicans had promised a consolidation of governmental machinery, but had accomplished little in that direction. He argued that if less, drills were carried the country could expect time to be "about the Republican party has attempted it in the particular and failed to do."

AROUND-THE-WORLD FLYERS HAVE MOTOR CHANGED HERE

William Brock and Edward Bellas, around-the-world fliers who failed last week in an attempt to establish a new world's altitude record for airplanes, visited Lambert-St. Louis Field yesterday.

A worn piston had caused the efficiency of their engine and another motor was borrowed from Phil Ball. Ball, owner of the Browns. The motor was changed from Ball's plane to Brock's Bellanca by Robertson Aircraft Corporation mechanics.

Another celebrated aviator, Lieut. Lester Maitland, trans-Pacific flyer, stopped at Scott Field yesterday for 20 minutes. The passengers in the six-motored Fokker were T. Tedie Jerman, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics, and Col. Rexford Kindleberger, former Assistant Secretary of War. They were on their way to the American Legion convention at San Antonio, Texas.

New German Adding Machine

Fits Pocket—Costs $2.80

An amazing new adding machine recently perfected in Germany is now being introduced in America. It does all the work of a $300.00 machine simply and quickly. Adds and subtracts and does any amount of figures quickly. Yet it is so simple that a child can operate it, and so small that it fits into a vest pocket. Stores, businesses and homes need this new calculating machine. H. Mercer, Dept. 206, 230 W. Ontario St., Chicago, Illinois, who is distributing the machine in the United States, needs men everywhere to help him introduce it and is making a special money-making proposition and free offer to agents. Write him today.

came the dawn

He had been buying his clothes in New York—paying around $150 a suit. Was quite happy about it, until it dawned on him that most of his well-dressed friends in St. Louis had their clothes made right in St. Louis.

So he snooped a little and discovered the source of their supply. Now he wears Losse clothes and is even happier because he saves about $100 per suit.

(Other suits $50-$70.)

MISSOURI G. O. P. OPTIMISTIC AFTER SECRET MEETING

Most Conservative Out-State Leaders Claim 75,000 Majority for Hoover Outside of St. Louis.

STATE AND CITY COMMITTEES CONFER

St. Louis Members Report Smith Sentiment Among German-American Voters Is Diminishing.

Republican State Committee members from every district in the State made reports of encouraging progress for their ticket at a meeting yesterday with the City Committee in Republican City Headquarters in the Planters building.

The meeting was an executive session but, after adjournment, Bert G. Voorhees, chairman of the State Committee, told reporters that even the most conservative out-State leaders expected Hoover to roll up a majority of 75,000 in the State outside of St. Louis.

Meanwhile, city members reported that the Smith sentiment in St. Louis, on the strength of which Democratic leaders predict a St. Louis majority of between 50,000 and 75,000, is diminishing, particularly among German-American voters who believed Hoover discriminated against the Central powers after the armistice ten years ago.

Reporting for St. Louis County, Fred Essen declared to the committee that he was confident Hoover would carry the county by a substantial majority, probably about 7500.

From out-state, Chairman Voorhees said, predictions of a Republican victory were unanimous. Even for counties where the Republican faction has been so small as to make difficult the selection of Republican precinct officials, the committeemen expressed the opinion that this year the Republican party would have a small plurality.

"Everywhere committee members reported that Democrats are thoroughly disgusted by the attempt of party leaders to give Tammany the leadership of the Democratic party," Chairman Voorhees said. "These Democrats intend to administer a crushing rebuke to their leaders in the State, as well as their national chiefs, and so in many cases we are confident that old-line Democrats will not only vote for Hoover but also will cast their ballot for all the Republican candidates."

Gardner to Stump State; May Be Joined by Ex-Senator Wilfley.

Former Gov. Gardner, a St. Louisan who was chief executive of the State during the World War, will stump Missouri in behalf of the Democratic ticket, it was announced yesterday at Democratic regional headquarters in Hotel Jefferson.

His itinerary has not yet been fully arranged, but he will make his first speech on Oct. 20 and will continue an active campaign for the ticket until Nov. 3, three days before the election.

Gardner is likely to be joined in his tour by former United States Senator Wilfley, a Methodist Church leader, who has already been active in meeting the religious issue raised against Gov. Smith in rural Missouri. Omar D. Gray, secretary of the International Press Congress; Stephen B. Hunter, chairman of the Democratic State Executive Committee, and State Senator Hollingsworth, chairman of the Democratic Speakers' Bureau, will also be members of the Gardner party.

21 MOTOR BOATS START IN A RACE TO ST. LOUIS

Outboard Craft, in Contest for $1000 in Prizes, Stop at Boonville After Leaving Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—Twenty-one small outboard motorboats started today down the Missouri River in a race to St. Louis sponsored by the Kansas City Outboard Motorboat Club. Prizes amount to $1000.

The craft sped away from the Kansas-Missouri State line at 8:05 a. m. and less than an hour later the first of them passed under the bridge at Liberty, Mo. The leading boat was the St. Louis Baby III, piloted by E. S. Todd, and was averaging 38 miles an hour. Todd was in the lead at Liberty by about two miles.

The racers stopped at Boonville, Mo., overnight and will continue to St. Louis at 6:30 a. m. tomorrow. Tonight the pilots were guests of the Boonville Chamber of Commerce at a dinner. En route to Boonville, the boats stopped at Waverly, Mo., 90 miles down the river, for gasoline.

Seventeen of the racing boats are light frail shells, less than 14 feet long. Five of them are from St. Louis, two from Herman, Mo., one from Dover, Mo., and the rest are Kansas City craft.

'Graf Zeppelin' to Carry No Luxuries But Plenty Of Food on Atlantic Trip

Only Woman Passenger Tells of Preparations to Withstand Cold During Coming Attempt to Fly to U. S.

By LADY DRUMMOND HAY.

Only woman passenger aboard the "Graf Zeppelin" on its coming flight to America.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Oct. 6.—The chilly 34-hour test flight this week has frost-bitten some of the fondest illusions of the officers, crew and passengers regarding the unheated "Graf Zeppelin" for trans-Atlantic travel at this time of year. On that overnight flight the crew complained of the merciless cold driving through the canvas walls of this flying tent.

As the airship battles the wind the porous sides of the salloon cabins swell and sag while the crew's quarters in the vicinity of the gas bags are necessarily freely ventilated, a sweeping draft resulting.

Readjustments are now being made in the crew's quarters and special sleeping bags have been ordered. Even the officers hardened to rough life and exposure agreed that a repetition of the last experience was inadvisable even if not actually unbearable.

The women in this Zeppelin town are preparing their men for the great adventure, providing them with warm clothes and giving anxious and affectionate advice on health and safety.

18 Men Passengers, One Woman.

There will be 18 men passengers and one woman — myself. All have suddenly realized that a wardrobe suitable for summer traveling in an unheated Zeppelin might easily spell pneumonia in October and have been buying at Friedrichshafen stores warmth-giving articles of all kinds, from woolen socks and thermos flasks to fur-lined boots and mufflers and blankets.

I have not been alone, even as the solitary woman of the party, in having visualized myself gracefully draped over a saloon window ledge romantically viewing the moonlit sky. The men of the passenger party have all along been surreptitiously reminding each other not to forget their evening jackets.

We have drawn for ourselves pictures of dining elegantly in mid-air with Commodore Eckener at the head of a flower decked table. We have fostered visions of course dinners, with snowy napery and gleaming silver, and planned to hold a dress rehearsal of the Ritzy repast while the Graf Zeppelin was still on terra firma so that the camera men would lose no detail of the splendid scene if stormy weather should hinder the full glory of the dinner in the air.

Will Be No Luxuries.

Luckily, pressure of time prevented the photographers from waving reels of film, for the epicurean pleasures must be deferred until our arrival in New York. Owing to an urgent restriction of weight in order to carry a great quantity of fuel, there will be as little cutlery, china and superfluous food aboard as possible. There will be plenty of everything, but there will be no luxuries. There are sure to be quantities of German sausages, ham, dark bread and butter, cheese and eggs, with good Rhine wine. It is not likely there will be any beer because if drunk freely it would have to be carried in great quantities.

It is very certain that after the Graf Zeppelin gets on the northerly course, our leather coats, woolies and furs will be our evening dress. Hot soup and steaming stew will be more welcome than cold caviar and chicken salad.

Friedreichshafen is bustling in a thousand different ways. Dr. Eckener and the weatherwise of the air are poring interminably over charts. Officers are supervising the last touches to the airship before the impending test. The crew is working, putting heart and soul into preparing the great craft they have seen evolve from aluminum screws and canvas.

There is no excitement yet in spite of the realization that ten days hence the success or failure of the enterprise will have been determined—and the life or death of 59 human beings.

EACH VOTE COSTS 22 CENTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—An appeal to Republican voters to contribute to the Republican campaign fund as a "party tax" was made today by Major-General James G. Harbord, chairman of the New York Metropolitan Finance Committee of the Republican National Committee.

Gen. Harbord asserted "one hour of the national income of the people of the United States (about $10,273,000) will more than pay for the campaign expenses of both major parties in the 1928 election." Analysis of campaign expenditures of the major parties over a period of 28 years, Gen. Harbord said, discloses the average cost of each vote for seven national campaigns has been slightly more than 22 cents. The recorded cost ranged from 32½ cents in 1916 to 14½ cents in 1924.

NEW MISSOURI-PACIFIC BRIDGE IS PLANNED

Railroad Announces Project in Connection With Double Track Freight Line.

The Missouri Pacific railroad will build a new double track freight cutoff through St. Louis County from Vallep Park to Jefferson Barracks during the next three years and will then build a railroad bridge over the Mississippi River to its yards in Dupo, Ill., it was disclosed last night at a banquet at Gray's Summit in celebration of the completion of the pilot tunnel part of the new railroad tunnel there.

The road now is completing double track between Eureka and Washington, and has double track between Washington and Jefferson City. The object of the projected cutoff and bridge is to handle its freight from the west to interchange yards on the East Side without going through the congested terminals of St. Louis.

E. A. Hadley, chief engineer of the Missouri Pacific, said that next year 10 miles of new double track would be constructed between Eureka and Valley Park and that in 1930 and 1931 the cutoff would be built, starting at Valley Park or a little to the east at Lake Hill Park, and head in through the Meramec River valley. This line will be for freight only, and by it the road will have a maximum grade of only three-tenths of one per cent, avoiding a steep grade on the passenger line east of Valley Park.

The bridge over the Mississippi will be erected at some time within the next few years, Hadley said. It has been announced that private promoters of St. Louis are projecting a combined highway toll and railroad bridge which the Missouri Pacific might use.

The new tunnel here was begun April 26 and the last shot of dynamite for the pilot section was fired eight nights ago. This pilot bore was made by arduous hand labor, to give a toehold for the great machine that will cut the final tube. The pilot bore extends for 1600 feet, a third of a mile, through solid limestone rock. Nearly 7500 cubic yards of rock was removed. It measures 10 by 14 feet. Eventually the tunnel, to accommodate a double track to be lined with concrete, will be 27 feet high and 29 feet wide. A total of 53,000 cubic yards of rock will have to be removed.

7000 CASES OF LIQUOR SEIZED

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 6.—Seven thousand cases of liquor with an estimated value of $300,000, was seized by Federal prohibition agents in a raid upon an Irving boulevard mansion in the heart of the film city today.

Maj. Frank McReynolds, Federal Prohibition Administrator, and Deputy Chief of Police Clyde Plummer of Los Angeles led the raid, in which two men were arrested.

McReynolds termed the seizure the largest in this district since the advent of prohibition. Part of the liquor was found in two large garages, and much of it in hidden rooms entered by secret passages. The arrested men were George Morris, 27 years old, and Ferro Pagliai.

Plans Flight from U. S. to Ireland.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Oct. 6.—Commander H. C. PREDICTS HOOVER WILL WIN WITH 320 ELECTORAL VOTES

Washington Business Service Gives Him 250 'Sure' and Smith Only 106.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The first definite public forecast of the result of the presidential election has made its appearance here. Willard M. Kiplinger, president of the Kiplinger Washington Letter, a non-political business service circulated privately among banks and corporations, has informed his clients that Hoover will be elected with about 320 electoral votes. Kiplinger predicted 250 "sure" votes for Hoover and 106 "sure" votes for Smith. He listed as "wholly doubtful at present" Missouri, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, New York, South Dakota and Wisconsin. According to Kiplinger, the lineup will be as follows:

"Sure for Hoover: California, Connecticut, Delaware, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Nevada, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wyoming. Total sure electoral votes for Hoover, 250. Probable for Hoover: Nebraska, North Carolina, Tennessee. Total probable electoral votes for Hoover, 32. Total for Hoover, 282.

"Sure for Smith: Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, South Carolina, Texas, Virginia. Total sure electoral votes for Smith, 106. Probable for Smith: Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, North Dakota, Rhode Island. Total probable electoral votes for Smith, 50. Total for Smith, 156.

"Total wholly doubtful electoral votes, 93. Assuming that Hoover's chances are 50-50 in these doubtful States, he would gain 49 more votes, making his electoral college vote something like 226. The total electoral vote is 531, with 266 votes necessary to election.

RCA SEEKS CONTROL OF THEATER CHAIN

Negotiates for Principal Interest in Keith-Albee and F. O. B. Pictures.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Radio Corporation of America, to provide an outlet for photophone, a talking movie device which it has developed, is negotiating for control of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation and F. B. O. Pictures Corporation, it was learned today.

The Radio Corporation has encountered keen competition with the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., with its Movietone, and Warner Brothers, with their Vitaphone. Last May the Electrical Research Products, Inc., subsidiary of the A. T. & T., obtained contracts for exclusive use of the Movietone with Paramount Famous Lasy Corporation, Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, and United Artists Corporation. Warner Brothers have recently obtained control of First National Pictures and the Stanley Theater chain.

This left the Radio Corporation with F. B. O. Pictures and Pathe Exchange as an outlet for Photophone. F. B. O. already is making films for Photophone, and contracts have been signed for installation of the apparatus in the Keith Theaters. Keith-Albee-Orpheum has a substantial interest in the Pathe Exchange, which is also planning to make Photophone pictures.

It was learned in Wall Street banking circles that the negotiations look to the formation of a holding company, in which the radio corporation will have a controlling interest. Negotiations have been under way for about 10 days, and are being conducted by David Sarnoff, general manager of Radio, and Joseph P. Kennedy, chairman of Keith-Albee-Orpheum and president of the F. B. O.

Kennedy announced in response to reports that Radio had already acquired control of Keith-Albee Orpheum that the report was premature.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Capt. Victor Gordon, High Commissioner for Newfoundland in London since 1924, died today of the effects of wounds suffered in the World War. He was 44 years old.

Capt. Gordon enlisted in 1914 and served in the Gallipoli campaign, Egypt and France. He was a temporary Captain in the King's own Scottish Borderers, when he was severely wounded at Monchy le Preux in April 1917. In 1919, Capt. Gordon was appointed secretary to the Newfoundland High Commissioner in London, and from 1922 to 1924 was acting High Commissioner.

REHEARING DENIED IN ST. JOSEPH WATER CO. CASE

Supreme Court, Upholds Decision Against Fees Levied by Utility Holding Companies.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—Division No. 2 of the Missouri Supreme Court today overruled a motion for rehearing of the St. Joseph Water Co. case, in which it disallowed a fixed charge by a holding company against the operating income of an operating public utility company, for "advisory services," and condemned such a plan as one that "smacks of graft and extortion."

The rehearing was sought by the Public Service Commission, which had allowed the charge, and the St. Joseph Water Co.

The ruling denying the rehearing does not close the case, as the petitioners may file a motion for transfer of the case to the Supreme Court en banc, for a hearing before the full membership of the court. Judge David E. Blair dissented from the original opinion in Division No. 2, and, under the court procedure, this dissent assures transfer of the case to the court en banc, upon the filing of the proper motion.

Commissioner Edward Higbee of Division No. 2 wrote the original opinion, which attracted wide attention because of the ruling against holding company fees imposed for managerial, financial and engineering assistance the holding company contended it was furnishing the operating company.

The holding company, the American Water Works and Electric Co. of New York, exacted a fixed fee of 3 per cent of the gross income of the St. Joseph Water Co. for the "advisory services." The evidence disclosed the holding company was making a similar levy upon the gross income of 29 other subsidiary public utility companies.

Commissioner Higbee held such a charge merely increased the operating expenses of the operating company, with doubtful benefits for the consumers, and resulted in the water consumers having to pay higher rates for service. He held the consumers should pay only for the service they receive. He ordered the holding company charge which amounted to about $16,000 a year in the case of the St. Joseph Water Co., disallowed, in reversing a decision of the Public Service Commission, which had allowed the charges in granting the company an increased valuation for rate-making.

In another phase of his opinion, Commissioner Higbee said the theory of reproduction new at present day prices, less depreciation, was the proper method of fixing the valuation of the company's property for a rate-making base. He quoted several State and Federal court decisions supporting this view.

The commission, in fixing the company's valuation at $3,821,312, stated it had given weight to both the reproduction and investment cost theories, the latter being the amount of money actually invested by owners of the property.

In seeking a rehearing the commission declared the allowance of holding company fees had been upheld by the United States Supreme Court, in approving a four per cent gross income charge by the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. against the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., covering both managerial assistance and licenses to use patented equipment.

The commission contended the United States Supreme Court never had held that reproduction new, less depreciation, was the sole measure of value, but had stated that this theory was to be given weight in considering the valuation.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLER HELD

Fugitive Kansas City Loan Man Arrested in Arkansas.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 6.—Wedding plans of Gorman Raney, 25 years old, former secretary-treasurer of the Continental Building and Loan Association, resulted in his arrest in Hot Springs, Ark., yesterday, and he is being brought back to face charges of forgery and embezzlement of approximately $10,000.

Raney, who disappeared 11 months ago, was arrested when about to step into a taxicab with his fiancee, Miss Lilly Zang, of Kansas City, who he had met at the train. Miss Zang kept company with Raney before his disappearance. Frank G. Warren, attorney and trustee of the Continental Finance Co., from which Raney is charged with embezzling $3200, learned of Miss Zang's intentions to go to Hot Springs. He went also, and was on hand with a detective when Raney appeared.

MANUFACTURER'S AGENT OR DISTRIBUTOR WANTED

We are looking for a wide-awake distributor or manufacturer's agent to take over rich sales territory for us—perhaps an entire state. An exceptional opportunity for big immediate earnings is offered.

Our product is a new patented farm and household specialty which is without even a close second in its field. The market for such a product is already tremendous, and is growing larger daily. Demand is being stimulated by an aggressive merchandising policy and powerful advertising. The finances and personnel of our company will stand the closest scrutiny. You will be assured the co-operation of a million-dollar corporation with 16 years of exacting manufacturing experience.

The ideal connection for us would be a firm already acting as a manufacturer's agent in one or more noncompetitive lines. Such an organization would doubtless already have dealer connections and the nucleus of an adequate sales force. However, we would consider a financially responsible individual with sales and executive ability and a thorough knowledge of rural and suburban markets. No large investment is necessary.

If you are not afraid of responsibility and are willing to work for big money, it will pay you to get in touch with us. Any information that you care to give about yourself will be held in strict confidence. Address General Manager, Box A-191, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

CLEARING HOUSE PLAN URGED ON STATE BANKS

Finance Commissioner in Letter Urges Ten Regional Establishments.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—Hope that the State Finance Department ultimately would be taken out of politics and organized upon a basis of efficiency alone, was expressed today by State Finance Commissioner S. L. Cantley, in a letter sent to all banks in the State, urging adoption of a regional clearing house association plan in Missouri.

The regional clearing house will be discussed at each of the eight district or group meetings of the Missouri State Bankers' Association, which, with the Finance Department, is sponsoring the plan. The first of the group meetings will be held in Lexington, Oct. 16.

The plan, as has been told, provides for establishment of 10 regional clearing house associations in Missouri, with the co-operation of the State Finance Department.

Cantley said there was no selfish motive behind the movement. "The people want better banking, they want better supervision, they want more security, and they are entitled to all these things," Cantley said in the letter. "It is to be hoped that ultimately the Finance Department of Missouri may be taken out of politics in its organization and makeup, and I hope to see the day when it will be so removed and placed upon the same high plane as the national system. I would like to see the department organized so that each of the major parties in Missouri would have equal representation in its organization, and then through local associations such as we desire to promote, certainly banking could be made safer, more profitable and more enjoyable throughout this State."

At present the State Finance Commissioner is appointed by the Governor, who also, of course, has a voice in the appointment of the subordinates. At present the entire staff of the department is made up of Republicans.

If the clearing house plan is adopted, the Finance Department proposes an indirect method of co-operating with the associations until legislation can be enacted giving the department direct supervision. The temporary plan is to have a Finance Department bank examiner appointed as examiner for the clearing house in each district.

Among the advantages of the proposed clearing house plan urged by Cantley in his letter to the banks are co-operation between banks to eliminate hazardous practices; guarding against losses through overbidding for public funds and other special deposits; devising a system for analyzing accounts; elimination of risks through duplicate borrowing; interchange of credit information, and development of better banking methods and better public relations.

HARRY RICE, FORMER BROWNS PLAYER, SUED FOR DIVORCE

Wife Charges Outfielder, Now With Detroit, With General Indignities.

Suit for divorce was filed yesterday by Mrs. Lillian E. Rice, 3144 Maury avenue, against Harry F. Rice, American League outfielder, formerly with the Browns and now with the Detroit Tigers.

Mrs. Rice alleges general indignities, charging that her husband told her he did not love her and finally abandoned her on June 19, last. They were married Nov. 26, 1924.

Mrs. Rice recently swore out a warrant for her husband on the ground of nonsupport. It is not expected that prosecution will be pressed because of the divorce suit, which probably will be heard this week. Rice entered his appearance in the case, but is not expected to contest. Mrs. Rice has a child by a prior marriage.

REQUISITION FOR FEUDIST

Gov. Baker Acts to Bring Fugitive Harry Knight Back.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—A requisition for extradition of Harry Knight, one of the central figures in a Johnson County feud of several years ago, from Portland, Ore., to the Missouri penitentiary to serve a 15-year sentence for murder, was issued today by Gov. Baker. Knight "jumped" his appeal bond in December, 1925, after the Supreme Court had affirmed his conviction, and a search for him ended this week in Portland.

Harry Knight and his brother Guy, were convicted of the murder of George McCormick in Holden, Mo., in June, 1923. A feud which had started with a quarrel over a hog between the Knight and McCormick families, resulted in three deaths. The Knight brothers, sentenced to 15 years each, were released on bond, pending appeals on a writ of habeas corpus. Guy Knight was killed near Kansas City on Oct. 12, 1924, when he resisted arrest on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. The Supreme Court affirmed the conviction of Harry Knight in December, 1925.

YOU can now PARK at NO COST!

---under the new A. M. T. parking plan

In line with our announced determination to deliver to the St. Louis motorist the finest parking service at the lowest possible cost, our new A. M. T. Parking Plan is announced.

We propose to park without charge the average parker, and all that he does in order to have the benefits of this tremendous convenience at no cost to himself is to buy regularly his supplies while parked. You can secure from us better merchandise for the same money and better service for less money than is possible elsewhere

Checks of over Two Hundred and Seventy-Five Thousand cars handled show that the average parker requires about three hours' parking service. These checks also show that 85% of the hourly parkers in our garages are regular weekly parkers, coming in about once a week. Experience shows that the careful and prudent motorist buys his supply of gasoline, oil, Alemiting, grease, washing—in whole or part—about once a week.

Effective from October 1, 1928, we will credit against any parking charge for hourly parking, not exceeding one day, and not exceeding the amount of parking charge for the particular time a car is parked, an allowance of 10% of the amount of any purchase made while parked.

Of course, to those who have no need of supplies, we offer the parking service that has been the talk of St. Louis at 15 cents for the first hour and 5 cents for each additional hour.

THINK OF THIS A MOMENT!

GOING SHOPPING? Drive direct to one of our garages and park—leave your order for, say ten gallons of gasoline and a crankcase drain. You pay no more for the gasoline and oil—yet you have saved your parking charge for perhaps three or four hours.

GOING TO THE SHOW? Drive direct to one of our garages and park—leave your order for washing—perhaps an Alemite. The service will cost no more, yet you have saved your parking.

Don't Go Out of Your Way—Simply remember to buy your supplies downtown when you are going down, and you will put at your disposal the finest parking service known in this country, handled by the most courteous attendants—at absolutely no charge—your purchase allowance under the A. M. T. Plan will take care of it for you.

No More Need to Go Milling Around looking for parking space—drive direct to the most convenient of these splendid properties and be amazed at the simplicity, the service, and the great feeling of relief.

Come Down Today—Remember, Please—NO TIPPING!

REGULAR HOURLY PARKING RATES

We offer the very lowest parking rates for hourly parking—15 cents for the first hour and 5 cents for each additional hour—but these charges can be cancelled entirely under the A. M. T. Parking Plan.

FRANKLIN ROOSEVELT COMPARES NOMINEES

Thinks Smith Would Make Better President Than Hoover.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 6.—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee for Governor of New York, declared in a prepared address here tonight that the personal qualities possessed by Alfred E. Smith "would make him a more successful and more useful President than Herbert Hoover because he would be better able to co-ordinate the executive and legislative functions of the Government."

Roosevelt arrived here tonight from Warm Springs, Ga.

"Throughout the South, where I have spent the last two weeks, it is an unfortunate fact that the Republican party, starting as far back as May, has centered itself around an attack on the Decocratic candidate by vile personal slander and an appeal to religious prejudice," said Roosevelt. "It is fortunate, however, this was used early in the campaign, for during the last few weeks we have witnessed a splendid revulsion of feeling on the part of thinking Americans. It is perhaps a good thing that the searchlight has been so clearly turned on the record of Gov. Smith, for an examination of that record cannot fail to bring the support of thousands who want to see a he-man in the White House.

"It is on this question of the personality of the candidate that I want to bring out tonight a consideration that has so far failed to receive due attention.

"It is not sufficient for the President to be merely a good organizer, a good engineer, a good statistician. We are apt to forget that our national Government functions through two branches, the executive and Congress. These two branches are in theory co-ordinate; we cannot have successful Government unless that co-ordination exists in practice as well as in theory.

"I have been a friend of both the candidates for many years and I have have a high regard for them both. But there is no real reason to prevent me from saying, quite aside from any partisan viewpoint, that I honestly believe Gov. Smith would make a more successful and more useful President during the next your years than Mr. Hoover.

"There are vast and pressing problems to be solved by co-ordination between the President and the Congress; none of them can be solved by the President alone."

Roosevelt added that he was frankly skeptical as to the success Hoover would have in working with Congress.

LINCOLN-DOUGLAS DEBATE RE-ENACTED AT GALESBURG

Biographers of Martyred President Witness Performance on Knox Campus.

By the Associated Press.

GALESBURG, Ill., Oct. 6.—On the old Knox campus today was recalled the fifth Lincoln-Douglas debate of 70 years ago. Attorney Albert Pierson impersonated Stephen A. Douglas and Frank McGlynn impersonated Lincoln and delivered the memorable pronouncement: "Judge Douglas declares that if any communities want slavery, they have a right to it. He cannot logically say that anybody has a right to do wrong."

Among those who witnessed the performance were a few who had been in Lincoln's audience Oct. 7, 1858. Another group of spectators included biographers and students of Lincoln, each of whom spoke. Among these speakers were Carl Sandburg, Emanuel Hertz of New York, Dr. William E. Barton and Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, translator of the New Testament and son of a man who, as a student at Knox, heard the debate from the vantage point of a nearby roof.

CONFESSES HE SHOT WOMAN: SAYS HE EXPECTED $50 FOR IT

Alabaman Declares Brother-in-Law Wanted to Marry Daughter of Victim.

By the Associated Press.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 5.—Ray Bozeman, 23 years old, of Crenshaw County, confessed to authorities here yesterday that he shot and seriously wounded Mrs. Amanda King. He said his wife's brother, William D. Wilson, wanted to marry Mrs. King's daughter, Myrtle, 19, but Mrs. King objected.

Bozeman shot the woman, he said, expecting Wilson to pay him $50 for the deed. Wilson denied all connection with the shooting. Both are held here.

Mrs. King is in grave condition at a Troy, Ala., hospital.

Bozeman and Wilson were brought here from Laverne, County seat of Crenshaw County, where the shooting occurred.

Texas and Oklahoma Fight For 'Old Gray Mare' Tune

American Legion Men of Both States Claim Both the Animal and Authorship of the Song.

By the Associated Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—The battle of the historic "Old Gray Mare" is on again. Texas and Oklahoma have taken to their trenches and the war is at crescendo. It is expected to reach its culmination during the tenth national convention of the American Legion at San Antonio Oct. 8 to 12, when the Oklahoma Legion plays the rollicking tune as its marching song.

Texas' "Old Gray Mare" band of Brownwood, stars of several Legion national conventions, will be on hand, and says it is going to give the Oklahoma musicians keen competition when it strikes up the old army tune.

Pending opening of the convention, the war of words continues with Gen. Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma and Walton D. Hood, commander of the Texas department of the Legion, in the principal roles.

Says Oklahoman Wrote Song.

Hoffman says: "Capt. R. E. (Doc) Flynn, the leader of the First Oklahoma Infantry on the border, stationed at San Benito during the Mexican border trouble, composed this music (the "Old Gray Mare" song), not claiming originality, but taking snatches from other pieces, but he joined the parts and made the present 'Old Gray Mare.'

"It is distinctly our tune and nobody else's. We are going to San Antonio to claim it and anybody who interposes any objection to our authorship or ownership is going to get an argument on his hands."

Hoffman declares Oklahoma won title to the old gray mare in a membership contest in 1926, and that at the Philadelphia convention, Dr. W. T. Dunning of Gonzales, chairman of the Texas delegation, "arose in his place and handed Oklahoma a perpetual bill of sale for the old gray mare."

Says It Started in Civil War.

To all of which Hood replies, on behalf of Texas, that the "Old Gray Mare" song was originally composed during the Civil War from an incident occurring in Hood's Texas Brigade, commanded by Gen. John B. Hood, a relative of the Texas Legion commander. Following the terrific battle of Cold Harbor, the brigade, as the story is told by its commander in his autobiography, was asleep on the ground when the "old gray mare" made its bid for immortality. Becoming frightened, this favorite animal of one of the regiments dashed madly up the hill out of the forest below, setting up a terrific clatter with the kettles, tin cups and frying pans she freighted.

On the instant the brigade was on its feet. Men deserted colors, guns, everything, dashed madly over a fence, tearing it down as they went; and fled for several hundred yards before they recovered their senses.

CARAWAY SAYS HOOVER CURRIED FAVOR OF NEGROES

Senator Tells Alabamans Trade Was Made to Win Support in Ohio.

By the Associated Press.

SELMA, Ala., Oct. 6.—Charges that Herbert Hoover abolished segregation in the Department of Commerce and otherwise curried the favor of the Ohio Negro vote in his pre-convention campaign for the Republican presidential nomination were made by United States Senator Thaddeus Caraway, Arkansas colleague of Senator Joe T. Robinson, the Democratic Vice Presidential candidate, in an address here last night.

Senator Caraway charged that the segregation was part of a pre-convention trade whereby the commerce secretary won the Ohio Negro support in his race with the late Senator Willis for the State's delegation to the convention.

"Further," the Arkansas Senator declared, "he (Hoover) had a Negro run for delegate against Senator Simeon Fess of Ohio, the Republican keynoter. He placed his stamp of approval on this Negro against Fess, helped this Negro defeat Fess, and Fess, the keynoter had to go into the convention hall with a proxy so he could be recognized to make his keynote address."

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN WATSON-CHIPPEWA PROPERTY

The new Watson-Chippewa development, which is 6000 west and 3900 south, was opened last Sunday, and coisiderable interest has been shown in the property along both Watson boulevard and Chippewa boulevard. Chippewa boulevard, when completed by the city, will run diagonally through the property, and will become one of the main arteries for traffic from Southwest St. Louis as well as from Kirkwood and Webster Goves.

The property is easily accessible by transferring from the Tower Grove car at Watson road and taking the bus south to the property. UNEXPECTED DEARTH OF OFFERINGS AID WHEAT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Sharp bulges in price for wheat, with much increased support of future deliveries here, resulted today from an unexpected dearth of offerings. Assertions were made that on the basis of grower's costs domestic wheat in the Northwest and northwest is netting below 1893 values.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ½c to 1¼c net higher; with December at the close showing ¼c to ½c gain, and provisions varying from 2c setback to a rise of 50c.

One of the largest growers of wheat in the United States was quoted as authority for statements that in proportion to cost of production wheat in Kansas and Nebraska is at present bringing less than during 1893. It also was reported as saying that thresher returns in Montana and North Dakota have been so much smaller than was estimated, and that Canadian wheat in Winnipeg put a carrying charge to December is higher than wheat in the United States, due to the bullish influence of such factors as complaints today of dry weather in domestic wheat territory South-west.

Despite profit-taking sales which at times wiped out most of the gains in price, wheat was rallying briskly anew at the finish, helped by word of better demand for Europe having purchased 500,000 bushels of wheat today to be shipped from North America, including some United States hard winter grades. Crawfurd's comment was at hand that farmers Northwest show an unusual disposition to retain ownership of wheat, and that many of those who are selling cash wheat have been buying future delivery contracts.

Highest prices of the season paid here today for rye counted also as a strength-ening influence on the wheat market, and was likewise did dispatch dealing with Australian dockworkers' strike.

Buying of corn today was less aggressive than has been the rule of late. This was especially the case after March and May corn had reached new high record prices for the season. It was contended that advances have disconcerted sellers of the United States east of Kansas have nearly 85,000,000 bu. more than this season than a year ago. Oats were unsettled with wheat strength. For the most part, provisions held about steady.

Auto Exports Increase.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—New records are being established monthly in export trade by the American automobile industry.

The Commerce Department today valued American exports of automotive products for August at $48,765,552, which was 42 per cent more than like exports of $34,245,036 in August, 1927. The total value of automotive exports for the year, including August, amounted to $357,226,683, while for the same period of 1927 the total was $287,958,145.

One of the notable facts about the increasing automobile trade is the higher-priced cars now going abroad. In August shipments of cars selling for more than $2000 increased 83 per cent over July totals, while there was an increase of 49 per cent in exports of cars selling between $1000 and $2000. In cheaper cars there was a slight decrease.

Argentina and Australia are now the best customers for American cars, with Canada and Brazil next.

LONDON LOSES GOLD BUT MONEY NO DEARER

BY ARTHUR W. KIDDY.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—In the last week the Bank of England lost gold more rapidly than at any other time since the resumption of the gold standard, and the money position continued very obscure. The United States and France are regarded as the chief sources of possible gold demands, owing to the dearness of money in New York and the huge French balance in London.

Germany's power to take gold had not received due weight, despite the movement of the yellow metal in that direction a month ago. The impression has prevailed that the strength of German exchange would be only temporary in view of the heavy reparations liabilities, and because lending to Germany by the United States had been much reduced.

It is believed though, that the loss of money from these two sources was replaced largely by indirect loans from France and the recent release of German war time assets in America.

The big gold movements have caused a reaction in German exchange, but it is doubtful whether this will go far. On the continent dearness of money in Germany and the active trade there.

A report on Germany just published by the overseas trade department estimates foreign loans to Germany in 1927 as 1,575,000,000 marks, compared with 1,383,000,000 in 1926. The first five months of 1928 showed 870,500,000 marks, or an increase of 730,000,000 from the same period in 1927, owing to the enormous borrowing in May because of the authorization of municipal and other loans.

The loss of gold from the English market has failed to produce dearer money because of the continental demand, presumably French, for sterling bills. This depresses the rate so long as short loans are plentiful, which has been so owing to the temporary Government borrowing over the turn of the quarter to meet treasury bills, maturities and dividend disbursements. This situation will probably be corrected soon.

The published security holdings of the Bank of England for the last two weeks is probably due to these considerations and not to any deliberate policy to replace gold exports by credit expansion, which obviously does not accord with the bank's known desire to keep the discount in London fully 4 5-16 per cent. The bank's aim, it is assumed, is to keep a 4½ per cent rate effective to protect the position so far as possible without imposing the penalty on trade, the condition of which does not justify higher rates for domestic purposes.

External influences making for dear money will, it is hoped, be temporary, thus paving the way for more comfortable conditions for the replacement of the Government's large maturing internal indebtedness Feb. 1, when about £17,000,000 falls due.

It is not believed that the stock market in London contains dangerous elements. The rise of industrials is thought to be largely a reflex of the boom in Wall street, and the firmness of the investment sections here suggests that the proceeds of the sales of industrials have been largely reinvested in fixed interest stocks. Nonetheless, the rise in industrials has produced activity in the promotion of small enterprises in the cater for new luxury demands and a widening of interest in Stock exchange matters has probably brought in a host of small speculators with savings that previously had gone into betting.

COTTON MARKET PREPARES FOR GOVERNMENT REPORT

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The cotton market was lower today under further liquidation of long accounts in preparation for Monday's Government report. Trade buying and covering on scale down orders was in sufficient volume to hold prices fairly steady around the 18¾c level during the greater part of the morning, but a little more Southern hedging was reported in the last hour or so. December sold off to 18.72c in the late trading, but closed a shade barely steady at net declines of 4 to 12 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 1 point to a decline of 2 points and soon showed net losses of 4 to 7 points, with October selling off to 18.81c and 18.80 in the absence of any buying or liquidation. The disposition to cash in on long contracts for over the week-end and the approaching crop report was probably increased by the relatively favorable outlook of Liverpool and reports of favorable weather over the greater part of the South. The decline brought in a considerable volume of trade buying and caused a rally, however, and prices held fairly steady during the middle of the morning, easing slightly in the late trading under continued liquidation combined with a little more Southern selling.

Closing prices were the lowest of the day with December at 18.72c, showing a decline of 70 points from the high price of last Monday. Two more private crop reports were issued, one of them making the indicated crop 14,545,000 bales, and the other indicated crop 14,175,000 bales, compared with a ginning of 15,000,000 bales a month ago. The other placed the condition at 53.8 and the indicated crop yield at 13,922,000 bales, compared with 14,386,000. These reports were within the range of those previously published and appeared to be without much effect upon the immediate market.

Some selling was reported on private reports that fruiting pointed to about an average crop here, but dealers and local brokers the action of the market reflected no material change of sentiment as do the probable showing of next Monday's official yield figures. The amount of cotton on shipboard at the end of the week awaiting clearance was estimated at about 97,000 bales, against 137,000 last year.

Private cable reported hedging liquidation in Liverpool, but noted improved sales of cotton cloths for the Near East and South America.

NATIONAL STOCKYARDS, Oct. 6.—Under heavier receipts than last week the cattle market here continued downward, prices showing sharp breaks in all departments. Native beef steers along with mixed butcher yearlings and beef cows declined 75c to $1 while western range steers were mostly $1 off. Canner cows and bulls declined 50c, stocker and feeder steers 50c to $1 and veal calves were very unevenly lower, tops off $1.50 and some heavy calves more than $2 under the previous week. Offerings of native steers included few really choice descriptions, the best lots of 1417 paid for a load of desirable yearling steers. Sales of more mature kinds failed to go above $16.25 and bulk of all steers cashed in a spread of $13 to $16. Some inferior killers, too common for use as feeders cashed as low as the $9 column. The comparatively small offering of butcher steers and heifers was mostly of medium quality or less, a few decent kinds cashing in the $13 column and odd head reaching $14 or better. Sales for the most part were made from $9.50 to $13, plainest kinds $8.50 to $8.50. Cows were draggy throughout the week and beef cw bulk dropped to a spread of $7.25 to $8.75. Top bulls at $11.50 with few eligible to better than $10.50. Cutters sold principally between $6.25 and $7 while canners varied from $5.50 to $6. Bulls of all descriptions shared in the decline and toward the latter part of the week were hard to move at any price. Bolognas sold largely from $7.50 to $8.25, latter figure the closing top. Beef and butcher animals varied from $8.50 upward to $9.50 and common bulls down to $6.25. While the volume movement of stocker and feeder cattle was of fair volume prices suffered considerably, steers more so than she stuff which averaged a 25c loss. Most steers sold from $8.50 to $10.75, some of the better kinds around $11.40. Sellers quoted a smaller decline probable for the light weight qualified kinds of which there was such a small number as to make an acurate comparison impossible.

Veal calves showed a decline of $1.50 on tops, this class closing at $16.50. First cuts were proportionately lower at $13.50 to $14 and next outs varied from $10 to $13. Heavy calves were hard hit, sales mostly from $7.50 to $11.50. Canner yearlings dropped to a $6.50 basis by the week's close and some sold extremely late at $6.25.

Hog Receipts Fall Off.

Receipts proved the main feature of the past week's hog trade, the sharp decrease in supplies being almost as remarkable as the increase last week. Local offerings were 14,500 lighter with the decrease at 11 markets totaling 80,820. Quality was plain to good. Most of the past week featured gains in all classes, light hors and pigs gaining the most. However, a slight reaction was experienced Saturday at the close, better weight hogs, lights showing little change. The demand as a whole was good and much of the liveliness displayed by active kinds at times found difficult sessions while good quality kinds were easily moved most every session. Handy weight kinds 200 lbs. and 250 lbs. were in good demand, other weights eing discounted. As compared with a week ago butcher hogs are about steady while light hogs, 140 to 180 lbs are 25c to mostly 50c higher. Light lights in some instances are $1 up, the rank and file, however around 50c to 75c higher week ago. Pigs are strong to 50c up. Packing sows featured a good demand early in the week and got up to $9.50 Wednesday, today after more down to $9.75 or 10 to 30c higher than last Saturday. High top was $11.35 with most better weight kinds clearing from $11 to $11.25. Packers usually found outlet between $10.50 to $11. Pigs and light lights from common to fairly good commanded $8 to $10.25. Packing sow top was $10.25 bulk $9.65 to $9.90. Stags made $9.25 to $9.75 principally.

Fat Lambs Lower.

Receipts in the sheep and lamb department the past period were modest but prices on fat lambs are considerably lower. Plain grade lambs and aged sheep are unchanged. Quality of the run as a whole was plain to good, the first two days of the week prices were unchanged and no sharp price break was imminent. However, disappointment over dressing percentage of lambs combined with weight of 150 lbs. and over to cause material trade reports put buyers in a very antagonistic mood and they enforced drastic cuts on fat lambs in two days the market on the latter grades and aged sheep held full steady. The closing sessions of the Week held at the decline under the most active days of the week on that basis. Top lambs to packers early in the week reached $13.25, while city butchers paid up to $13.75. After the decline packer top was $12.25 with just a few to butchers at $12.50. Common to medium descriptions cleared from $10.50 to $12.50 with culls to packers at $9.50 to $10.50, a few to butchers early at $11. Skins caught at $7 largely. Fat ewes held to one level throughout the week, not being affected by the down turn. Best ewes sold from $6 to $6.50 with plainer and weighty ewes, $4.50 to $5, principally. Cull sheep made $2 to $3.50. Quotations: Slaughter stock —Good to choice lambs, $12 to $13; fair to good, $11.50 to $12; plain to fair, $10.50 to $11.50, cull an dcommon, $9.50 to $10.50; skips, $7 to $8. Good to choice yearling wethers, $10.50 to $11; medium to good, $10 to $10.50, plain to medium, $9.50 to $10; cull and common, $7 to $9. Good to choice mutton ewes, $6 to $6.50, plain to good, $4 to $6; choppers and canners, $2 to $3.50.

BRISK UPTURN MARKS ACTIVE CURB SESSION

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The curb market experienced a brisk upturn today in one of the busiest Saturday sessions in the market's history. Week-end liquidation was well absorbed and nearly a score of issues were sent to new high levels.

Bendix B, which has had a spectacular rise, jumped 19 points to a new top at 225, more than 100 points over the year's low. Columbia Graphophone was another strong feature, spurting nearly nine points to a new peak at 110. Campbell Wyant shot up nearly eight points to a new peak at 74¾.

New highs for the year or longer were established by Appanaug Co., Balaban & Katz, Cameo, General Mills, Hygrade Foods, McKesson & Robbins, Nelsner Brothers, Oakes Products A, Schulte Real Estate and others, up one to three points. Durant Motor extended its gain on reports from Paris of an agreement with a company there for manufacture and sale of Durant cars in France while Durant will serve that company in the same capacity in America. Among weak spots were Industrial Rayon, Perfect Circle and A. O. Smith, down two to four points.

Oils were generally firm. Standard of Kentucky jumped nearly two points, and most other Standards improved fractionally. International Petroleum was a weak spot, dropping eight points. Lion was firm but Pantepec sagged slightly. Vacuum eased.

Mines were steady, Noranda gained more than a point and Comstock Tunnel two points. Bunker Hill fell four points to a new low at 119¼.

Utilities were generally steady, although Puget Sound fell three points in "selling on the good news" of acquisition by Engineers' Public Service, announced after the close yesterday.

VEGETABLE MARKET

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE ROW, Oct. 6.—Potato trade was about steady. Movement was light as usual at the end of the week. Some inquiry from outside was reported. Home-grown bulk cobblers sold at 60c to 80c, with the top for bluffs, while boxed cobblers were quoted at 40c to 50c per 60-pound box. Sales were reported as follows: On track, sacked, 100 pounds, 2 cars Kaw Valley cobblers (one to go out), 70c, and 2 cars Missouri cobblers, 60c, invoice weights, and 1 car Nebraska triumphs, 90c, return weights. Delivered: ⅛ car Nebraska triumphs, $1.

ONIONS—Market was quiet, but firm. Quotations, packed, per 100 lbs delivered: Minnesota red, $3.25 and white, $3.50; Indiana white, $2.25 per 50-lb sack; Colorado and Utah yellow, $2.75 to $3.25; California yellow, $3.50 and white, $3.50.

BEANS—Prices were nominally unchanged. Last jobbing sales Wisconsin and Minnesota Holland seed, $25 to $30 per ton delivered. Home-grown boxed cabbage, 40c.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The Evening Post, in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Neither a further unprecedented expansion in brokers' loans nor all the talk at the A. B. A. convention by America's best bankers turned the stock market down this week. Not even a bold statement that prices were far to high on the basis of earnings, shook the public's confidence in its bull position.' Yet the pot has been boiling now for weeks without greatly changing the matter. Industrial stocks move around their record peak reached two weeks ago without getting into new high ground. They have not advanced much since early September. Public utility stocks have dropped back perceptibly from their peak reached two weeks ago. They have made no substantial gain in a month. Railroad shares seem to have been neglected entirely and still sell 8 full points under the high set in May.

Time Loans Decrease.

"Without knowing it the financial district seems to have revised entirely its views on the volume of brokers' loans that can be carried safely. When loans this week climbed to fresh peaks in history that not long ago looked dangerously high—$5,500,000,000 for the Stock Exchange itself and $4,500,000,000 for New York member banks—the market instead of faltering was less concerned than ever over the credit position. The rise in loans has been accompanied by a general shift in the character of funds represented. Demand loans now constitute a full 85 per cent of the total. As recently as early summer they made up only 75 per cent of the entire portfolio. Critics of the market view this transition somewhat with alarm, pointing out that it makes the market dependent upon money subject to immediate recall.

Says Money Market Is Factor.

"The argument possesses merit but history seems to indicate that the ratio of demand and time loans to the total is governed by conditions within the money market itself. A high ratio of demand loans in the past has not always forecast a vulnerable position in stocks. The ratio of call loans to the total got as high as 90 per cent in August, 1921, which was the month preceding a rise in the stock market that now has been under way for seven years. Apparently the ratio of demand loans to the total portfolio bears no direct relation to market prices but resulted from a banking condition. When bankers face the possibility of advancing interest rates they favor loans that can be recalled instantly to take advantage of the higher charge. When, conversely, the outlook is for falling interest rates time loans are most popular. Those who conclude the stock market's position is endangered seriously by the shift in loans from time to demand categories will find their case difficult to prove.

Prices and Profits.

"In sizing up the present bull market a vast amount of discussion has been heard on the extent of the rise since September, 1921, and on the expansion in brokers' loans. Very little has been said on what touches the ultimate basis for change in the market for common stocks—the earnings ratio. Great as had been the advance in stocks previous to January, 1927, the market had not risen faster than corporate profits. Industrial stocks were still selling then on the old conservative basis of 10-time earnings. At the end of June, 1928, they were selling at 15 times earnings. They now command 17 times earnings. Whether stocks will ever fall permanently to the old basis is perhaps questionable. But the man who can judge what the new ratio will be can throw more light than anyone else on the market's future performance.'

Series of Credit Developments During the Week

New Low on Sterling, Fresh Imports of Gold From England, Record Brokers' Loans and Lower Call Rate Mark Period.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Stock price action was in the face of a series of credit developments, establishment of a new low level by sterling exchange and the fresh import of gold from England. Lower call money rates and the announcement of a record-breaking volume of brokers' loans by both the New York Stock Exchange and the New York Federal Reserve Bank, were the outstanding features in this week's financial markets.

Gigantic pool operations provided the background for the advance in stock prices. There were merger rumors.

The huge increase in brokers' loans was accompanied by several warnings of credit inflation in sessions of the American Bankers' Association convention in Philadelphia this week, and by the publication of a bearish market statement by John R. Raskob. With the passing of the month-end, call money, which had been as high as 10 per cent, dropped back to 6 and an easier undertone was apparent in the time money market.

Waves of Selling.

Waves of selling swept through the market, at intervals, but invariably new leaders were brought forward.

One of the biggest surprises of the week was the announcement of an increase of $462,000,000 in stock exchange member loans last month, bringing the total to a new high record for all time above $5,500,000,000. The weekly Federal Reserve figures also established a new peak. This was offset, to some extent, by the lowering of call money rates to 6 per cent, and the announcement of additional gold imports from London, bringing the total on the current movement to $10,000,000.

Several speakers at the American Bankers' Association convention in Philadelphia issued warnings against securities speculation and the large volume of credit tied up on stock and bond collateral. The former General Motors finance chairman came out with a statement that stock prices had far outrun their demonstrated values and that a material readjustment was necessary.

Steel Shares Bought.

Steel shares were heavily bought following reports that production and consumption were being maintained at high levels, with a stiffening commodity price tendency. U. S. Steel common duplicated the year's high mark. Bethlehem crossed 70 for the first time in six years. The brisk rise in Ludlum was based on rumor that the company had entered into an agreement with the Krupps of Germany for the pooling of steel patents, particularly in the manufacture of alloys.

Motor shares changed hands in enormous volume, with Chrysler assuming the leadership of that group by a sensational rise to a new high record. Hupp and Packard also eclipsed their previous 1928 tops. Most of the automobile body companies also reached new high ground, although Murray fell back sharply on realizing late in the week. General Motors was under pressure most of the week, but received good buying support.

Specialties Move Up.

Nonferrous metal shares quieted down somewhat, although American Zinc and International Nickel were pushed up to new high levels.

Among the many specialties to move into new high ground were Coty, General Ice Cream, Lambert, National Cash Register, Lehn & Fink, Victor Talking Machine, Eisenlohr, Keith-Albee issues, Universal Pipe and Pressed Steel Car.

Rails were generally sluggish. Abandonment of the Loree Southwestern railroad merger was followed by selling of stocks of rails operating in that territory. Atlantic Coast Line sold at the lowest price in years.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—The steel market has entered the last quarter of the year. Mills are reported well supplied with orders, which will assure active production and prices are well maintained. The question of future business is considered rather problematical, but while some authorities have predicted a slowing down before the end of the year, there appears to be no potential requirements which many believe will develop into good sales.

Pig iron was firm, with new business moderate, but the output well sold ahead. Although new business in copper has been confined to small lilling in lots, producers are active, making large shipments against contracts, which it is believed will take care of most of their output for some time ahead. Consumption continues at a high rate, owing to activity in industries using finished products, so that fabricators are said to be assured of a good demand for the remainder of the year. With production and consumption just now about balanced, prices hold steady and unchanged at 13½ cents delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

Tin was quieter and with a less active demand, prices were a shade easier, although offers were not heavy.

Lead was quiet as a result of a halt in the advance on London, but prices were steadily held.

Zinc was reported moving well through consumptive channels, but new buying was light and prices steady.

Antimony was quiet, with buyers cautious owing to some disposition to take profits. Prices were unchanged.

Dry Goods Market Review.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Cotton goods markets were quiet and firm, trading being restricted by expectancy of an important cotton report due on Monday. Interest on fine and fancy cottons has been of fair volume. Printed and finished goods have sold more freely. Raw silk was unchanged. New lines of goods for spring are being shown more generally. Activity continues in buying of goods for immediate cutting. Burlaps showed little change for the day.

NEW YORK BONDS

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $5,473,000; previous day's sales, $11,069,000; week ago, $4,872,000; year ago, $5,504,000. Total transactions from Jan. 1 to date were $2,329,754,000, compared with $2,596,280,000 a year ago and $2,271,562,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar; that is for instance a sale printed 99—24 means $99 and 24 thirty-seconds of a dollar and not $99.24.

United States Polo Team Captures Title

Harriman, Hitchcock Star in Victory Over Argentine Four, 13-7

By J. R. Vessels,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

WESTBURY, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Argentina's bid for world polo supremacy failed here today when a swift-riding, accurate-shooting United States four won, 13 to 7, taking two of the three games.

Unlike the two previous contests, play today was one-sided, one way or the other, after the first period. The United States team scored as it pleased during the fourth chukker, scoring five times and running up a seven-goal lead. The visitors, after scoring but two goals in six periods, spurted in the seventh and eighth sessions and counted five straight goals while holding their opponents scoreless.

The series nearly ended tragically when, with about two minutes of play remaining, Capt. Jack Nelson of the Argentines and his mount went down in a heap. The horse fell sideways, pinning Nelson to the ground. In an instant the struggling steed had rolled over and then rolled back again, crushing the visiting star into the soft turf. Nelson lay motionless for a minute, but soon was on his feet and in a remarkable show of gameness, insisted on continuing play.

Substitute Big Star.

The United States wos today because young Earle Hopping, a substitute, came through. Playing his first game in international competition, Hopping, a rugged youth of 21, vindicated the judgment of the American defense committee in substituting the hard-hitting lad for Malcolm Stevenson, the veteran.

It wasn't that Hopping was an outstanding star but rather that he stepped into the United States lineup and keep pace with his brilliant team-mates. He was a spare part that fitted and functioned.

Hopping was all over the field during that one-sided fourth period, upholding his reputation as a hard hitter, he drove several long shots close enough to the goal for his own men to convert them quickly into scores. Capt. Tommy Hitchcock and W. Averill Harriman shot four goals in two periods on assists from Hopping.

Argentines Battled Beaten.

The Argentines played ragged polo apparently because of the force of the United States drive. They were hurried in their passing and were crowded so hard at the mouth of their own goal that they failed to clear the ball, leaving the way open for easy goals for the victors.

Lewis Lacey, one of four ten-goal polo players in the world, took a nasty spill in the fourth period when his mount slipped and fell sideways but the 41-year-old star was up promptly. Lacey was pinned to the ground in an accident in the second game Wednesday before a remnant of the overflow crowd of 35,000.

The U. S. four was presented with a large loving cup after the game. Individual trophies also were presented.

The lineups and summary:

BADGERS' DEFEAT OF NOTRE DAME BIG SURPRISE OF GRID SEASON

By Paul R. Mickelson.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 6.—After more than a decade of struggle, a Big Ten team has finally conquered Notre Dame on the gridiron. Coach Glen Thistlethwaite's big Wisconsin team did it today, overwhelming the Ramblers 22 to 6, before 40,000 spectators.

Superior in every department of the game and fighting back to overcome a slight advantage, Notre Dame's experience had given it in the first half, the Badgers smashed and ran their way to triumph. It was more than a powerful Wisconsin team. It was a smart one, alert for every mistake Knute Rockne's chargers made and they were many. Wisconsin served notice that it is to be reckoned with in the race for the Big Ten conference title which hasn't been theirs since 1912.

The battle was a bruiser throughout and Coach Glen Thistlethwaite gamely played Rockne's game of strategy, matching his "shock troops" against Rockne's. More than 30 Badgers engaged in the combat. The result of which was sweet revenge for their defeat by the immortal "Four Horsemen" just four years ago.

Badgers Carry the Fight.

The Badgers carrid the fight to Notre Dame at the outset, its heavier line, and Bill Lusby's splendid kicking forcing Notre Dame back and back. The first score for the Badgers was a Notre Dame safety, which came when Bill Kettlelaar, Badger tackle, broke through and smothered Jack

Yanks' Winning Habit Likely to Be Factor In Remaining Games

By Herman Wecke

Pre-series statistics on the 1928 world series have stood up badly. And unless there is a sudden change they are apt to be of no value. It has been said that figures never lie. But they certainly have in the case of the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Yankees.

For instance, season's records indicated that pitching would be on the side of the St. Louis club. It was pointed out that Bill McKechnie had four first class pitchers. And poor Miller Huggins? He had only one man who really had been consistent.

And what has come to pass? The Yankees have had the pitching. Waite Hoyt and George Pipgras have turned in wonderful performances. Hoyt, winner of 44 games and loser in but 14 in his last two major league campaigns, figured to be tough. He was worse than that. He was "poison" as a three-hit battle attests. And Pipgras, supposed to be inconsistent was right behind with a four-hit battle. He was inconsistent at the start of his battle, being rather wild. But put out in front for the second time, he came through with a sensational effort.

Now take the case of the Cardinals. Three of McKechnie's big four already have seen service. Bill Sherdel hurled a fine ball game, but he caught Hoyt at his best and dropped his third straight decision, though in 25 innings he has allowed only 19 hits and eight runs. Only four runs have been scored by the Cardinals in the contests in which he has been on duty.

Old Pete Not Himself.

That finished the first ace. The second, the old master, Grover Alexander, hero of the 1926 series was pounded off the hill in less than three innings. At no time in the second battle did Old Pete resemble the Alexander of 1926. The Alexander of 1928 was wild and he was batted freely. Thus the second ace passed out.

And hoping against hope that the Cardinals would uncork a real rally, McKechnie sent in another of his Big Four to relieve. It was Clarence Mitchell. The southpaw hurled a fine brand of baseball, giving two hits in the 5 2-3 innings he labored. But the Cardinal punch did not materialize.

Once Pipgras settled to his task, after the second inning, it was just a monotonous up, down, up, down for the Cardinals just as it has been against Hoyt. There were few breaks.

Thus in that one respect the figures certainly lied.

As regards the batting. Season's records showed the Yankees with a slightly better punch. The New

DIEGEL DEFEATS ESPINOSA 6-5, IN FINAL ROUND FOR PRO TITLE

By F. G. Vosburgh.
Associated Press Sports Writer.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 6.—Leo Diegel is the new king of the nation's professional golfers. Beating Al Espinosa of Chicago, 6 up and 5 to play, in the final round of the championship tournament today, the wiry professional of the Fenimore Country Club, White Plains, N. Y., ascended the throne made vacant when he defeated Walter Hagen in the quarter finals.

Diegel played golf that would not be denied. His shots were heart-breakers that wore out his opponent as they had done on the previous two days when this great match player downed Hagen and Gene Sarazen in successive battles. Probably never did a man fight his way to a title in fashion more impressive or more worthy of a champion.

In Espinosa Diegel met a player who had won the medal with a splendid 70-72—142 for this difficult Five Farms layout for which par is but 70, a man who had played around par virtually all week, shooting better golf over the entire stretch than he, yet when it came to the showdown it was Diegel who could win the holes. Espinosa, although putting up a courageous fight, was well out of it when they went to lunch after the morning 18 holes with Diegel leading by four up.

Espinosa Is Worried.

The genial Al, worried, strove to come from behind in the next nine holes, but the best he could do was to hold his opponent even and that exasperating lead of four

M'KECHNIE SLUGGERS HOPE TO REGAIN LOST BATTING EYES AT HOME

By J. Roy Stockton

There ought to be some new angle from which to inspect this world series trouble this morning, but there isn't. Deliberation, contemplation and retrospection all take you around and around in a circle until you come back again and again to Jess Haines and his knuckle ball.

Bill McKechnie and his men might gather around Big Jess and sing in plaintive tones: "It All Depends on You." And they could do it with considerable feeling. For it would come from the heart.

That's the way the Cardinals feel. That's the way they have felt ever since Lou Gehrig gathered up Ernie Orsatti's grounder and trotted gleefully to first base for the final out of Friday's game. The Cardinals looked to Haines, as they dressed after their second straight defeat, and they eyed him as they journeyed to St. Louis. They inquired solicitously of his health when their special train reached St. Louis yesterday afternoon.

And when they gather today at Sportsman's Park for the third game of the series, which will start at 1:30 o'clock, their first inquiry will be about Haines and his priceless right arm.

Experts shift quickly with the wind of victory. The hopeless Yankees of Thursday morning are regarded as sure winners now and the Cardinals are regarded as hopeless. And yet the outlook is ont as bad as all that.

Zachary Just a Southpaw.

Tom Zachary is expected to pitch for the Yankees, and there is no reason to believe that he will be able to match Jess Haines in pitching brilliance. Zachary is just a left-hander. He has won some valuable games for the Yankees this season, but he is not an outstanding pitcher. And with rare exceptions it has required outstanding pitching to beat back the Cardinal attack and outshadow the St. Louis hurling this season.

And there is every reason to believe that the Cardinals will shake off the shackles of the batting slump that gripped them at the Yankee Stadium. Certainly their slump against Hoyt and Pipgras was their longest period of helplessness of the season. They made only three hits off Hoyt and four off Pipgras. Hoyt fanned six of the Cardinals and Pipgras finished with eight strikeouts. That's 14 in two days and that's not according to form.

Inability to Judge Fast, High Balls Against Background Hurt Cardinals' Hitting

What is the explanation? The Cardinals have one. They say the Yankee pitchers threw the ball right out of the shirts and cravats of the fans in the center field bleachers at Yankee Stadium. During the regular American League season, they point out, a green canvas is stretched out there in the bleachers, a background against which the batters may see the ball. But with the strong demand for seats this was dispensed with and the result was that the Yankee fast ball pitchers were able to make monkeys out of the Cardinal sluggers.

It might be answered that this would work out even. But not so. The Cardinals did not use fast ball pitchers. Sherdel and Mitchell use slow stuff. Alexander depends on his control and well placed curves. And Sherdel and Mitchell pitched satisfactorily. But the bleacher shirts and cravats, the Cardinals maintain, enabled Hoyt and Pipgras to pitch on even terms with and even surpass the efforts of Sherdel and Mitchell.

"Huggins' pitchers knew what they were doing," one of the Cardinals explained. "They knew about those shirts and moving fans out there. If they pitched in the middle or lower part of the strike zone we were not bothered. But when they pitched high, the ball slipped right out of some bleacher fans' ear and whisked into Bengough's glove. Why they were pitching letter high to all of us. They threw the ball right through Bottomley's favorite groove. And Bottomley struck out three times in a row against Pipgras.

"They didn't try to pitch to any weakness of Hafey's, either. They rifled the ball right through the plate for him, letter high. And balls that he ordinarily would hoist into the left field seats, whizzed past him before he could get his bat around. You could not judge those high fast balls. You could see them, but there was no depth to the ball. You could not tell how far the ball had traveled. It was just a white spot out there and before we could time it, the thing was on us, past us and in Bengough's glove. Our timing was terrible. Right-handed batters hit pop flies to right field and right-field hitters, who are good hitters because up there swinging they are always out in front of the ball, sent little pops to left field."

Home Park May Aid Cards.

Perhaps the change to Sportsman's Park will take the Cards out of their slump. And perhaps the two straight defeats at the hands of the most active cripples who ever quit cots and stretchers and splints for the field of battle, will jolt the National Leaguers out of the complacent confidence which made them such easy marks for Huggins' team.

The suggestion was made before this series started that the delay in starting the series might work to the serious detriment of the Cardinals and the boys realize that now. All through the late stages of the pennant race all the National League contenders thought victory in their own struggle would carry with it, almost uncontested, the winners' shares of the world series money.

Writers covering the crucial games of the league campaign pointed out that the Cards and Giants were battling for the right to be easy conquerors of the Yan-

IMPROVED WASHINGTON U. TEAM DEFEATS ROLLA MINERS, 9 TO 0

DUNCAN SCORES TOUCHDOWN AND KURZ A SAFETY; STEINER STARS FOR VISITING ELEVEN

There were plenty of loose ends fluttering from the play of the ashington U. Bears when they were beaten by Westminster last week but most of these had been gathered up by the time they met and beat the Rolla Miners yesterday afternoon at Francis Field, 9 to 0.

The Bears were no killing machine yesterday, but they were a pretty strong outfit and considerably too good for the Miners, who are never absolute slouches when playing in St. Louis. Six times the Bears had a chance to score and only once did they cash in on an opportunity. Three times they were held for downs, once some one fumbled and another time a 45-yard penalty, half the distance to their own goal, temporarily stopped them. The Miners, with two chances for touchdowns, were held for downs once and penalized 25 yards the other time.

With a line opening holes on offense and playing fine defensive ball, poor judgment in direction of the team apparently prevented further scoring by the Bears. The return of John Duncan to quarterback proved a great help to the team in the way of individual ball carrying, but he didn't seem to be picking the weak spots in the enemy line so well. In fact, he almost habitually chose the wrong side at the critical moment.

Rolla was minus its familiar "Old Perpetuals." Lee, Ledford and Lemon, in the backfield, but uncorked two more classy backs in Ralph Steiner and Lester Simonton. Simonton was always dangerous in runbacks and other broken field play and Steiner was a great forward passer, in addition to being a punter and allround star. Steiner rifled his passes like bullets and might have used more to good advantage.

The game gave prospects of being a fearful "bust" in the first period. With the quarter two-thirds over neither side had gained more than five yards, all told, and late in the quarter, when Whittler and Duncan smashed through for two first downs to the 7-yard line, Rolla took the ball on downs. But when Steiner tried to punt out, Kurz, Bear end, batted the ball across the goal line for a safety and two points.

Following the free kick with which Rolla put the ball in play, the Bears started a real offensive, carrying into the second quarter, but lost the ball in sight of the goal when Coover, after grabbing a pass, fumbled when tackled. Steiner punted out and when Hornsby ran the ball back 20 yards to the 10-yard line, the long-sought touchdown seemed near, but on the first play a Washington man tripped an opponent and the Bears were set back 45 yards, half the distance to their own goal. This put heart into the Miners and they took the ball to the Bears' 6-yard line, but a 25-yard penalty for clipping took the ambition away from them and the half ended.

A pretty 80-yard runback by Duncan in the third period started the Bears on the way to their touchdown. They were held for downs on the 9-yard line and Steiner punted out, but the drive was resumed from the 36-yard line and didn't stop until Duncan had crossed the goal line. Next Saturday the Kansas Jayhawkers will be seen at Francis Field.

Yorkers had outhit the Cardinals on the series. But by no such margin as the present one, inasmuch as the Yanks are hitting .246 and the St. Louisans a mere .115, a difference of 131 percentage points.

Pitching Decided Both Games.

Wise baseball men say that world series are decided on pitching. This certainly has been true of the first two battles of the 1928 battle for supremacy. And all the pitching, at least the hurling which counted, has been on the side of the Yankees.

Fielding breaks have figured only slightly. In fact they have made no difference in the final result of the game. Each team has made two errors. One of the Cardinal errors, that a wild throw by Mitchell on a sacrifice, helped New York to an unearned run. That however, just added another to the New York total. Then one for the New Yorkers, that for Tony Lazzeri, aided in the scoring of two unearned runs against Pipgras.

Thus to bring out the batting impotence of the Cardinals so far just a bit stronger, the following figures are brought out. The Cardinals, in two battles, have tallied just TWO EARNED runs, one in each battle. Against this total the New Yorkers have a total of 12 EARNED MARKERS. Which is quite a difference in two world series games.

Those New Yorkers certainly have been hot. They have shown a dash and a spirit that has been lacking from the Cardinals' play. Maybe this will change when the St. Louis boys start playing before the home populace. But season's records are against this. The Cardinals, on the season, it will be remembered, were just a bit better than a .500 club at Sportsman's Park, whereas they played at .709 on enemy soil, winning their pennant mainly through their efforts on the road and not by what they accomplished at home.

This, however, must be changed if the team is to remain in the hunt for the 1928 world championship.

The Cardinals must get pitching and they must get batting.

And right now the Yankees are tough. They ahve that winning complex. They have captured six world series victories in a row, four straight over the Pirates in 1927 and two over the Cardinals. Which is probably a record. And, if possible, those limping, ailing sluggers of Miller Huggins want to add to the total.

It will be up to Jess Haines to stop them. And it will be up to the Cardinal batters to pound Tom Zachary. After that will follow Waite Hoyt and George Pipgras. Not a rosy outlook for a team which knows it must win or take the loser's end of the purse.

NOTRE DAME IS DEFEATED 22 TO 6 BY WISCONSIN U.

Elder's punt from behind his own goal line. Elder fell on the ball, preventing a Badger touchdown by a fraction of a second, giving Wisconsin a 2 to 0 lead at the end of the first period.

But the Notre Dame fighting spirit asserted itself at the start of the second period. Rockne shot in his "shock troops," Frank Carideo at the quarter, and Johnny Niemiec at half and they responded by punishing the Badger line with their rushes and a brilliant passing attack. Pounding the line and running the tackles, the ball was put within scoring distance. On a brilliant 15-yard dash, Niemiec went over.

Notre Dame fumbled at crucial moments, and alert Badger linesmen, turned the tide to the Cardinal soon after the start of the third period. After an exchange of punts Jack Elder fumbled on his own 3-yard line and Milt Gantenbein, substitute Badger end, fell on it. Bartholomew skirted his right end for a touchdown, but failed on his attempted place kick and the Badgers were in front 8 to 6.

On the kickoff, Johnny Chevigny fumbled to give the Badgers another break. Another Badger substitute, Lou Smith recovered and it was Wisconsin's ball on Notre Dame's 23-yard line. Frank Culsinger, the quarterback, faked a kick and then hurled a beautiful pass into the waiting arms of Lou Smith, who dashed 10 yards across Notre Dame.

Wisconsin's last touchdown was scored in the fourth period when they took the ball on their own 43-yard line. Behr hurled a pass to Cruisiner, who, aided by perfect interference, scamped 40 yards for a marker. Hal Smith, another substitute half, place-kicked for the last point and it wa sall over.

Kirkwood Eleven Crushes Clayton

By Henry L. Freund.

In the only County League game played yesterday Clayton fell before the powerful Kirkwood team, 33-0. Webster High traveled to East St. Louis and lost a hard battle, 13-6.

Kirkwood scored in every quarter, using their heavy weight advantage to wear out the lighter Clayton squad. Couch Lyons appeared to have made a favorable shift by changing Fedder from end to right half. He scored three of Kirkwood's touchdowns and played a fine allround game.

He was especially valuable on the attack, making a spectacular 40-yard run as well as a 30-yard dash. Berglund, in the line, made several fine tackles. The return of Chester Lindhoff, all-county guard of last year, added much strength to the forward wall. Capt. Boecler played a good game for Clayton, but his team's offense was weak, the plays being quickly smothered.

Webster fought gamely against their larger and more experienced opponents, the first half ending without a score being made by either side. Westrup of Webster who played a stellar game all afternoon, intercepted a pass in the third quarter and raced 45 yards for a touchdown.

The lineups follow:

SACRAMENTO WINS FIRST OF PLAY-OFF GAMES BY 5-1 SCORE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 6.—Getting to the San Francisco pitchers for 11 hits, including a homer by Dutch Hoffman in the seventh, the fast-flying Sacramento Senators of the Pacific Coast League walked away today with the first game of the crucial three-game series which will determine their right to play San Francisco for the league pennant. The score was 5 to 1.

Cards Confident Haines Will Stop Yanks Today

kees. It was taken for granted that the American League team would be a pushover.

And when the Cardinals clinched the flag at Boston they relaxed Their race was won. The world series would be easy. What a cinch it had been to win the winners' shares of the big pot of gold.

Then Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in New York, with the metropolitan press singing Cardinal praises and sobbing over the plight of the poor Yankees.

Thought Yanks Easy.

"We did think it would be a cinch," one of the players admitted on the trip from New York yesterday. "We couldn't help getting that idea. Every time we picked up a paper we'd read about how we were going to take four straight or four out of five at most. And after our bitter league race we were glad that the rest of the road to glory would be easy. But say, did you ever see such tough cripples? Why I haven't seen any signs of helplessness at the plate when those Yankee invalids batted. Ruth is batting over .700 with no legs and goodness knows what he'd do if he were a strong, well man.

"Well, we know now what we have to face. We know we're in the toughest fight of our career and if we don't snap out of it soon, there ain't going to be much more series. But wait till those Yanks see some fast balls. Jess will show them plenty at Spirtsman's Park and Zachary won't stop us. And I'll go farther. Hoyt won't pitch any three-hit game again and he won't pitch any six-hit game. Haines will win and Sherdel will win and Mitchell showed that he could stop the siege guns."

Yes, it would be fine if it all worked out that way. But once more we're going around in a circle and once more we come back to Jess Haines and his knuckle ball. It all depends on Jess.

GATES TO PAVILION AND BLEACHERS TO OPEN AT 8:30 A. M.

THE gates to the bleachers and pavilion at Sportsman's Park will be opened at 8:30 a. m. each day of the world series games in St. Louis, the Cardinal office announced today.

At that hour there will be 3500 pavilion seats at $3.30 each and 5000 bleacher seats at $1 each put on sale. After all the pavilion and bleacher seats have been sold, standing room will be sold. There will be room for approximately 3500 standees in the pavilion and 5000 in the bleachers and the standing room will be sold at the same prices as the seats.

When the windows are opened those in line will be permitted to buy two seats each, if they care to.

M'GRAW POINTS TO COME-BACK OF GIANTS IN 1921

By John J. McGraw,
Manager, New York Giants.

The fact of a team having won the first two games in a world series does not necessarily mean that it's a sure shot to win the championship. Except for the possible discouraging effect such a bad start may have on the minds of the Cards, both the Yankees and Cardinals should start just as fresh in the third game as if an ordinary series had started during a regular season. Change of battle grounds makes a lot of difference.

In 1921, the Giants lost the first two games of the world series to the Yankees, both being shutouts. The Giants came right back and forced the fight down to the seventh game and won.

With Jess Haines opening for the Cardinals in St. Louis, there is an excellent chance of them getting back in the series. The whole trouble with St. Louis has been the failure of their heavy hitters to run true to form, or even anything like real form.

"Swinging at Bad Balls."

Hafey, a natural hard hitter, has been unable to get going, as have Bottomley and Harper. Much of their failure has been due to an eagerness to hit which has made them go after bad balls. In the second game at New York, it was this swinging at bad balls that allowed Pipgras to pull himself out of a very bad hole.

With a day of rest intervening and a chance to play on their home grounds, I expect to see the Cardinals get hold of themselves and show the kind of baseball that made them champions.

There is nothing in the law of averages or relatives strength to warrant any ball club cleaning up a world series in straight games, even though it has been done. The clubs are too evenly balanced, in class for that. It is usually a matter of breaks or unlucky choices in pitchers.

For example, nobody could imagine Grover Alexander so completely lacking his regular stuff as he showed in New York. I can understand the sentiment that influenced the Cardinals to keep old Alex in, but I still think he should have been taken out when it became apparent that he could not get going. The players, though, can never forget how he saved them in 1926.

"Yanks Playing Naturally."

The strength of the Yankees so far has been in their naturalness in the field and at the bat. Strong hitters like Gehrig and Meusel have gone about their work as if it were a regular everyday job in midseason.

The Cardinals have shown a tendency to be over-anxious. The fortunate break for the Yankees has been their ability to overcome the loss of strength due to the absence of Combs and the partial incapacity of Lazzeri. They have not been missed at all. That absence of run driving power is bound to be felt to a certain extent over a series of games. It is unlikely that Ruth, Gehrig and Meusel and others will continue to hit as they did in the first two games. It is also unlikely that the pitching will continue so deadly effective.

To my mind the rest of the series will depend entirely upon Hafey, Bottomley and Harper. To get back in the series, these boys have got to hit the ball. If their slump continues, it is obvious that the Cardinals will be out of luck.

Likes Bengough's Work.

A pleasing feature of this series to me has been the excellent catching of both Bengough and Jimmy Wilson. The difference in their speed hasn't influenced the games yet. While Bengough is a very slow runner, he is a quick starter in going for a foul fly or a bunt. It is on the base path that he doesn't show up so well as Wilson.

Another good feature has been the excellent fielding around short-stop and third base. Roberts has proved his fighting qualities and so has Koenig. On the Cardinals' side, Maranville has been the same old star that made him famous many years ago. All baseball people like to see a veteran like that show his real ability. There was never a gamer player than Maranville and he is also a field leader.

I understand that Huggins will pitch Tom Zachary, his big left hander, in the first St. Louis game. This is a natural selection because it gives the Yankees a chance to come back with Hoyt and possibly Pipgras. The Yanks now have a big advantage in being able to jockey their pitching staff while the Cardinals must risk all on one man. I have an idea that Haines will prove hard sledding for the Yankees. It will be interesting to see how the Cardinals will work against a southpaw. So far they have hit at righthanders only.

The main thing is for the Cardinals not to be discouraged.

World Series Sidelights

Unless the Cardinal batting punch appears suddenly, the average for the series is likely to be ZERO.

At that, three regulars, Taylor Douthit, Andy High and Chick Hafey, have exactly that figure.

Seven hits in two games, an average of .115, is nothing to brag about. Not for a team that hit .284 over a stretch of 154 contests in the regular season.

Dr. Robert Hyland, club surgeon, traveling back on the Cardinal Special, though it was time to get down to carving when he saw "St. Johns" and "Red Cross," names of two of the Pullman cars.

Wonder if railroad officials thought the Cardinals needed assistance of that kind?

And Waite Hoyt, Yankee pitcher, is now a licensed undertaker. He sure embalmed the boys in his first out.

Maybe George Pipgras wanted a winter's job as his assistant.

Double Domino.

Tony Lazzeri and Joe Dugan are the only Yankee regulars with batting marks of blank, double blank.

Wonder what Babe Ruth would do if he had two GOOD legs?

Suffering from nurse maid's knee or something of that sort, he has been able to make only five hits. And he's hitting .714.

Series heroes to date: Babe Ruth, Waite Hoyt and George Pipgras.

Tough luck King—William Sherdel.

Series goat—None has appeared.

Boards of strategies have not been needed. Even a board of strategy cannot make hits or produce runs. Ask Bill McKechnie.

Statistics show that in 15 of the 23 world series already decided, the winner of the first game finished on top.

That, however, did not hold true in 1926. And the 1928 Cardinals still figure they will repeat.

Fielding thrills, what few there have been, have been supplied by Bengough, Koenig, Robertson, Maranville and Frisch.

If the Yanks Get Well!

Hope those ailing Yankees suddenly get well and start hitting straight at Cardinal fielders instead of those places in which no player is stationed.

Among those present at the St. Louis opener will be Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis. He has a new hat. As usual, photographers will rush to his box. And how the old boy hates that.

Jimmy Wilson was still talking about the mad taxi dash to make the special. Anytime anyone mentioned speed, Jimmy would moan, "Oh, what a ride!"

"We ain't down—just a little bent," was the consensus among Cardinal players.

Jess Haines and his knuckle ball will be on exhibition. And Old Tom Zachary will bring out the liniment bottle to oil up his aged soupbone.

Bar Wheel Chairs.

Wheel chairs will not be permitted on the field. The Yankee players don't even use crutches, despite reports of the crippled condition.

For a guy with a bad foot, this Mark Koenig gets around quite spryly.

Well, even experts boot them.

Of course, it has no connection with the world series, but remember the first Dempsey-Tunney fight.

And unless the Cardinals come through, the prognosticators will take another knockout potion.

That, however, is just one of the things in the life of experts.

Can't be right all the time.

Boston College Downs Navy, 6-0

By the Associated Press.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 6.—Navy's football ship was scuttled again today, this time by Boston College, 6 to 0. The Bostonians scored late in the first period and then held the middies at critical times to maintain their advantage which came with Weston's touchdown.

The Bostonians stopped Lloyd, Navy's star back, before he could get started. It was not until the third quarter that Navy showed anything like a chance to win. Then a second team, with Castree taking the star role, plowed through the New Englanders, only to have their play stopped when within scoring distance.

DAY OF REST MAY HELP CARDINALS MORE THAN THE YANKS---HUGGINS

By Miller Huggins,
Manager of the Yankees.

The day of rest which we had counted on as being so beneficial to the Yankees probably is proving a great break for the Cardinals instead. When a club is on the crest of a winning wave, any interruption is apt to prove harmful.

So far as the Yankees are concerned, we would have liked to play yesterday. It just goes to show how uncertain is baseball. The thing we had counted on to help us most, proves beneficial to the other fellow instead.

From a manager's standpoint, there's a danger of over-confidence in this two-game margin already piled up. To the average fan that two-game margin means that the series is as good as won. To a manager, it means the possible danger of over-confidence, and the necessity of keeping his players from growing careless or letting up in their play. While victory in the first two games is a fine start toward a championship, it doesn't mean that the championship is won.

You may remember that the Yankees won the first two games from the Giants in 1920 and while is more, won them both by shutouts. Yet the Giants came from behind and beat us out for the championship. In other words, we've got the big edge now, but we're not in yet by quite a distance.

Took Cards by Surprise.

We've still got a tough battle ahead. The biggest thing in our favor aside from the actual mechanics of play is that we have caught the Cardinals by surprise. They knew we would be tough, but the way in which we won those first two games has left them a bit dazed.

Hoyt's pitching in the first game they rather expected. They knew he was a great pitcher and they figured we would give them a battle in that first game. But they didn't expect us to knock Alexander out of the box, and they didn't expect Pipgras to pitch the sort of ball he did. So far as the morale of the two clubs is concerned, that victory over Alexander meant a lot more than Hoyt's victory over Sherdel.

A Series Without Strategy.

The series thus far has been particularly free from that thing called baseball strategy. There have been no tight spots where managerial judgment would win or lose a ball game. There have been no crises where mind held the whiphand over brute power and driving assault. Perhaps these spots will come today. Perhaps there won't be any during the series.

Some fans criticise McKechnie for leaving Alex in the box so long, but that's second guessing. I know how Bill felt. He figured that here was a great pitcher who was apt to hit his stride at any moment, and he didn't want to take him out. Besides that the Cardinals were hitting Pipgras hard in those early innings and it looked as if he wouldn't stay. I think I would have played the game just as McKechnie did.

Zachary to Pitch Today.

Today I'll depend on Tom Zachary to carry our pitching burden. I've got a lot of faith in Tom. He may not have the stuff that was shown by Hoyt and Pipgras, but he's a smart, cunning pitcher who knows how to pitch. Tom has pitched four games for us since he joined the club and in those four games he has had just seven runs scored against him. That's a pretty fair record.

More important still, I think Zachary is the type pitcher who will go best in that short St. Louis park. You know in a park where the fences are close, you've got to pick your pitcher carefully and Zach's slow stuff, his screw ball and slow curve are the type of pitches that aren't going to be socked out of the lot often.

BILLIKENS LOSE, 7-0, TO SPRINGFIELD TEACHERS, WHO SCORE EARLY

TINDALL RUNS 55 YARDS TO MAKE TOUCHDOWN ON THE THIRD PLAY; BROWN STARS FOR ST. LOUIS U.

By Gerald Holland.

The Springfield Teachers, hitherto an annual setup for St. Louis University, outsmarted the Billikens at the Public Schools Stadium yesterday and used a forward pass on the third play of the game to gain a 7-0 victory.

After "Snakes" Gazelle's poor kickoff to the Teachers' 35-yard line, two line bucks netted the Teachers only 4 yards, but on the next play, Stark, the visitors' triple threat star, tossed a 15-yard pass to Tindall, who ran the remaining distance, about 45 yards, to the goal line. Tindall also added the extra point with a perfect kick from placement.

The Billikens, outweighed 20 pounds to the man on the line, were all set for a line assault from the visitors. However, Coach Briggs of the downstate team put his hope in an aerial attack that netted the winners twice the yardage of the rushes. Eight passes gave the victors 90 yards gain, whereas they were held to 47 yards profit by the Billikens on attempts through the line.

Billiken's Offense Weak.

After the Springfield touchdown the Billikens' offense functioned poorly as a unit until the final quarter when three long forward passes were completed; all were in enemy territory and did no damage. Springfield was able to come within striking distance only once before scoring and on that occasion, early in the fourth quarter, a place kick failed.

Despite the fact that the St. Louisans made six first downs to Springfield's four, Anderson's team failed to show much improvement over that of the McKendree victory last week. With the notable exception of Ford Brown and Capt Dirnberger the team played a listless, not overly intelligent game.

Ford Brown, besides helping out with good punting played a bang-up defensive game and performed brilliantly on the receiving end of Dick Joyce's passes in the final quarter. As the third period opened, Brown skirted the end after a small gain through the line for a first down on his own 25-yard line. A pass, Joyce to Nalorff, added another 10, but the next aerial attempt was intercepted and Springfield advanced to a good position for the unsuccessful place kick.

Brown Makes Big Gain.

After the ball was brought out to the 20-yard line, Brown caught a 35-yard pass from Joyce and ran to the Springfield 45-yard line before he was downed. His good work was discredited, however, when Springfield broke through on the next two plays to throw the Billikens for a loss of 15 yards. Grimes was forced to punt and the march was ended. Joyce and Brown worked another 15-yard pass shortly after but a second aerial attempt was intercepted as the game ended.

However, if the game did not give the Billiken followers much satisfaction, it was worth the money if for nothing else than the fine exhibition of end play by the linemen of the visitors—Slater and Motesherd. These boys drove nearly every attempt around the ends into the unmolested tackles and a result there was very little gain through the line.

Bradley Scores Then Illinois Use Regulars and Wins

By the Associated Press.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 6.—Bradley Polytechnic Institute of Peoria proved too much for the University of Illinois second string and Zuppke was forced to insert his veterans to win, 33 to 6, before an opening day crowd of 25,000 today. Fritz Humbert, crack full back, scored three of the Illini touchdowns.

Starting the game with only three experienced men, Capt. Nowack, McClure and Stuessy, in the lineup, Illinois was scored on early in the first quarter when Bradley's stars, Capt. Metzer and Elness pounded the orange and blue line to permit Elness to plunge over. The Illini line and backfield was bolstered by 10 substitutions as the second quarter opened and Humbert soon crashed over for a touchdown.

The stands went wild as Humbert and the Illinois backfield started the third quarter with a smashing mixed attack which netted three touchdowns. Zack Hickman, playing his first game at halfback, fumbled in the opening quarter to give Bradley the opportunity to score from the Illinois 35-yard line.

De Paul University defeated the Illinois second team at Chicago, 20 to 7.

CUBS TROUNCE WHITE SOX IN FOURTH GAME

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Sheriff Blake allowed but eight widely scattered hits and the Chicago Cubs defeated the White Sox, 3 to 2, to take a lead of three games to one in the series for the city baseball title today. The Cubs got to the veteran spitballer, Red Faber, for 10 safeties, but none figured in the scoring. All three of the National Leaguers' runs were made in the second inning when Faber momentarily lost his control and the Sox defense crumbled.

Bob Falk scored the first Sox run with a homer into the right-field bleachers in the second inning.

Michigan Loses Opening Battle

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 6.—For the first time in the more than a quarter century tutelage of Fielding H. Yost, its athletic director and football wizard, the University of Michigan today lost its opening game for the gridiron season.

Outrushed, outpassed, and facing a superior forward wall, the Wolverines bowed, 17 to 7, to an alert Ohio Wesleyan eleven, also last year's opening game opponent.

Lacking individual stars of former years and a smooth-working passing combination like Oosterbaan and Gilbert of last season, Michigan found itself outscored 9 to 5 in first downs, on the short side of 140 to 91 yards gained in the rushing game and a yardage of only 29, compared to 57 in the forward passing department. Poor kicking, especially in the final periods, also put Michigan at a disadvantage.

World Series Proving to Be Repetition of the Flag Fight for Cards, McKechnie Writes

By William McKechnie,
Manager of the Cardinals.

Today is the day of the big test for the Cardinals, who, twice defeated by the Yankees, must win this third game or give up hope of anything but the loser's end. Admitting that the situation is serious, neither my players or myself are willing to concede the decision to the Yanks, quite yet. It isn't reasonable that a club with the punch possessed by the Cardinals can continue in as weak-hitting a mood as they were the first two scraps.

It seems to be the story of the recent pennant fight all over again. We once held a lead of six and one-half games but, running into a protracted hitting slump, lost that lead and found ourselves in second place. We were getting good pitching without the punch. Suddenly, the big hitters of the club began to come through again; the club regained the lead and never thereafter relinquished it. That is just exactly what I am expecting to happen in this series. The Yanks have a big lead but they are no more powerful than the Cardinals, that has been shown.

McKECHNIE.

No "Let-Down" in Spirit.

I think I would know if the players, surprised by their two defeats, were letting the tough luck of it get them "down." I have watched carefully and have seen no evidence of a let-down. They are game lads and may be expected to battle all the harder because of the two adverse decisions.

We are expecting Tom Zachary to oppose us today. He is a crafty workman and will be hard to beat, but, against him, we will use Big Jess Haines and, right now, I consider Haines the peer of any pitcher who will appear in the series. In baseball parlance, "he has everything," including speed and a "knuckler" which has made many a batsman moan.

Haines is in a difficult situation. He knows that his failure means practical elimination of the Cardinals as series contenders. He has seen two of his fellow stars, Alexander and Sherdel, fail and he knows his team-mates are expecting him to come through where the other two good men were unable to do so.

Real Test for Cards Today.

The Cardinals in this very crucial game will have to guard against tightening up. There is no fear in my heart that they will do so, but they are being tested. The Yanks, with two verdicts already to their credit, can be "free and easy" and take chances that, perhaps, the Cards could not afford to.

At no time, before the series began, did I take any stock in the "Bear stories" about the Yankees, nor did my players. They realized that the New Yorkers were a great ball club, and that the series would be a battle from the start. Ruth for instance, limps a bit on the field, but, in the two games he has had three doubles and a pair of singles, which gives him a batting mark of .714. Gehrig, too, has done well and owns a mark of better than .500. With two such sluggers in the lineup, no team can be considered weak.

But, looking at the present situation from every possible angle, I am confident that the Yanks will know they've been in a series before this one of 1928 is over. If the Cards can forget about slumps and such for a day or two, the series may be tied up before any one looks for it.

Haines will pitch today. He has the faith of his colleagues and I have no hesitancy in saying that the bigger the test of craft and courage, the more sure to react to it will be Haines.

We're not out of it yet.

St. Charles Runs Over C. B. C., 21-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. CHARLES, Mo., Oct. 6.—St. Charles scored its third victory and kept its goal line uncrossed thus far this season by defeating the Christian Brothers College eleven 21-0, this afternoon. Three touchdowns and a place-kick accounted for the winners' score.

In the first half, featured by a number of offside penalties for both teams, the St. Charles players showed a battling defensive and held their superiors in weight out of their territory. A place-kick in the second quarter by Schoenberger started the scoring.

The first touchdown was made in the third quarter when a fumble by Fuchs, C. B. C. half, was picked up by Bacon of St. Charles, who ran to within 10 yards of goal. Succeeding plays worked the ball to within arm's reach of goal where C. B. C. held for downs. On a punt by Hannigan, Feldmann received the ball and returned it to the 15-yard line and then Bacon skirted end for 11 yards. From the 4-yard line Schoenberg pushed through the line for the touchdown.

C. B. C.'s line was crossed twice in the final quarter. With St. Charles pressing them back on the offensive, they punted to Feldmann, who darted 40 yards through a broken field to within three yards of goal. Meyer, St. Charles half, went through the line for the second touchdown. After next kickoff, a fumble by McDonald was scooped up by Burke, St. Charles tackle, and he ran 35 yards to cross the line for the third time.

The lineups:

'FOUR STRAIGHT ONLY WITH THE BREAKS'--RUTH

By Babe Ruth.

You hear a lot of talk about the Yankees winning four straight games in the series. On the special train, which carried us to St. Louis, that was the chief topic of conversation among the newspaper men.

And of course, we may do it. But so far as the Yankees are concerned, we're not counting on it. Our policy from here on out is to play hard, make the most of our opportunities, and always keep back a little something for the pinches. You know, when two big league clubs meet in a world series, the odds are all against four straight. The clubs are too closely matched, there is too little difference in their ability to warrant such a thing.

We've got two victories. We'll win the championship as sure as fate. But if we clean up in four games, and I hope we can do it, it will be because we get a lot of breaks along with our good playing.

Winning that second game meant a lot more to us than winning the first one. We figured to win that first one and the Cardinals, down deep in their gizzards, figuerd us to do it. They were afraid of Hoyt. They figured he might beat them and they weren't down-hearted when he did it.

Second Victory Hurt Cards.

But winning that second one was the big thing. That hurt them. To have Alexander knocked out of the box and at the same time to have Pipgras hold them to four scattered hits was a blow that they won't get over for a long time.

I suppose we'll face Jess Haines today. It will have to be Haines for them. McKechnie can't afford to gamble. He's got to come in there with his best. And if we beat Jess, then it's all over but the shouting.

We'll send Tom Zachary in against Haines. And Zach is a great pitcher, particularly great in a game where there's a lot at stake.

Our pitching will be well taken care of. I haven't a bit of fear about that. All we've got to do to win again today and make it three in a row, is to get a few runs for Zach.

Haines was tough for us in 1926. He shut us out in one game, as you may remember, and pitched good ball in the final, though he was forced from the box late in the game. But here's our advantage. We've faced Haines. We know what he has. We know how he pitched and what to look for. The Cardinals haven't looked at Zachary. He's strange to them and they'll be guessing a lot over that slow stuff.

Frankly, I don't think Haines can beat us. I don't think any pitcher of that type can get by against the Yankees, once they know his style and his stuff. Alexander couldn't, I don't believe Haines can.

Yanks, Like Pretzels, No Good Until Out of Shape, Says Altrock

By Nick Altrock.

Everybody is saying that Grover Alexander is a last year's snowball but don't go wrong about that old papa. He is liable to step back into that there box and shut the Yanks out with 17 hits and 11 runs. Alex ain't through yet and there is always a little more steam left in his old boiler.

Them Yanks has vindicated my misjudgment by winning the first two games. It was just a breeze. Now, they are up against the Cards' home town. When a St. Louis rooter starts in to root he can make a scarecrow hunt up a new cornfield. They is very loyal in St. Louis and will pull for the Yanks like a dentist does when he gets hold of your tooth and pulls for the shore.

I figure the Cards will win today's game. There is a chance of them winning the next one. All depends on whether Huggins tosses Hoyt back into the arena. He may save Hoyt up for a rainy day.

My manager always saved me for a rainy day because when it rained there wasn't no ball game.

If Ruth's leg gets better, then the Cards will win. The Yanks can't play unless they is crippled. They is a pretzel team. No good unless they is out of shape. I will tell you all about the game and what happens today and I asked Gramm Mac Amee for another try at that radio. He says I can talk on the children's bedtime hour but I refused because I aint no nurse.

All-French Final In Coast Net Meet

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—America's hopes for turning back the stars of France in the Pacific Southwest tennis championships disappeared today when Henri Cochet, French racquet ace, defeated Alan Herrington of Hollywood, in the semifinals, 9—7, 6—4, 6—2. As a result of the match, Cochet will meet a fellow Frenchman, Christian Boussus, in the finals tomorrow.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy, veteran racquet wielder of Santa Monica, Cal., flashed into the finals of the women's singles championship when she easily eliminated Mrs. Charlotte Chapin of Springfield, Mass., 6—0, 6—1. Tomorrow she will meet Midge Gladman of University of Southern California for first honors.

Miss Gladman previously put Mrs. Anne McCune Harper of San Francisco out of the running for the women's singles title in two sets of 6—4, 6—4.

ALTROCK AND SCHACHT TO ENTERTAIN WORLD SERIES CROWD TODAY

Nick Altrock and Al Schacht, comedians of the Washington American League Baseball Club have been engaged by the Cardinal management to entertain the crowds before the world series games here. They will do their stuff daily beginning today.

PITCHING LUCK DUE TO CHANGE, OLD PETE WRITES

By Grover Alexander.

I expect Jess Haines to pitch just as well this afternoon in the third game of the world series as he did in 1926, when he shut out the New Yorkers.

Haines, you know, was one of our aces during the season. He pitched wonderful ball at the finish, winning nine straight games. In all of these he held the opposition to a low run total. Haines, when he is right, is a tough pitcher to beat. His knuckle ball is one of the best in the business and he bears down all the time.

A victory for Haines would put us only one game behind and then Bill Sherdel would be able to come back Monday and Sherdel will not be beaten all the time. He has allowed only 19 hits in 27 innings pitched in world series games, but in those the Cardinals have been able to score only four runs for him. That's why he has lost, although he has hurled wonderful ball. His next out I expect im to be returned winner and I am certain that in the next two battles he will draw on even terms with the Yankees.

"Pitching Luck Must Change."

Another thing, the wonderful pitching Huggins has received cannot last forever. In the first two contests we have been held to seven hits and a batting average of less than .125. That is not our true pace and once back at Sportsman's Park I expect Hafey, High, Bottomley, Frisch and the other sluggers to break out with a rash of base hits. You know you cannot win without hits, and that is why we have dropped two in a row to the American League champions.

It is not the first time the Cardinals have been down. During the pennant race, you will remember, we went into a slump and lost a six-game margin and first place only to come along and win out. We expect to do the same in this world series. The Cardinals have just started to fight and fans will see them at their best in the St. Louis games. It will be different playing on our home field.

Yes, it is true it looks mighty bad with a deficit of two games to overcome, but Haines and Sherdel, pitching the way they have lately, can put us right back in the running. And then I expect to see the Cardinals go right on to victory.

Hopes for Another Chance.

I would like nothing better than another chance at the American League champions. You know, when I am without control, I am out of condition. Control is my long suit. In the second game I walked four batters in less than three innings, something unusual for me.

I did not have all my stuff and because of my wildness, I had to come through the center quite a bit and the Yankees did some hitting. But I still think I can beat them. That defeat, incidentally, was the worst one I have suffered in world series play since 1915, when I was beaten by the Red Sox while a member of the Phillies. That's a long time ago, but I think I am still just as good a pitcher today as at that time. One thing, I know how to pitch better than I did then.

In passing, I would like to make a few remarks about the pitching of Clarence Mitchell. He gave a wonderful exhibition in holding New York to two hits after I had been batted out of the box. He's a hard man to beat.

Babe Ruth has shown us a lot of fancy hitting. He has been stopped without a homer, but he has hit just about everything thrown to him, as an average of .714 shows. He has made no homers because our pitchers have kept him from hitting to his favorite spot—right field, but five hits in seven tries is quite a record. I think, however, he will be stopped before the series is ended.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—In the greatest confusion the game has known since the U. S. Football Association was organized by Tom Cahill and Dr. G. Randolph Manning in 1913 and put out of commission the old A. F. A., pro-football will be resumed on a broad scale in the metropolitan area today—legalized and outlaw.

A unique situation is presented by the U. S. F. A. proclamation. The entire American Soccer League, premier professional circuit of the kicking game, is under suspension for having failed to obey a mandate of the national body to rescind its action of two weeks ago in suspending three of its member clubs and fining them $1000 each for having entered the U. S. F. A. annual national cup play this season in violation of an intro-league agreement.

In so doing, the national organization imposed a second suspension on the three clubs it is supporting in their stand against the league, but it will shield them, undoubtedly in any legal or international federation action growing out of their continuing to operate under the dual bans.

U. S. F. A. Sanctions New Body.

Indeed, the U. S. F. A. has sanctioned the new nine club United States League of which the three most clubs formed the nucleus, and which swings into action today as the accredited Eastern pro wheel, with the six times national champion Bethlehem Steel eleven invading Long Island for the first time to oppose the N. Y. Celtics at Queens Park.

This is the head line event of the mushrom circuit, but simultaneously, at Starlight Park, Bronx, the N. Y. Giants, linked with Bethlehem and Newark in the fight on American League imperiousness, will participate in a match against a picked Montreal team, composed of players at the Carsteel, Canadian National and C. P. R. elevens—all names to conjure within dominion football.

Meanwhile, Newark will be busy on its own terrain at Kearney, N. J., and Trenton and Paterson, also linked in the new U. S. league, will make their debuts, as Philadelphia as other Saturday clubs did yesterday.

A. L. Survivors to Continue.

Coincidentally, the seven standpat American League clubs will continue as if their status was clear.

Chas. A. Stoneham's New York Nationals, who declined to enter the National Cup lists this season to defend the U. S. title they won last season in a playoff with the Chicago Bricklayers on Soldiers' Field, Chicago, will reinvade the Polo Grounds against the New Bedford Whalers.

At Hawthorne Field, Brooklyn, the Brooklyn Wanderers, just behind the pace-setting Nationals in the now-outlaw American League struggle, will tackle the Fall River team, erstwhile national and pro champions.

Great Strength on Both Sides.

Next week-end the U. S. leaguers will go at it on a fixed schedule basis and the technically non-existent American League will continue with its seven club schedule as if nothing had intervened to make a tangled mess of the whole Eastern pro soccer program.

The lines are tautly drawn. With Stoneham, Sam Marks of Fall River, G. A. G. Wood, Boston steamship magnate; Nat Agar, backer of the Vienna Hakoah, Hapoolbor and Palestine tours, and others of means on the American League side, and the Lewises, H. Edgar and W. Luther, president and an auditor, respectively, of Bethlehem Steel Co., Maurice Van de Weghe, New York and Montreal fur merchant, Tom Adam of Newark, Bill Toner of Astoria Celtic fame and strong Philadelphia and Trenton backing, in the new league camp, a finish fight is in prospect. And while the war is on, a feast is in store for Eastern soccer fans.

The Passing Show.

THE Yankees' "badly battered" crew,
From Broadon's boys have captured two
Engagements quite exciting.
Like Custer in his final stand,
The Cards at Dodier and Grand,
With backs to wall are fighting.

A Brownie vast-off, Cedric Durst,
Into the Yankee lineup burst
And reaped a bit of glory.
As in the case of many Browns
Who emigrate to other towns,
It is the same old story.

Before the series had begun
The Cards, who had already won,
In confidence were gaining.
The Yankees were so lame and ill
They couldn't field or hit the pill,
The experts were explaining.

The issue never was in doubt,
The experts having counted out
The hopeless Yankee cripples.
In fact, the Yankees were so lame,
They had to intersperse the game
With home run clouts and triples.

We still continue in the hope
The Cards will justify the dope—
To fight they haven't started.
The Yanks may get more crippled still
And pulverize the pesky pill,
But we are not downhearted.

Blucher or Rain.

Don't forget that the Pirates lost the first three games to the Senators in 1925 and then won out in a driving rain.

"Record Trading in Eggs."

Branch Rickey and Charley Barrett please note. Looks like a banner year in the Hot Stove League.

Ten hundred and fifty-one cars of eggs changed hands on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange while the Cubs and Sox were battling for the city championship.

As the egg market goes, so goes the pennant. There's a hen on.

Pipgras was wild in the first inning the other day. After which he proceeded to tame the Cards who were getting wilder all the time.

Pip says at first he couldn't get hold of the ball. After that it was the Cards who couldn't get hold of it.

Have a Heart.

Huggins says the hitting of the Yanks has been good and he hopes it will get better. Better let well enough alone, Hug.

The Cardinals' batting average of .115 for two games would indicate that the wicks in their batting lamps need trimming.

Roosevelt Wins From Principia

By Davison Obear.

The Roosevelt High School football team defeated the Principia Jpnior College, eleven, 13 to 0, in a game at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. In a preliminary contest the Principia Academy and Western Military Academy class A teams played to a 0 to 0 tie.

Owing to the warm weather both games were somewhat slower than usual. The attendance was estimated at 600 persons. Bert Clark, former Missouri University and Principia star, sat on the Principia bench during the games. Clark is now in business in this city.

Coach Marquard was somewhat handicapped by the absence of Fred Bomhoff, outstanding star of last season.

ARKANSAS DEFEATS COLLEGE OF OZARKS, 21-0

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Oct. 6.—Opening their home football season here today, the University of Arkansas Razorbacks defeated the College of the Ozarks, 21 to 0. Arkansas made 22 first downs and the Ozarks 5. The game was slowed by hot weather.

MARY INSTITUTE WINS 3 TO 2 IN HOCKEY OPENER

Mary Institute Alumnae won the first honors of this year's local field hockey season by defeating a team representing the St. Louis Hockey Club, at Mary Institute playground yesterday, in the first of a series of matches being scheduled by the St. Louis Field Hockey Association, to be played this month and next. The score was 3 goals to 2. Ume Chaplin of the winning team was high scorer, with 2 goals, to which her teammate, Nancy Semple, added another. Margaret Boggs and Eunice Childs each scored for the opponents.

Although field hockey practice was only begun within the last two weeks, Miss Hilda Burr, English amateur coach for the hockey association, said both of the participants showed marked signs of being considerably stronger than they were last year. The teams are two of the leading ones among the 16 comprising the St. Louis Field Hockey Association.

Dee Boeckmann In New Role.

Outstanding among the players yesterday were Ume Chaplin and Marian Bischoff, for Mary Institute Alumnae, and Ernestine Long and Dolores ("Dee") Boeckmann, member of this year's American Olympic team, for the St. Louis Hockey club. Miss Boeckmann, who heretofore has not given as much attention to hockey as to some other sports, showed considerable improvement over her last year's play, both in stick work and in following the ball.

Several changes in the lineup were made in the course of the match, to give substitutes an opportunity to play, but the official lineup was as follows:

Mary Institute Alumnae.

Right wing—Ume Chaplin.
Right inside—Nancy Semple.
Right half back—Florence Pettus.
Center half back—Alice Chaplin.

Violets Defeat West Virginia

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—New York University's Violets upset the Bobcats of West Virginia Wesleyan today by a score of 26-7. The superior line strength and stamina of the home team told the story.

The Bobcats held Chick Meehan's men to one touchdown in the first period, but the Violets came back with a rush thereafter and staged a plunging attack the Mountaineers could not halt.

Strong and Follet, mainstays of the New York University backfield, got away time after time for long gains and the Bobcats could not break through the Violets' staunch front line.

As the last period neared an end, with New York University leading by 26-0, the Bobcats uncorked an overhead game and Miller, picking one out of the air from Rodriguez, went over for Wesleyan's only touchdown. The Violet defense was completely outwitted.

Score by periods:

New York	0	7	7	12	—26
Wesleyan	0	0	0	7	— 7

New York scoring: Touchdowns—Follet (2), Oherin, Myers. Points after touchdowns—Strong, 2 (place kicks). West Virginia scoring: Touchdown — Miller. Point after touchdown—Rodriguez (drop kick)

SYRACUSE U. BEATS WILLIAM AND MARY

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The Big Bill Orange of Syracuse University steam-rollered William and Mary College in Archbold Stadium here today and piled up a score of 32 to 0, before a crowd of 10,000 persons. The Orangemen ran wild in the first quarter, scoring two touchdowns. Another was scored in the second and one in the fourth. Sebo, Stevens, Loucks and Capt. Hal Baysinger carried the ball for the Orange victory. The Southerners were helpless before the plunging backs of the home team, but made one stand in the third quarter, which they held scoreless.

VANDERBILT UPSETS COLGATE BY 12-7 SCORE

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Pessimism of their own supporters was not enough to down the fighting spirit of Vanderbilt University's Commodores who took the measure of the formidable Colgate eleven this afternoon by a 12 to 7 score.

Granted little more than a fighting chance, the Commodores took it and battled their way offensively from the first whistle to the last, barely giving the Colgate team enough time in Vandy territory to score a touchdown and extra point.

Jimmy Armistead, Vanderbilt's famed captain, starred from the start, when he ran through tackle for 76 yards and a touchdown after having chosen to receive the kick.

SOLDAN BEATS ALTON HIGH ELEVEN, 19-0

By Harold Tuthill.

Soldan exhibited several reasons why it must be counted as a contender for the football championship of the Public High School League, as the West Enders forward passed their way to a 19 to 0 victory over the Alton, Ill., High School. Only a small crowd saw the game, which was played yesterday morning at the Public School Stadium.

One of the reasons is Dave Cook, Soldan's quarterback. Incidentally, Dave is the son of Jim Cook, the Soldan coach. Cook placed Soldan in a position to score late in the first quarter, when he returned a punt 60 yards to Alton's 10-yard line. It was not until the second quarter that Cook was able to take the ball over for the first score.

Joyce Scores on Buck.

In the same period, Cook flipped a pass to Hellmich for 40 yards, but Soldan lost the ball when another pass was grounded behind the goal line. Shortly after that, Hardin intercepted an Alton pass and ran 30 yards before he was downed on Alton's eight-yard line. Joyce, substitute for Cook, carried the ball over on a line buck. Shapiro made the total points 13 when his place-kick was good.

With the Soldan regulars back in the third quarter, the West Enders worked the ball down to Alton's 30-yard mark, from where Cook tossed a pass to Minkey, who fell over the goal line. Cook's attempted place-kick for the extra point was blocked.

Reserves Prove Valuable.

The fact that Soldan has a wealth of capable substitutes is another reason for rating Soldan's chances for a successful season highly. There were two complete teams used, and while Alton made a determined effort to score in the final period, the second-string players repulsed them. One of these substitutes, Hardin, made an excellent showing in the backfield yesterday.

The lineups and summary:

SOLDAN.		ALTON.

Beaumont Beats St. Louis U. High

By Robert W. Herr.

Beaumont's prospects for a successful season brightened considerably as the North Siders trounced St. Louis U. High, champions of the Prep League, at the U. High field yesterday morning by a score of 19-0. On a comparative basis, the victory places Coach Lewis' men on a par with Soldan, which last week administered a 20-0 defeat to the Bills.

Coach McCarthy's eleven, outweighed 10 pounds to the man, got off to a bad start when Wittrock went over for Beaumont in the first minutes of play. The try for the extra point failed and St. Louis held for the rest of the quarter. In the second quarter, however, the North Enders worked the ball deep into Blue and White territory and Nichols counted from the three-yard line. Later in the period, Barnhouse, subbing for Wittrock, carried the pigskin off tackle for 15 yards and Baumant's third touchdown.

During the first half, play was almost entirely in St. Louis territory, but the Junior Bills came back strong in the second half and took the ofensive. The drive fell short, however, and Beaumont punted out of danger. The North Side second team finshed the game. For St. Louis Stoltman and Saffa were outstanding, while Weidner and Wittrock played a bangup game for Beaumont.

The lineups:

ST. LOUIS.	Position	BEAUMONT

WRAY'S COLUMN

A Real Test.

THE heavyweight championship fight situation is such that bouts in this division might be judged by a cheesemonger rather than a referee. Undoubtedly some member of the large and fromagenous group posing as boxers will be labeled champion, ere long; but he will only be the head limberger of the bunch.

Tex Rickard is planning an elimination series for some dozen of these aspirants. Most of them will enter without any obligation, but with the chance that they may worm their way through to a title and harvest a mighty bunch of kale.

They owe the public something for such an opportunity. They ought to give the event the stamp of sincerity by posting their own coin as a guarantee that they think they have a real chance.

Rickard should make the elimination a sort of sweepstakes in which each entry must post $10,000 of his own or his manager's money, the entire sum to go to the winner as in sweepstakes horse race. Rickard to add a percentage of the gate receipts.

Such a condition would freeze out the pikers and keep in only those men who had a real chance. It would make a stake worth fighting for, when added to the gate percentage and it would convince the public that the fighters had a real belief in themselves.

He May Be Right.

A GENTLEMAN who objects to the vigorous "ride" we have given Young Stribling in his new capacity as heavyweight title aspirant, declares that he picked Stribling two years ago to become world's champion by the time he was 25.

He may be right about it. If Stribling succeeds, in the writer's opinion it will not be because Stribling is so good, but because the opposition is so bad. It would not be the first time the title was held by a fighter who lacked the essentials of a real champion. He would have to be terrible, to be worse than Jess Willard, Marvin Hart or Tom Burns, all champions in their day.

Stribling may indeed slide into the place.

In some ways Stribling is not so bad. In fact he is so good in some certain aspects that he ought to feel ashamed if he doesn't win the crown.

He is a splendid-looking athlete, built like Hermes—strong, fast and, against an opponent of little class, looks like a world-beater. He can hit, too, when his vis-a-vis can't hit back. He seems qualified to box rings around the entire outfit of men who may be opposed to him, with the possible exception of Jack Sharkey and Tommy Loughran.

Yet, unless he has changed since the writer saw him toss away his future in a hit-and-run fight with a second rater like Eddie Huffman, he will fold up like a collapsible chair when facing a resolute and dangerous foe.

Terrible as some of the candidates for the title honor seem to be, yet most of them have sterling fighting qualities, aggressiveness and resolution; they do not give up. Apparently Stribling has not been equal to besting that type of opponent.

"Strange" Bedfellows.

THE State Boxing Commission is perhaps the most queerly assorted group that ever united to control boxing anywhere. A minister, a lawyer, a director of athletics and a chain-store groceryman compose the board.

Not one of them was familiar with the conduct of professional boxing. None is a politician, although all are Republicans.

This group accepted office with the thought of putting the game on a high plane. They had no axes to grind or favors to pay. None needs money, and in fact the only salary is attached to the secretaryship, which is held by Ben F. Harrison of Springfield, whose income runs around $2000 a month, while the office pay was $100 a month.

In Kansas City, Gabe Kaufman and others had to be shown the light before the game moved smoothly there. But the skids are greased there now.

In St. Louis the promoters as well as the city commission caused trouble by petty violations of the rules. But the commission is satisfied that, with the aid of some excellent officials and disinterested inspectors like Maj. Edward Handlan, it will iron out the difficulties.

It may be said that one of the difficulties, the City Commission, has not submitted readily to the ironing process.

A Reverend Referee.

REV. EARL Blackman, the "Fighting Parson," assistant to Dr. Burris Jenkins in the pastorship of a Kansas City chuch, is probably the only minister in the United States, perhaps in the world, who holds an official license from a commonwealth to referee fights. The Rev. Blackman is licensed by the Missouri commission and handles the fights at all the Negro clubs in Kansas City.

The Rev. Blackman's name was first considered for a place on the commission, but it was learned that his politics did not permit. His superior, the Rev. Burris Jenkins, was then named; but Dr. Blackman is his adviser.

Blackman is probably the only man connected with the commission who had an actual intimate knowledge of boxing at the time the body was named.

Scipio Africanus Reborn.

THE long-suffering worm has turned. Badgered and bullied by its own Frankenstein, the American Soccer League, the United States Football Association, is going to fight back.

The domineering professional body created by Thomas W. Cahill will soon go to war with another organizatoin created by the same leader.

Because three teams of the American Soccer League chose to enter the U. S. F. A. cup race, they were suspended and fined by the American league. Since then they have seceded. Now advised by the canny Tom Cahill, the 1928 Scipio Africanus, the parent soccer body is going to carry the war right into Africa. With the three teams as a nucleus, a new professional league will be formed to compete in the enemy's country.

That will deflate the Frankenstein quite a lot.

Incidentally, St. Louis ought to make a bid to get a team or two into the new league. By playing games in the East on Saturdays and Sundays, the expense of the long trips would not be intolerable.

A connection of a major-league nature might shake our local soccer teams out of their present lethargy.

COUNTRY DAY IS SHUT OUT 7 TO 0 BY WESTERN M.A.

Displaying a driving attack and a tight defense, Western Military Academy defeated Country Day School 7 to 0, on the Codasco field yesterday afternoon and stepped into first place in the Prep League race. It was the first game of the season for the Cadets and stamps them as a strong contender for the league title.

Neither team was in mid-season form and fumbles were friequent. The Western machine, though slow in gathering momentum, kept the ball in Codasco territory during the first and second quarters and scored shortly before the end of the period. The Cadets' touchdown came as the result of a fumble, when a muffed Country Day punt was recovered on the Red and White 5-yard line, and Smiley plunged across on the next play. Hesley's kick scraped the top of the crossbar for the extra point. There was no more scoring.

CHAMPION PITT ELEVEN SMASHES BETHANY, 53-0

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 6.—The championship University of Pittsburg football squad rode rough shod over Bethany in the second game season here today, winning, 53 to 0. The Panther chances for a largery tally were offset by penalties in several instances.

Pitt started scoring in the first quarter, and also opened the second quarter in much the same manner as the first, scoring a touchdown on the third play. Williams went through tackle and over the goal. Edwards missed the point.

Bethany began an offensive but the attack was unavailing and they were forced to punt.

In the third period, the ball was recovered by Goldberg for Pitt on the Bethany's 15-yard line when Baker fumbled after one play at the line following Pitt's kickoff to start the second half. Walenchus hit the line twice and then Wilps dashed through for a touchdown; Rooney placed kicked for the point. Bethany's offensive was smothered and a short time later Wilps ran 18 yards for his third touchdown. Rooney annexed the point. The period ended shortly afterward as Bethany was forced to punt. Score: Pitt 47; Bethany 0.

Pitt scored again in the last period when a pass was intercepted by Walenchus who ran to the 39-yard line. Petroskey and Schultz made gains and then Petroskey made 12 yards. A series of plays placed it on the 3-yard line and Goldberg scored through right tackle. He failed for the extra point.

CHICAGO EASY WINNER OVER WYOMING, 47-0

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The University of Chicago's Maroons redeemed its double defeat of last Saturday and rubbed Wyoming's Cowboys in the dirt, piling up 47 points, while the Westerners, meeting a Big Ten team for the first time, failed to even threaten the Maroon goal.

Wyoming took a flying start and Farrell, Cowboy half back, counted for a first down, shoving the ball well into Maroon territory, but Jaer, Wyoming fulback, fumbled and Mendenhall, Maroon half back recovered the ball. Mendenhall and Raysson, Maroon half back, pushed the ball through the light Wyoming line for two first downs, a bad punt of Farrell's gave the Staggmen a chance, and after Rudy Leyers, Stagg fullback, hung up two more first downs, Mendenhal, wormed through right tackle four yards for a touchdown and added the extra point with his toe. The period ended with Wyoming holding the ball on its own 25-yard line.

Harkins Leads Wyoming.

Harkins, Wyoming halfback, led his team's attack, ringing up three first downs around Maroon wings. Mendenhall kept Chicago out of danger, however, by returning Farrell's punt 25 yards to midfield.

With five minutes to play, Wyoming lost the ball when Farrell's pass went wild, and Chicago opened up a passing attack that put the ball on Wyoming's 15-yard line, from which Cassle, substitute Maroon guard, placekicked a goal. The goal was not counted, and the Cowboys had the ball on their 20-yard line, but Farrell fumbled, Chicago recovered and on a fake dropkicked, Bluhm, Maroon quarterback, snapped a pass to Libby, substitute Maroon halfback, who twisted through half the Wyoming team for a touchdown. Cassler booted the extra point, and the half ended as play was resumed.

Vannyce, sophomore, fullback for Chicago, rolled and stumbled 11 yards for Chicago's third touchdown near the last of the period. Raysson and Mendenhall opened up the Wyoming line for 10 and 12 yard gains, to put Chicago in position to score. Cassle kicked the goal. The period ended with Chicago holding the ball on its own 36-yard line.

Carries Ball 44 Yards.

Van Nyce, on the opening play, carried the ball 44 yards to Wyoming's 20-yard line. Burgess, substitute Maroon back, whipped off right tackle for Chicago's fourth counter, Burgess' try for the extra point bounded back from the goal posts. Rayson and Burgess ripped the Wyoming line to shreds and Burgess went through right guard for five yards and his second touchdown. Proudfoot, substitute Maroon tackle, missed the try for goal. Van Nyce repeated his run of the beginning of the period, and Heywood, sophomore Chicago quarterback, burtled over right end for the score. Burgess added the point. Chicago started down again, Heywood got on the long end of a team-mate's pass and tramped 18 yards for his second touchdown. Proudfoot kicked the goal, and the game ended. Score: Chicago 47, Wyoming 0.

ARMY NOSES OUT METHODISTS BY A 14 TO 13 SCORE

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 6.—Army nosed out the Mustangs of Southern Methodist University by a single point margin, 14 to 13, today in a breath-taking battle that marked the first intersectional football invasion of the East by a southwest Texas eleven. All the scoring took place in the first half.

Army never before saw as many forward passes, trick formations and lateral passes as the Mustangs, one of the finest teams in the South, hurled at and over them. Fincher, Mustang, took Hume's lateral in the first period and ran 15 yards for a touchdown just before the sensational Red Cagle whipped a 42-yard pass to Callmark and then burst through center for an Army score. Hutchinson ran 20 yards for Army's score in the second period, while Hume dashed 50 to count an Army fumble for the Mustangs. Sprague kicked two points after touchdown and Southern Methodist one.

During the second and third periods the two elevens struggled brilliantly and desperately, narrowly missing a score on both sides, but closing the struggle without changing the count as it stood at the end of the first half: Army 14, Southern Methodists 13.

Princeton Team Buries Vermont

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 6.—Princeton's football team opened its season in Palmer Stadium today by swamping Vermont, 50-0. The Tiger team, bolstered by six members of last year's eleven, scored in every period and gave a convincing exhibition of their powerful running attack.

Ed Willmer was the ace of the Princeton attack, going over the goal line for three scores.

Springfield High Wins.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 6.—Springfield High 1927 district football winner, opened its drive for a second Big Ten high school conference title here today with a 19-6 victory over Lamar. Tolliver, 16-year-old sophomore, scored two touchdowns and paved the way for the other with a 50-yard end run. A long pass gave Lamar its touchdown.

LEO DIEGEL WINS THE PROFESSIONAL GOLF TITLE FROM ESPINOSA

NEW YORK PRO, UP THROUGHOUT, WINS 36-HOLE FINAL 6 AND 5

holes still hung over his head as the final nine started.

They split even on the first of them, but Al's putting touch began to weaken under the strain. He three-putted away the next two and could get no better than a half on the short thirty-first. This was enough to beat him.

As the battle ended, on a green far from the clubhouse, the shout raised by the enthusiastic gallery of some 2000 which had followed the play for miles announced the winner and a bank swung into the triumphant strains of "Hail to the Chief."

In addition to being the first National Championship ever won by Diegel, it was the first to be decided over this new course, a long and tricky layout which won the hearts of the pros. The new champion said he had felt he would win. He has yet to lose a match in Maryland. Diegel already holds the Canadian Open Championship, won earlier in the season, but the nearest he had come to winning the P. G. A. title was in 1926, when he was runner-up to Hagen.

In addition to taking his place beside Bobby Jones, winner of the amateur title, and Johnny Farrell, open champion, Diegel receives a cash prize of $1000. Every club in Diegel's bag was working like a magic wand. He was at his deadliest when nearing the green. His approaches were dead and his putting was accurate.

On the other hand, nothing seemed to drop for Espinosa, even as Hagen and Sarazen before him he found his best strokes playing him false under the strain of knowing that a hole was as good as lost unless it was shot in par.

Diegel in Trouble.

Striking all kinds of trouble in traps Diegel was forced to concede the second and take a six on the sixth, going two down. There were few in the gallery then who would have given much for Leo's chances but the match was young. Leo made the next two in threes, one below par and a stroke better than Espinosa could do. A fine drive, a perfect approach and a single putt told the story on these holes which are 349 and 355 yards long respectively.

From that time until they knocked off for lunch, Leo played par golf. After halving the ninth and tenth in perfect figures he took the lead for the first time at the eleventh when Espinosa took a long time to size up his second shot, then hooked it into a trap. Al was not long in discovering that whenever he went over par he lost a hole and it may have been a disturbing observation. He appeared nervous, an airplane soaring low made him fidget.

Diegel picked up another hole with par three at the short thirteenth. Espinosa's ball collecting a big cod of mud as it hit the green and refused to roll straight thereafter. It took him three putts for a four to hole the balky ball. Another sensational birdie three by Diegel at the 402-yard 16th made him three up and Al was off the green with his drive at the short 17th taking a four and losing it to Diegel's par. The White Plains pro was now four up. Although his drive landed under a parked car and the machine had to be moved before he could play his second, Leo gained a half at the 18th to hold his lead.

They started out in the afternoon by halving the first three holes, Espinosa getting a break on the 19th where his drive, in a trap, was neutralized by Diegels short second.

It was Diegel who drew first blood in this round taking the short 22nd with a par three after Espinosa had driven short in the rough and missed a 12-foot putt. 163 yards in length, this hole was one of a type Diegel lost in the six days of tournament.

The best Espinosa could do on the way out was to win back a hole making it four-down again. It was a missed 7-foot putt by Diegel for a five at the 25th which made this possible after that hey halved hree holes in par before Al three-putted himself out of the tournament at the 29th and 30th and lost his last chance with a par half at the 31st another of those short holes made to order for Leo's accurate irons.

FRISCH NEVER SAW A GREATER WELCOME

"I've been in four world series but I never saw a demonstration that came up to the one today," said Frankie Frisch, captain of the Cardinals, after yesterday's parade. "I think it should be an inspiration to the team to come back fighting. It was wonderful."

Frisch was not a member of the championship Cardinal team which won the pennant in 1926.

TEEING the ball preparatory to driving off seems a relatively unimportant matter so long as it is done so the club may come at the ball. As a matter of fact, however, most first-class players take considerable pains to place the ball properly and often vary the method according to the type of shot desired.

I myself for a normal drive prefer an unusually high tee, leaving the ball a full inch off the ground, if the surface of the tee is firm. I use a driver with a fairly deep face, and I find if the tee is high I have a much better chance to hit the ball squarely in the center of the club. Also, I do not have a feeling that I must go down after the ball, as I would if it lay close to ground.

The high tee gives me complete confidence to hit with the sweeping stroke which I believe to be an essential of long driving.

H. D. Gillies, an English surgeon, once created a sensation by using a tee nearly 10 inches in height. The instrument was fashioned of wood and was adjustable to two lengths, one very long, the other of about four inches. The inventor always claimed that he was able to drive longer and straighter using that tee than with any other method. He never had an opportunity to use it in a championship, however, for on the eve of competition there was posted in the clubhouse a polite request by the Royal and Ancient Committee that contestants "refrain from using unusual appliances" during the play.

Lowering Tee Aids Play in Wind.

THE adjustment of the tee is very important in combating a cross wind. I find that by reducing the height of the tee and consequently lowering the ball, I create a tendency to fade the shot perceptibly. So when, because of a right hand wind or the slope of the fairway, I feel that I should like a bit of cut, it is a simple matter to press the tee slightly lower and to stand a very little closer to the ball. It is natural then to hit downward upon the ball and at the same time close in against the left side of the body.

Similarly if the wind comes from the left, the high tee helps admirably. In that case stand a bit farther from the ball and permit a slightly greater turn of the hips and shoulders during the stroke. The result is a shot bending slightly to the left which will hold dead straight or curl up into a left hand wind.

Francis Ouimet made an interesting suggestion about driving at Brae Burn, a suggestion which indicates that Francis makes use of the tee in about the same way as I do. I had been complaining of being continually in the rough to the left on all my tee shots and he asked Francis if he had by watching me hit upon a possible explanation. He called attention to the high tee I was using, saying that such a tee usually caused him to hook because it tempted to hit the ball upward.

The Ball in Strategic Position.

WHERE tee markers are placed generously at part it is possible by taking note of the requirements of the shot to gain a considerable advantage by teeing on one side or the other of the teeing ground. For instance if there is a boundary or hazard close upon the right of the fairway, it will make the drive far easier if the player will tee as close to the right side of the tee as possible. He can thus improve the angle of his shot and place himself where he is playing away from the boundary or hazard instead of alongside or toward it. The difference is small, but it is worth using.

E. St. Louis High Downs Webster High Team, 13-6

The East St. Louis High School downed Webster High School, 13 to 6, yesterday in a football game played on the East St. Louis field. Webster was unable to stop Baskette, the hard-hitting East St. Louis back, who scored both of the winning eleven's touchdowns.

The first half was uneventful, both teams showing to little advantage, but in the second half Webster broke through for the first score, when Westrup intercepted a pass in midfield and scored.

East St. Louis came back and by dint of strong line attacks carried the ball down the field and crossed Webster's goal line in each of the closing periods. Kirchoff's try for the extra point was successful in the third quarter.

The score by quarters:

COCHET AND DOEG WIN DOUBLES NET TITLE

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—The Pacific Southwest tennis championships tournament passed its semi-final stage this afternoon, leaving Henri Cochet, singles champion of the United States and France, as its outstanding star.

Cochet and John Doeg, brilliant Santa Monica, Cal., youth, won the men's doubles championship by defeating John Van Ryn, former Princeton tennis captain, and Berkeley Bell, Austin Tex., star. Previously the French Davis Cup team became the probable winner of the tournament singles title, when he downed Alan Herrington of Hollywood, to meet a fellow Frenchman, Christian Boussus, in the finals tomorrow.

The doubles title match was carried to the full five set limit, it being made an uphill match by the strenuous battling of the losers, and the scores being 3—6, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, 6—2.

America's only hope for the singles title, Herrington, was beaten by Cochet, in the semifinals to the tune of 9—7, 6—4, 6—3.

KAISER MEETS MANGUNA HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

By Damon Kerby.

World series visitors who are also fight fans, will have an opportunity to attend a fight card here tomorrow night at the Coliseum, in which Peewee Kaiser of St. Louis will meet Milton Manguna of New Orleans in the feature featherweight event of 10 rounds.

The bout will be the third meeting of the pair. In their first bout about a year ago, at Little Rock, Manguna outpointed Kaiser. Last winter, when Matchmaker Jack Tippett was seeking an opponent for Kaiser, the St. Louis boy requested that Tippett sign Manguna, in order that he might thus have an opportunity to even the score.

Manguna agreed upon a second bout, and both Manguna and Kaiser went into the battle to definitely settle the ill feeling which grew out of their first meeting. Each landed hard and often and in the fifth round Manguna fell to the floor with a claim of foul.

An examination failed to disclose any sign of the alleged low blow and the verdict was awadred to Kaiser. The commission, taking cognizance of Manguna's good record, authorized that he be paid his full purse, with the understanding that he be rematched with Kaiser here.

Kaiser, a veteran, is still active and carries a wallop in his right hand. His opponent, Manguna, is a youngster in years, but has had considerable experience in the ring. St. Louis fans who saw their second bout here expect the pair to furnish a fast battle.

Kennedy to Meet Trabon.

"Irish" Kennedy, St. Paul welter who meets Joey Trabon of Kansas City in a 10-round bout, showed considerable promise in a bout here last spring when he defeated Buddy McDonald, a tough local lad, in decisive fashion. Kennedy has been under the training of his fellow-townsmen, Mike and Tommy Gibbons, and he displays great activity and some cleverness besides a fairly heavy punch.

Trabon, who has been fighting about six years, has not appeared here before. His record shows that in 14 fights this year he has lost only to Sammy Mandell "Kid" Kaplan and Baby Joe Gans.

In a third 10-round bout, Tom Pivic, local Croatian light heavyweight, meets Jerry Sullivan of Chicago. Pivic has a great capacity for absorbing punishment, while his opponent also is a newcomer in local boxing circles.

Lou Terry, hard-hitting local lightweight, meets Tommy Quinn of Brooklyn, N. Y., in the fourth event of 10 rounds. Terry recently returned from a ring campaign in the East. Quinn has shown promise in local workouts.

INDIANAPOLIS IS VICTOR IN LITTLE WORLD SERIES

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 6.—Indianapolis, pennant winners in the American Association, won the Little World Series over Rochester, flag winners in the International League, when it took its fifth game of the series here today—4 to 3. Rochester won only one contest of the series and tied another.

Two errors by Shortstop Gelbert, with easy double plays in sight, paved the way for Indianapolis scoring all of its runs. Rochester made a belated rally in the ninth inning and scored two runs. A sensational stop by Third Baseman Haney halted the rally when it was at its height, and Layne ended the inning with a fly to right field. Previous to that Urban had forced Monahan at second for an out.

Bill Burwell, veteran Hoosier pitcher, and Herman Bell, Rochester's star hurler, were on the mound. Sensational support was given Burwell. Bell pitched a splendid game but a cracked defense proved his undoing.

Miss Alice Clifford And A. B. Kurrus Wed at Church

Large Gathering of Guests Witnesses Ceremony at St. Michael's and All Angels'—Go East on Honeymoon.

ONE of the most interesting of the autumn weddings was solemnized last evening at 8:30 o'clock at St. Michael and All Angels' Church, when Miss Alice Clifford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrew Clifford, 5922 Enright avenue, became the bride of Albert Bernhardt Kurrus, son of Mrs. F. J. Kurrus of East St. Louis. The marriage service was read by the Rev. Dr. Karl Morgan Block before a large gathering of guests.

Preceding the pledging of the vows a program of nuptial music was given by Paul Fries, organist, and Miss Adelia Ghio, harpist, who played "Nocturne in E Flat" by Chopin, and "Liebestraum" by Liszt. A mixed quartet sang a group of ancient wedding hymns. The altar, lighted by cathedral candles, was adorned in great clusters of white chrysanthemums against a background of greenery. The chancel was banked with palms, and garlands of wild smilax entwined the altar rail. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford. The receiving line stood in the living room, which was decorated in white chrysanthemums and palms. White tapers in candelabra softly lighted the room.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended by Miss Florence Hemsley as maid of honor; Miss Dorothy Ladd, Miss Martha Garland and Miss Emma Mae Dorris as bridesmaids. Dr. Alfred Marquad was best man for Mr. Kurrus and Clark McAdams Clifford, brother of the bride.

George Metcalfe and Edward Ludwig were groomsmen.

The loveliness of the young bride was accentuated by her picturesque wedding gown of ivory tinted Duchess satin copied from the styles of medieval times. The bodice was designed with a yoke of Chantilly lace and long tight sleeves of the lace falling to a point over the hand. The skirt touched the floor and was caught at front by a garniture of orange blossoms and gardenias. Her court train was cut to a deep V, showing the lace in the bodice, and was weighted at the hem by orange blossoms. The veil of tulle was arranged with a narrow rose point lace headdress and was fastened at the back of the head, revealing the golden hair of the bride. She carried lilies of the valley and gardenias. Her only jewelry was the bridegroom's gift, a string of tiny pearls.

The gowns of the bride's attendants were of chiffon and tulle, shading from a deep pink to orchid. Miss Hemsley and Miss Garland wore becoming gowns of chiffon made on long sweeping lines with crushed girdles of orchid velvet, from which fell short trains of the velvet. Miss Ladd and Miss Dorris wore bouffant gowns, fashioned with basques of orchid transparent velvet and skirts of many layers of orchid tulle, short in front and dipping to the floor at the back. Short trains of tulle fell from large velvet bows at the waistline at the back of the bodice. They all wore orchid tinted slippers and carried bouquets of orchid baby chrysanthemums. Mrs. Clifford wore a gown of flesh chiffon embroidered in silver, and her flowers were orchids worn in a corsage. Mrs. Kurrus, the bridegroom's mother, was gowned in black chiffon velvet trimmed in point Vinesse lace, and her flowers were tea roses.

The bride's gifts to her attendants were dainty strands of graduated pearls with orchid crystals at the center. Mr. Kurrus gave his best man and groomsmen monogramed silver and gold inlay belt buckles.

New Hats Arrive

An Important Collection of Advance Styles in Felt . . . Velvet . . . Soleil . . . at $10

Very smart, very new, very fine in their superior textures of fur felt, Lyons velvet, rich Soleil with a gleaming surface. And very clever in their interpretations of Paris styles...the poke, the eyeline hat, the brimmed hat longer at one side, and the turban which is so new a fashion. And very knowing in their color-choice—black, the bright blues, rich browns and greens and wine-reds.

Can a large head-size hat be youthful? These new models answer emphatically "yes"—for many of them are designed in larger head sizes, for women who always require a large size, and for younger women, who are letting their hair grow.

"Happiest Girl in Missouri"

So many mothers nowadays talk about giving their children fruit juices, as if this were a new discovery. As a matter of fact, for over fifty years mothers have been accomplishing results far surpassing anything you can secure from home prepared fruit juices, by using pure, wholesome California Fig Syrup, which is prepared under the most exacting laboratory supervision from ripe California Figs, richest of all fruits in laxative and nourishing properties.

It's marvelous to see how bilious, weak, feverish, sallow, constipated, under-nourished children respond to its gentle influence; how their breath clears up, color flames in their cheeks, and they become sturdy, playful, energetic again. A Missouri mother, Mrs. Wm. Hinley, 821 Madison Ave., St. Louis, says: "My daughter, Velma, became so constipated that I was badly worried. Then I decided to give her some California Fig Syrup. It stopped her constipation quick; and the way it improved her color and made her pick up made me realize how run-down she had been. She is so sturdy and well now, and always in such good humor that neighbors say she's the happiest girl in Missouri."

Like all good things, California Fig Syrup is imitated, but you can always get the genuine by looking for the name "California" on the carton.

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Beautiful Complexion Quickly Acquired

A sure and unfailing way to completely beautify an ugly complexion is to peel the entire outer skin off with pure mercolized wax. The wax, obtainable at any drug store, when applied nightly, like a cold cream, gently removes the defective mask in tiny particles, a little at a time, until all the discolored, blemished skin completely disappears. The under skin blooms forth, clear and smooth, glowing with the freshness of youth. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty. To quickly remove wrinkles and age lines, use as face lotion 1 ounce powdered saxolite and ½ half pint witch hazel

MOVEMENT TO CURTAIL IMMUNITY OF ENVOYS

England Expected to Take Lead in Making Diplomats More Amenable to Local Laws.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Great Britain probably will soon take world leadership in curtailing the diplomatic immunity which cloaks the person, family and entourage of ambassadors and renders them safe from prosecution in civil or criminal courts. The question is now engaging the attention of the Foreign Office and an important pronouncement of policy bringing the antique privilege into line with modern practice and thought is expected in the near future.

It is fitting that England should take the lead in remodeling a custom which she, herself, instituted 200 years ago. At that time the Russian Ambassador to England was dragged out of his carriage by some Londoners who demanded that he pay a $250 debt that he owed. Peter the Great, who was then Czar of Russia, indignantly demanded that the assailants be hanged. Parliament, however, compromised by passing an act conferring upon Ambassadors and their staffs immunity from being sued in English courts, arrested, imprisoned or having their personal or real property distrained. A clause was added whereby any British subject who molested a foreign Ambassador or his servants should be subject to fine, imprisonment or corporal punishment.

This theory of immunity of diplomats was picked up by nearly every other nation in the world. In latter years it has led to much friction with local governments. Ambassadors, as a rule, behave with much greater respect for local laws than the ancient custom demands but sometimes their servants show a greater zeal for availing themselves of diplomatic privileges than the Amebassadors themselves.

Three Recent Incidents.

Ambassadors of three great nations have recently been involved in local incidents wherein diplomatic immunity prevailed.

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, and Alanon B. Houghton, American Ambassador to England, were involved in motoring accidents in the countries to which they are accredited. In Houghton's case, an embassy automobile driven by an English chauffeur on the streets of London struck a boy riding a bicycle. Diplomatic immunity prevented the mother of the boy from getting satisfaction in her suit against Mr. Houghton or the insurance company which underwrote the liabilities of Houghton's automobile.

In Sir Esme's case, his automobile, driven by his 14-year-old son, knocked down a 12-year-old girl on the streets of Washington. Sir Esme immediately placed his family surgeon and an Embassy automobile at the disposal of the little girl, who was only slightly injured. The girl's parents did not even consider any legal action but, if they had, Sir Esme would have been immune.

The Marquis de Merry del Val, Spanish Ambassador to Great Britain and a brother of Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of State, was called upon to pay damages when a Spanish Embassy automobile upset on a London street a motorcycle and sidecar in which a man, his wife and 4-year-old daughter were riding. The Marquis declined and placed the blame on the driver of the motorcycle. He could not be sued.

Leading British newspapers have been citing such incidents to show why Ambassadors should be subject to court action the same as ordinary citizens.

Embassy Cook Pleads Privilege.

A cook belonging to a foreign Embassy in London was arrested on a charge of drunkenness and brought into the Marylebone police court. He successfully pleaded his diplomatic right to get drunk.

Section three of the diplomatic privileges act says that an Ambassador "is entitled to complete immunity from the jurisdiction of the local courts except in cases where he submits to or invites the jurisdiction of those courts." Under the present law a foreign embassy is the territory of the nation whose flag it flies. The King's laws do not obtain and the place is not subject to entry and search.

Knowing this, some Chinese in London sized the late Sun Yat Sen, who afterwards became President of the Chinese republic, and locked him up in a room in the Chinese Embassy, with the intention of smuggling him out of the country and back to China. Dr. Sun threw a note from an upstairs window, in best melodramatic fashion, and the police found out about it. Realizing then that the kidnaping could not be carried out, Dr. Sun was released by the conspirators.

A South American diplomat went to a London nursing home or private hospital for treatment by specialists. He left without paying his bill. Diplomatic immunity saved him from being sued. Bethmann-Hollweg, German Ambassador to London, before the war, refused to pay the water rates on his residence at Walton-on-Thames. A diplomatic immunity plea was upheld.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—Fifteen hundred metal signs have been ordered by the State Game and Fish Department for use in marking the auxiliary game refuges and public shooting grounds. Five hundred have been shipped to various game refuges. The signs, which will be displayed on the boundary wire surrounding the game refuges, are black on white, and prohibit hunting in the refuge.

...w England Is Handling Unemployment Problem and Lessons Gained by Experience

...conomist Says British Industrialists Find Good Wages and Comfort Pay; Insurance Against Idleness.

...Henry R. Aldridge, a leading sociologist and economist of England, ...ho was secretary of the International Housing Congress in London ...d of the International Housing and Town Planning Congress also held ...re, and who has been prominently identified with the Congress of ...giene, Berlin, and the Devastated Areas Congress, Paris, analyzes ...gland's experiences and draws a few lessons and some warnings for ...e United States in the following article:

By HENRY R. ALDRIDGE.

...LL the world has watched En...gland wrestle with an unem...ployment situation, ascribed ...riously by economists as due to ...r peculiar position or to the ...al phases of the industrial rev...olution which all nations must in...vitably face.

Regardless of the varying theo...ies as to fundamental causes of ...British unemployment, interest in ...e attempts to solve the prob...m has been universal. In the ...ited States in particular, econ...ists and business men have ...atched events closely, probably ...the hope that if the same sit...ation some day overtakes this ...untry, pitfalls may be avoided ...d lessons learned from Britain's ...ly experience of the last five ...ars.

The first note that the writer ...uld like to strike is a warning ...ainst the acceptance of the the...ies of those who wish to secure ...ceptance of the view that high ...andards of wages and comfort ...nnot be permanently maintained ...a modern state in which there ...ree competition between pro...ers and distributers in the ...ious industries.

...d Not Wage Cut.

This, emphatically, is not the ...w of the great captains of in...stry in Great Britain. On the ...ntrary, those leaders who are ...e engaged in close consultation ...th the leaders of the organized ...rkmen accept, as a starting ...int, the view that high post-war ...andards of wages should be ...adfastly maintained. Their ...al is not one of wage reduction ...t of greater efficiency in pro...uction. This efficiency is to be ...ained by greater confidence, wid...r sympathy and closer co-opera...n between capital and labor. In ...eir view low wages, depression ...d shrinkage of demand are all ...rts in a vicious circle. If a ...an does not earn good money he ...not a liberal spender. The ...ll-filled envelope is essential to ...al prosperity. But the pay en...elope must be well filled as a re...lt of vigorous, cheerful work...anship.

A great amount of unnecessary ...ibulation will, therefore, be ...ved to the United States if lead...g statesmen will recognize that ...e one line of action which ...ould not be adopted is that of ...anting old shibboleths concern...g supply and demand and buy...g labor in the cheapest market ...if it were simply a commodity ...d had no reaction whatever on ...e phenomena of supply.

...mployment Insurance.

The second lesson which may be ...ained from the post-war ex...rience of Germany as well as ...at Britain is that the princi... of unemployment insurance is ...olutely sound. The writer is ...aware that this statement ...ll be vehemently denied by ...e who have visited Great ...in the last few years and ...o have sincerely endeavored to ...e the views of those they have ...t in the course of their jour...eys.

In this connection it cannot be ...early pointed out that the ...anagement of our own kith ...d kin has, in recent years, be...me almost a disease with the ...ish people. Again and again ...e writer has heard with indig...ion statements made by men ...d women—who ought to know ...tter—to the effect that the ma...ity of those out of work were ...t because they wanted to be so ...t would, if they would only set ...ut it, find something to do. ...e worst offenders in this re...ect are womenfolk. They demand why it is that when there are so many women unemployed it is difficult to get domestic servants. I understand the same question is asked in the United States. Not one in twenty of these women is aware of the fact that directly a woman worker engaged in an industrial occupation takes work as a domestic servant she steps out of the ranks of insured persons and enters a class which, in the past, has been exploited, both in regard to wages and hours of work, in such a way as to produce a feeling of determined antipathy toward domestic service.

Slacking Charge Not Proved.

This does not represent an excuse for the antipathy, but it does explain why it is that a woman who has enjoyed the greater humanness and freedom of the factory is reluctant to quit the ranks of industrial workers and join the ranks of domestic servants. By becoming a domestic she becomes a member of a class which, while insured for health benefits, is regarded under the British law as outside the scope of industrial insurance against unemployment.

So far as the charge of "idle slacking" is concerned it is enough to say that the charge is not proved. It is true that from time to time cases are reported in which it is said that men in receipt of unemployed pay do all within their power to evade the acceptance of new employment. These cases represent to those who are familiar with the phenomena of large-scale statistics what the writer ventures to call the "fallacy of the single instance."

It is quite true that there are idle poor. But there are also idle rich. Slackness and the desire to lounge are not limited to the working classes. When cases come into the zone of public comment, and examples are forthcoming of lazy "public house lizards" who prefer to leave the burden of the maintenance of the house and family to their wives and children, every newspaper in the land regards the news as worth publishing. This proves that these cases are really abnormal. If they were normal they would be so common as to be uninteresting. The public demand for news is for strange, startling and eventful items, not for the unheroic truths of humdrum day-to-day existence.

Tests Are Applied.

As a matter of fact, tests are applied from time to time to the recipients of unemployed benefit with, as their definite purpose, the determination of the willingness of the worker to enter employment. Registers in the kingdom were passed in review and every hundredth case investigated. The result was to place once more beyond question the fact that the great mass of unemployed persons are out of work, not because they are evading employment, but because there is a surplus of labor on the market.

Looked at with a single-minded desire to be dispassionately just, the system of unemployment insurance, which was copied from Germany by Great Britain in the years preceding the war, has proved of inestimable benefit to the British workman. So far as freedom from abuse is concerned it is not a hundred per cent scheme. But then it is a human scheme, devised and administered by human folk to deal with human problems, and it possesses

Capt. Wilkins to Study Distribution Of Drifting Ice in Antarctic Seas

Expedition Which Will Operate From Deception Island, 2500 Miles From Point at Which Commander Byrd Will Enter South Polar Region, to Leave Montevideo in Norwegian Whaler.

CAPT. SIR GEORGE H. WILKINS.

By CAPT. SIR GEORGE HUBERT WILKINS, Commander of the Wilkins Antarctic Expedition.

(Copyright, 1928.)

ON BOARD THE SOUTHERN CROSS on the way to Montevideo, Oct. 3.—We are headed for the bottom of the world, Antartica. Most of the details have been arranged, the supplies packed, preparations completed. We are getting nearer and nearer our first depot, Deception Island, and the real work is soon to begin.

In my previous articles I have told of our plans and hopes. I have described our Lockheed planes and instruments and have detailed the equipment we will need in plotting the geography of the Antarctic coast line. Now, I will tell briefly of some conditions we will meet and the things we will see as we journey still further south.

When Wilkins' Antarctic Expedition leaves Montevideo it will sail south on the whaling factory ship Ronold, as guests of the Hektor Whaling Co. of Larvik, Norway. We shall be comfortably berthed, well fed, and will live among clean, hygienic surroundings.

Norwegian Whalers' Boats to Be Used.

These Norwegian whalers are hospitable and scientifically inclined people. Generously they have placed at our disposal their boats. Both the Wilkins Antarctic Expedition and the expedition headed by Commander Richard E. Byrd will use these whaling ships. Commander Byrd is going to sail on the whaler Larsen, which goes to the Ross Sea. Our boat is taking us to Deception Island, on the Atlantic side of the Antarctic continent—2500 miles away from the frozen ice barrier where the Larsen will land Commander Byrd and his officers.

Many years ago, when second in command of the British Imperial Antarctic Expedition I first met the Norwegian whalers. Today I count them among my best friends.

When we leave Montevideo, our planes will be lashed to the flensing platforms of the factory ship. The huge waves that roll uninterruptedly right around the world between South America, South Africa, Australia and the Antarctic continent are the biggest to be seen anywhere else on this globe.

It is impossible to tell just where we will meet the ice packs. Sometimes they are far north, sometimes quite near the land. It is just that variation that so greatly influences the weather conditions in more northerly latitudes.

To Chart Distribution of Floating Ice Fields.

Part of our work, even before the motors of our Vega planes begin to disturb the silence of the frozen south, will be the charting of the distribution of the floating Antarctic ice.

There is much of interest and much of danger in these drifting masses of ice. The huge packs still the tossing waves. When we near the frozen ice packs the seas will become calmer and our path will be smoother, as a rule.

But if the winds are very high—and the Antarctic is noted for the terrific velocity with which these cold blasts hurl themselves down from the polar plateaus—trouble actualy packs up. The big ice packs drift before the winds and pile up in ridges. These ridges get thicker and higher, and it becomes difficult and finally impossible for a ship to plow its way through them.

Seven parts of the ice is beneath the level of the sea. This enables the ocean currents to prevail and send the big frozen masses in directions that often are opposite to that of the high wind that may be howling along at 60 or 70 or 90 miles an hour.

Terrific Crush Force of the Larger Icebergs.

Sometimes huge icebergs cut across the lighter floes plowing through them as a majestic liner plows through open water.

These icebergs sometimes are the size of a city block. Some have been the size of a city. If a vessel is fast in the ice in the course of one of these drifting ice masses, its doom is sealed. It will be crushed like a match box under foot.

Generally the Antarctic ice pack is loosely drifting to and fro in water that is streaked in bands of green and blue. These color bands puzzled observers for some years, until researches showed that the color is the minute sea life with which Antarctic waters teem. The green is nothing but millions of tiny shrimps. Dip a bucket of water out of the deepest patch of green and you will see the little shrimps—the staff of life of the sea existence. These poor shrimps feed the birds, the seals and the huge whales.

Stuggle for Life Among Marine Denizens.

From the tiniest shrimp to the biggest whale, there is just one huge cycle of marine life—a constant struggle, a battle of the deep. Many a drama of the frozen south will be enacted in our path. The seals usually are found where ice is plentiful. We expect to see many of them—the "crabeaters, the Ross seals and the Weddell seals." They lie on the floating ice, basking in the sun. The throb of the ship's engines does not disturb them. But danger lurks in those colorful, frigid depths.

Sometimes one can watch a seal, peacefully basking in the sun, suddenly make a desperate leap for life. Somewhere close by there flashed the deadly jaws of the killer whale, and the seal is squirming out of the way. Most of the seals I have seen in Antarctic waters bear the marks of their narrow escapes on their hides.

Often we have seen the seals leap from the water, slashed and bleeding. I recall in the days when we were drifting along in the "Quest," Sir Ernst Shackelton's boat, there would suddenly appear a swirling, crimson patch on the surface of the peaceful water—mute evidence of another sea tragedy.

"Killer Whales" Outlaws of the Antarctic Depths.

No form of life, of considerable size, is immune from this terror of the icy seas, the killer whale. The "killer" is dreaded by all, including the big whales. The "killer" belongs to the toothed whale family, and it earned its name.

The killer whales are of no use to the whalers. Too small and too lean to be worth the trouble to harpoon, the "killer" prowls the Antarctic waters preying on other marine creatures.

Generally the "killers" are about one-third the size of the blue whale, so much sought by the whaling ships. This fierce outlaw competes with the Norsemen in hunting the blue whales.

In silent, frozen nights, around the dimly lighted cabins of the smaller whaling ships, tales have been told of the big blue whales caught alive with their tongues partly eaten by "killers."

The killer whale hunts his blubbery brother much as a fox chases a sheep. When the big whale gets out of breath, tired out by the smaller and faster foe, his tongue hangs out of his mouth, a tender delicacy of no mean proportion. Then the "killer" makes a lunge, the deadly jaws snap like steel knives, and the big blue whale is minus his tongue. Exhausted and bleeding, the big animals die, and many carcasses are found floating on the surface of the water.

Penguin Rookeries a Fascinating Sight.

These killer whales hunt near the edge of the Antarctic pack where other forms of life are found. It is there that we will first see the real Antarctic penguins, Mother Carey's chickens, the beautiful black and white cape pigeons, petrels, albatross, gulls and many other birds.

The penguins are probably the most interesting birds on earth. They are at once pathetic and ridiculous, solemn and funny. At a distance they look like tiny men in evening clothes. Their actions are deliberate. Their blue-black coats, white-feathered fronts, short legs and upright postures give them a dignity surpassing anything possible in animal or bird life.

A penguin rookery is a fascinating sight. To watch these curious birds is to see certain phases of life in cross section. They are great actors. Even their method of proposing marriage is not much unlike that of civilized man.

Explorer Describes the Struggle for Life Among Marine Denizens of the Frozen Ocean — "Killer Whales" Prey on Larger Species—A Penguin Courtship as Formal as It Is Funny.

Formalities of Courtship in Penguin Land.

The lady penguins stroll about, casting roguish eyes at the other sex. The males, those that fail to react, stroll up and down the beach unimpressed and unconcerned.

When a male penguin finds the lady of his heart's desire, he picks up a stone, selecting it as carefully as a man might select a diamond ring for his bride. If the lady penguin is in receptive mood, she takes the stone and places it on the spot she has chosen for her nest. But if the unfortunate male has failed to make the proper impression, the courted penguin refuses even to look at the stone and walks away with haughty mien.

I plan to make a study of these interesting birds. The motion picture camera will help make a record of the penguin rookeries.

There are several species of penguins, ranging in size from the little fairy penguin, a few inches high, to the great emperors that stand four feet high and sometimes weigh 120 pounds each.

Terns Said to Travel From North to South Pole.

Mother Carey's chickens are known as harbingers of storms. They are little, swallow-like birds with fluttering wings that never seem to rest. They flutter over and above the water with their feet dangling as if they were walking on the surface of the ocean. For many years the sailors in the southern waters thought that these birds, like the albatross, slept on the wing. When we were last in the Antarctic we found their nesting place in the sub-Antarctic islands.

The albatross range in color from the pure white variety, made famous by "the ancient mariner," to the sooty albatross, pitch-black and shiny.

Other interesting birds are to be found in the Antarctic circle. The diving birds, first cousins of the penguins, can just manage to fly a few feet at a time, but next to the penguins are the most able divers in the entire bird family.

Near the high-peaked rocky islands of the Antarctic we will see cormorants and terns. One species, the Arctic tern, is probably the greatest traveler on earth. These beautiful slender rose-colored birds with crimson bills and feet are thought to make yearly journeys from the Arctic to the Antarctic. Perhaps some of the birds we saw about Spitzbergen last May will greet us in the Antarctic in December.

Robber Gull Plunders Neighbors' Nests of Eggs.

The skua gull, and the chionis are two extremes in feathery curiosities. The skuas are known as robber birds. They steal eggs and young of every other bird nesting in the south. They have the look of rogues, and they certainly live up to their appearance.

In the chionis the ornithologists have what probably is the greatest curiosity in their field. It is a white bird, a little larger than a pigeon. It is awkward, and seldom flies. These birds have strong, thick bills surrounded by sheaths into which the bills fit like a sword in a scabbard. Their history and development remain a mystery. We hope to find some fossils that may throw a light on the family tree of the chionis.

There are many other intensely interesting forms of life and conditions of living our expedition will see on the way to Deception Island and our ultimate goal, Ross Sea. These things are only a small part of the fascinating picture of the whole, the picture hidden behind the frozen curtains that shroud the great white trail and the continent of mystery which our expedition is about to explore.

Secrecy on Anglo-French Pact Is Both Stupid and Pernicious Diplomacy, Says Lloyd George

Attitude of France on Reserves, Virtually Approved by Britain, Also Viewed as Danger to Peace.

By DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, War-Time Premier of England.

LONDON, Oct. 6.

THE Anglo-French pact is either the clumsiest or the most pernicious diplomatic act of modern times. We know too little about it even now after weeks of discussion, to place it in the appropriate category. The final verdict probably will be that it was both mischievous and fatuous.

The British Government, as indeed all the peoples of the British Commonwealth, has reason to be intensely grateful to the government and press of the United States for revealing to the British public and the world some of the facts of the commitments into which the Government of this country has entered with that of France. The whole transaction is amazing in the fatuity of its secretiveness, and in that respect it is probably without parallel or precedent in recent diplomatic history.

It is customary, when a Government has submitted a proposal to another and the latter has forwarded its reply, that both documents should be published simultaneously in both capitals by agreement if the first document has not already seen the light. What appears to have happened in the present circumstance is that the American Embassy, in delivering Kellogg's note on the Anglo-French naval proposals, expected that the British Foreign Office would undertake the publication of both documents, probably in the form of a white paper. This, however, did not happen. The Foreign Office declared either its inability or its unwillingness to publish its original note to Washington at this moment, so that the American Embassy had no choice but to publish its own note.

Why Was Secrecy Kept?

It is permissible to ask what purpose the Foreign Office may have had in persisting to withhold the note, all the facts of which, so they assert, are contained in the American reply; a note moreover, which is in the hands of the Italian and Japanese Governments as well as the American.

But this is not all. British opinion had been led to believe from British official or semi-official sources of information, that the United States, Italian and Japanese Governments had been placed in possession of all there was to know about the Anglo-French naval agreement. This, however, is now shown not to have been the case, since it is stated explicitly in the American note that Washington has actually received no text of the Anglo-French agreement but merely a summarized version supplemented, so there is reason to believe, by additional details afforded it in reply to two successive inquiries for elucidation in London and in Paris. This again is an extraordinary situation probably also without precedent.

Three governments are invited by two others to express their opinion on an agreement concluded by the two latter, of which the actual text is withheld from them. Could secretiveness, and secretiveness calculated to arouse international suspicion to an unmeasured degree, be pushed farther and more clumsily than this?

No Excuse for Secrecy.

The Foreign Office in this matter could not have violated more flagrantly or more stupidly the sound axiom of open covenants openly arrived at. There may be some excuse for discretion whilst negotiations are in progress. There can be neither excuse nor justification at this date for preserving secrecy on an agreement that has already been reached. The British Government, as a member of the League of Nations, cannot maintain this attitude any longer without a breech of faith toward that institution.

True, many of the continental military powers which in recent years have concluded alliances with each other, whilst registering with the League the general articles of their so-called pacts of peace (a sad misnomer) have carefully refrained from registering military conventions arrived at between their General Staffs, asserting that such documents would be valueless if published. That, however, is no reason why Great Britain should condone this disloyalty to the basic principles of the League, and still less should it copy it. For it has been admitted in official circles in London that there do exist large technical annexes relating to the Anglo-French naval agreement in principle, but it has been added that such technical annexes are too intricate to be understood by the public.

Some Points in Doubt.

This leads to the important question of whether we know all even now about the full and real effect of this astounding pact. Have the British and French governments something to hide in their recent agreement or is the persistent objection of at any rate the former, due to bureaucratic pique and pigheadedness at the resoluteness and vigor with which the British and American press of all parties has united in the condemnation of secret methods and the clumsy tactics of the Foreign Office?

I prefer to believe that the ostrich-like attitude of the latter is due more to stupidity than to craftiness, but quite apart from a need, both in the interests of Great Britain and in those of world peace, of quieting foreign suspicions and in particular American suspicions of the British official intentions, there is the duty of the British Government to its own people—the duty of telling them frankly how and why it is sought to commit them to support an agreement with France of which it might have been said beforehand that it would tend to antagonize almost every other great power—the United States and Italy specifically, Germany and Russia by repercussion—leaving us with no friend but France whose record of alliance as a friend at Angora and Chanak will be remembered.

A little while ago I was driven to deplore the fact that when the present British Government had the opportunity of joining that of the United States with a view to giving a lead to the world on the road to peace in connection with the Kellogg pact proposals, it hesitated and quibbled, leaving it to Germany to seize upon that role.

Plan to End Submarine.

At Washington in 1921, Balfour, who was acting on behalf of the Coalition Government which I had the honor to lead, advocated the abolition of that abominable, and from the British standpoint, most dangerous weapon, the submarine. That was a moral stand against an immoral means of warfare, a national and imperial stand because of the vulnerability of our overseas lines of communication and supply with the Dominions and the outside world. That stand has now been abandoned, on what grounds ethical and strategical is not known.

The present Government, under this still unpublished agreement, was prepared to allow France to build without numerical restriction submarines of 600 tons and

Mr. Hoover's Career.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

MR. HOOVER, as everyone knows, began his phenomenal career as a business executive when he was so young that he had to grow a beard in order to seem old enough to associate with his new colleagues.

He was never, as some people seem to think, an adventurous chaser after mines of gold or precious gems. He was from the first engaged in the serious business of reconstituting and refurnishing old mines—mines once given up and now to be reclaimed, mines of dull stuff like lead and zinc which, under his engineering skill and under his new scientific methods, were made to produce once more.

Out of that first step he came to the administration of problems of transportation on a world scale, to problems of international business and of international finance. His work as Secretary of Commerce, following the war, might have left the Department of Commerce simply one more bureau. Actually, he built it up as an energizing force in the business of the United States.

As manager and employer during 16 years of work in 20 countries and with employes varying from the most highly civilized to the most completely barbarous, he never had a strike anywhere. He has a world-wide observation.

Many Republicans of prominence have joined in praising Mr. Smith's knowledge of the affairs of his State. It is a great State, and Mr. Smith's record as Governor is its own justification. Yet, so far as proved capacity for dealing with business and governmental problems on a world scale is concerned, it must be obvious that Mr. Hoover has not only had the wider experience, but has come out from each position he has occupied in its course with added prestige.

Probably more fairy tales have been composed on the subject of what Mr. Hoover did do or did not do to the farmer of America during the war than on any other incident of his packed career.

One thing is certain, and that is that his single-handed diplomacy faced down Lloyd George at the close of the war, and made the Allies stick to their contract for American farm products and ended not only in his feeding the starving millions of Poland and Germany and the rest, but also saved the American farmer from the ruin of getting back the millions of tons they had sold and shipped to Eufope. These things he did, and nobody can deny it.

Compulsory Auto Insurance.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

SINCE there are so many irresponsible people who feel that it is absolutely necessary for them to drive a machine, even though they have only a small sum paid on same, and the payments they must make on them require them to tax their earning capacity, I wish to advocate (and I know I am not the first one), compulsory insurance to insure protection for the citizens who are placed at the mercy of these irresponsible people. In many cases the citizens, especially pedestrians, have everything to lose, while the automobilist has nothing, hence can loose nothing.

I would suggest a law requiring that such insurance be handled by the State in connection with license, and unless a person can afford to pay for this insurance, I do not think it advisable to grant a license.

"R."

Herr Parlatus.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WE HAVE long awaited the time when man, piqued by the invasion of his field, would turn about and enter woman's domain. It has now come to pass in the case of "Herr Parlatus," German orator, who established a record of 43 hours for talking, with the announcement that he will keep on until he reaches 130 hours.

In this age of marathon dancing, long distance swimming and general endurance contests, it is strange that no woman thought to hang up a talking record. Our only solution is that woman, assuming this field her own, naturally considered hers the honors. We have heard of women who have talked for 20 years at a stretch, but feel inclind to believe that a certain amount of spite is mixed up in this testimony.

And yet it was with misgiving that we noted the German's temerity in attempting to establish such a record and brasenly flaunt it in the face of womankind. For though his nerve be admirable, his judgment is open to question. As a matter of fact he was examined by a physician after the record was made, and we lean toward the supposition that the examination was mental. Mere man's attempt to acquire such a record seems too stupendous to be feasible.

For the present, however, "Herr Parlatus" has adequately avenged us. Our honor has been vindicated. All slights offered man's vanity by woman's competition have been evened. Man can once more hold up his head and Richard is himself again.

GOV. SMITH'S MASTER-STROKE.

The most moving incident in a year of dramatic and intensely interesting political events is the nomination, with his consent, of Franklin D. Roosevelt as the Democratic candidate for Governor of New York.

It was a masterly stroke of Gov. Smith to bring about his nomination as the head of the Democratic State ticket. It was believed that on account of Mr. Roosevelt's physical condition he would refuse to make the race for Governor, but Gov. Smith persisted, and obtained his consent to run. It was a heroic sacrifice on the part of Mr. Roosevelt to enter the contest, but he was moved by considerations not only of his personal affection for Gov. Smith and his admiration of his character and achievements, but by the desire to do all in his power to assure his success and the success of his cause in New York and the nation.

Mr. Roosevelt is convalescing from the stroke of infantile paralysis which he suffered several years ago, but his general health is good, and his mental vigor and capacity are not only unimpaired but undoubtedly improved by his activities of the past few years. He was able four years ago to make an exceptional fight for Gov. Smith at the Democratic National Convention, and to lead a successful battle for his nomination this year. His speech nominating Gov. Smith at Houston was a model of thought, form and language. Without the fervid eloquence of an Ingersoll, it was a moving plea for the man of his choice, setting forth in clear and convincing form his personality, character and achievements in political life.

Mr. Roosevelt has been prominent in office and public activities. He served as a member of the New York Senate, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson administration, and was the nominee for Vice President on the Democratic ticket in 1920. His activities for the public welfare outside of politics have been many and varied. The Springfield, Mass., Republican, commending the choice of the New York Democrats, said of him: "In all the ranks of public life there is no figure more winning, more appealing, more modestly compelling of the admiration accorded him than the former Assistant Secretary of the Navy."

It is refreshing to note in the prevailing clamor of partisan politics, the commendation of Mr. Roosevelt's character, capacity and service by newspapers in opposition to his party. The New York Sun and the New York Telegram, both supporting the candidacy of Mr. Hoover, immediately after his nomination indorsed and approved Mr. Roosevelt's candidacy.

The Sun remarked that "the people of New York are fortunate to have the opportunity to vote for Mr. Roosevelt. He represents probably as well as Gov. Smith the enlightened progressiveness which this state must have unless it is to slump." It puts him in the first rank of our public men, and declares that he shares with Gov. Smith the intellectual leadership of the Democratic party of New York.

The Telegram says, "Among men in public life Franklin D. Roosevelt is one in a million. Throughout a long public career he has proved himself a statesman worthy of any honor that this state or this nation might bestow upon him," and declares it "inconceivable that New York will fail to take advantage of the opportunity to secure so rare a public servant."

These expressions emphasize the wisdom and political sagacity of Gov. Smith in obtaining the candidacy of Franklin D. Roosevelt. It greatly strengthens both the national and state tickets in New York. In addition to his own appeal to the affection, esteem and confidence of New York, he adds the appeal of the affection, esteem and confidence in which they hold Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Roosevelt is a knightly figure, the Chevalier de Bayard of this year's political campaign.

MAE WEST AND THE CENSORSHIP.

Those who most deplore censorship of the stage will perhaps concede that there may be some reason for its existence in Miss Mae West. She has been arrested a second time for pandering to the most morbid and perverse instincts in the writing and production of a play called "The Pleasure Man." Apparently she is deterred by nothing in her desire to exploit these instincts for her own profit. And she is far from being in dire financial straits since her play, "Diamond Lil," in which she herself is starred, has long been a hit on Broadway.

It is for the Mae Wests that autocratic censors are set up. The tragedy is that, in a majority of instances, these censors are unable to distinguish between a sincere and honest treatment of realtistic themes and the kind of sensational enticements that Miss West confects.

THE KOZELUH BALLYHOO.

Since Vincent Richards won the professional tennis championship from Karel Kozeluh, we suppose the terrific ballyhoo that preceded the Czecho-Slovakian's advent has somewhat abated. Except for the single flash of superiority which he showed in the third set, Kozeluh bore little resemblance to advance notices describing him as the greatest tennis player in the world.

It is difficult, however, to stop a ballyhoo once it is under way. The Dempsey ballyhoo has not entirely disappeared yet, though on two occasions that young man was unmercifully beaten by Tunney. Even ordinarily skeptical weekly, The New Yorker, for example, has gulped the bait. Although its article was written before Richards humbled the Czech, the New Yorker should have known better than to say that "all the famous amateurs are more or less afraid of him."

Almost simultaneously, Tilden, in an article published in the Post-Dispatch, expressed a desire to play Kozeluh for the benefit of the hurricane sufferers. Tilden disposed of some of the fabulous yarns circulated about him, and predicted that if Richards was in form, he would beat Kozeluh. Moreover, Tilden, while conceding that Kozeluh is the world's best professional player, thinks Cochet, Lacoste and several other amateurs are superior to him, that Little Billy Johnston in his prime would have beaten the Czech, and that Manuel Alonzo and Jean Borotra excel him in court-covering.

The New Yorker says Kozeluh once beat Tilden a set in an unfinished match, while Tilden says Kozeluh did not play him at all, begging off because of a sore arm. Tilden was too modest to make the personal comparison, but it goes without saying that Big Bill has no fear of Kozeluh. If such a combat should take place Tilden, despite his age, will have plenty of backing.

MORE JUDGES OR LESS LAW?

Chief Justice Taft, accompanied by eight Circuit Judges, have recently called on President Coolidge to lay before him the need for additional Federal Judges and to urge the President to recommend their authorization to the next Congress. The dockets in some of the Federal courts are badly congested, according to the Chief Justice, and there is no hope that the present number can ever catch up with the increased business.

This is the second time since the adoption of the eighteenth amendment that an enlargement of the Federal judiciary is to be urged upon Congress, on the plea of congested dockets, and we may expect the same thing every few years in the future unless there is a radical change in the policy of the Federal Government, abetted by Congress and the Supreme Court itself, to gather into its paternal arms the local and most personal concerns of the people of the states.

In spite of the multiplication of boards, bureaus and commissions, clothed with legislative and judicial functions, and wielding a vast and growing system of administrative law, the courts not only find no relief but are themselves overburdened with duties, largely of a police court character.

These increasing burdens upon the Federal judiciary come not only from new criminal legislation constantly enacted by Congress in disparagement of local self-government; they are created by the Supreme Court itself in its apparent policy to sustain almost any claim to power which the Federal Government cares to present.

The salutary solution of this problem lies not in an indefinite increase in the number of Federal courts but in a radical revision and paring down of their jurisdiction, which the court itself can accomplish by a return to its historic function as the guardian of the immunities of the citizen against governmental power.

Many of the Supreme Court's decisions in favor of the Government and against the rights of citizens in the last decade, if rendered in the last century, would have provoked a new judiciary act, such as the first Jefferson administration found necessary to put down judicial tyranny.

It is not a question of more Federal Judges; it is a matter of restricting Federal power.

RAILROAD HEADS IN POLITICS.

Two retired railroad executives have just appeared in the political news. Mr. Yoakum, former president of the Frisco, is for Mr. Hoover. Mr. Rea, former head of the Pennsylvania, is for Gov. Smith.

Under Mr. Rea the Pennsylvania Railroad prospered mightily. Under Mr. Yoakum the Frisco skidded into a receivership.

Oliver Street is the name of the Republican national committeeman from Alabama who has just been rebuked by Dr. Work for using the religious issue against the man who was born on Oliver street, New York.

ONE WORLD SERIES FOR ST. LOUIS.

While the Cardinals have been taking from the Yankees the worst beating they ever got from anybody, the honor of St. Louis has been valiantly defended in the national game by a team which can win a world's championship.

This is the St. Louis Stars, winners of the Negro baseball championship of the world in a series which ended here last Friday. The losers were the Chicago Giants. Nine games were played, of which the Stars won five. In the deciding contest, which was going on while the Cardinals were feebly trying to hit Pipgras, one of the local players, Willie Wells, hit two home runs and a triple. While the mighty Alexander was being routed from the box at the Yankee Stadium, "String Bean" Trent, pitcher for the Stars, was shooting the ball over the plate out at Compton avenue and Market street until he had the Chicago batsmen pop-eyed. He rendered Davis, the "Babe" Ruth of the colored league, as helpless as Prometheus bound. When Wells hit his second home run the crowd rushed out on the path between third base and home pressing into his outstretched hand a salvo of dollar bills. The battle was terrific, the crowd ecstatic, the brave name of St. Louis at last made glorious.

There are eight cities in the colored league. For the last two years Chicago has been champion. This year, foreseeing that the Cardinals would probably blow up in the world series and the bright banners of St. Louis trailed in the dust, the Stars lifted a mighty shout of devotion to their beloved city and won a world series anyway.

Hurrah for the Stars!

Secretary Jardine says the farmers need an even higher tariff on farm products. Well, Mr. Coolidge has power under the law to make it what it ought to be. Why not tell him about it?

ST. LOUIS AND AIRPLANE PRODUCTION.

With the organization of Parks Aircraft, Inc., to manufacture commercial airplanes on a quantity production basis beginning Jan. 1, St. Louis takes another step, and a long one, toward the goal of aviation supremacy for which it is striving.

Although the new factory is to be built on Parks Airport, south of East St. Louis, it is essentially a St. Louis industry and will be so regarded by the rest of the country. So that, with four factories producing airplanes, the coming year is certain to see St. Louis far toward the top, if not in absolute leadership, in the manufacturing phase of the aeronautical industry.

There still remains for development the transportation phase. Situated in the logical "cross-roads" position, St. Louis is, geographically, the proper hub about which the national air transportation should center. It needs only a vigorous campaign, such as the Air Board has already launched, to make it that.

There are two Senators Borah—the free and admirable Senator Borah when Congress is in session, and the insincere Senator Borah, who merely plays a partisan part when there is a national campaign. We like the first better, as we imagine Senator Borah does.

Judge Caulfield says it is not fair to charge the crimes of Albert B. Fall to the Republican party, which is a much more honorable utterance than Mr. Hoover's "corruption participated in by individual officials and members of both political parties in national, state and municipal affairs." We agree with Judge Caulfield, and we protest against the hypocrisy which asks us to believe that there has ever been anything else in our political history like the oil conspiracy.

PAUL REVERE, 1928

Muscle Shoals and the Farmer

Alabama newspaper, quoting the authoritative but little known, report of the Presidential committee on Muscle Shoals, claims that great savings would accrue to the farmer through the government operation of Muscle Shoals for the manufacture of fertilizer.

From the Sheffield, Ala., Standard.

THE question has often been raised and seldom clearly answered, of what direct benefit would it be to the farmers and fertilizer users of the country if the plants at Muscle Shoals were operated to capacity and fertilizer made available throughout the states east of the Mississippi at prices commensurate with and based upon the actual cost of production.

House Document No. 119 of the last session of the Sixty-ninth Congress containing the majority and minority reports of the Muscle Shoals Board of Inquiry appointed by President Coolidge which report was transmitted to Congress in a special message dated March 26, 1925, contains some pertinent facts and tables bearing directly on this little understood phase of the Muscle Shoals operation.

The following data and table is made up from figures compiled from tables 8, page 48 and 14, opposite page 57 of this report and clearly sets forth concisely in detail the committee's findings regarding the cost of a concentrated fertilizer containing the plant food constituency of an average fertilizer used in each of the principal fertilizer using states and laid down freight prepaid at a central shipping point of each of the respective states, thus showing the average cost to the users in each state.

Estimated savings to farmers of their fertilizer bills by the use of concentrated fertilizer from Muscle Shoals as shown on tables 8 and 14 of the majority and minority reports of the Muscle Shoals inquiry transmitted in a message from the President, March 26, 1925:

STATE.	Am't Fertilizer used in 1924	Cost per ton 1924	Est. cost per ton Muscle Shoals	Savings by Muscle Shoals	Lump Cash. Savings	Per Cent Savings
Alabama	472,240 tons	$33.63	$18.81	$14.82	$ 6,998,596.80	44.1
Connecticut	78,636 tons	42.71	22.51	20.20	1,589,447.20	47.3
Florida	365,317 tons	36.15	20.19	15.96	5,831,072.60	44.2

It is a significant and noteworthy fact shown by the above statistics and authoritative estimates, taken from U. S. Government reports, that the savings to the farmers in the above states alone on their fertilizer bills, if concentrated fertilizer was manufactured and made available at Muscle Shoals under Government supervision, would each year equal one-half the total investment of the Government at Muscle Shoals, including the extra $10,000,000 appropriation proposed under the Norris-Morin bill of the Seventieth Congress to complete and rehabilitate the plants bringing up to date and establishing the Government-owned corporation in business as a going concern manufacturing fertilizer and selling power at Muscle Shoals. That is Muscle Shoals under this form development and operation would pay 50 per cent dividends on the total investment in the savings to the farmers of the Eastern portion of the United States based on their fertilizer bills as of the year of 1924. This would be in addition to the profits that might accrue from the sale of power or rather the savings that would accrue to power users in the Tennessee basin if the potential power of the Tennessee River was made available to states, counties and municipalities at cost plus overhead as proposed under the Norris-Morin bill.

It would be advisable for the general public and especially the members of the Farm Bureaus of the country to give closer study and investigation to this angle of the Muscle Shoals question. House document No. 119 of the last sesion of the Sixty-ninth Congress, containing the findings of the special committee appointed by President Coolidge to investigate; and give an advisory report on the Muscle Shoals question, is the most thorough and comprehensive report on Muscle Shoals ever made under Government supervision and the facts contained therein are not to be questioned. This, perhaps, is the most authoritative and reliable publication of its kind available. It is one phase of the Muscle Shoals problem that has not been given due thought both in and out of Congress.

BALLADE OF AUTUMN.

Lush summer dies, and in its stead
The winds of autumn, chilling, blow;
The lifeless leaves turn brown and red;
The lifeless leaves blow to and fro;
The flaming sun too soon will set;
The grass is yellow now and wet;
While these around the lockers lie
The same old lies they told last year.

The glory of the summer's dead;
The warmth, the fervor and the glow;
The mantle of the earth a shred;
Too soon replaced by lifeless snow;
No longer will the skies bestow
That airy blue the heart to cheer;
While those around the stove will throw
The same old trades they threw last year.

The heat of summer now has fled,
And surging life will duller grow;
The earth, her shining garments shed,
Is ill prepared for winter's woe;
The barren stalks stand row on row,
As though they knew but cold to know;
And those around the rockers show
The same bad form they showed last year.

L'ENVOI.

The tides of life will always flow,
Nor dare we call the winter drear,
Too well all earnest duffers trow
The same fine game they talked last year.

CIRCUIT ATTORNEY TO CHICAGO FOR TOOMBS HEARING

Sidener to Demand Return of International Life Head and Dr. Morgenstiern to St. Louis.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S AID IS WITH HIM

Case Comes Up Tomorrow —Man Wanted Here Resists Extradition, Charging Conspiracy.

Circuit Attorney Sidener announced yesterday that he would be in Chicago tomorrow to press Missouri's demand for the return to St. Louis of Roy C. Toombs, charged here with grand larceny and the illegal issuance of stock in the International Life Co., of which he was president. The company was looted of $3,500,000 in assets under Toombs' management. Sidener will be accompanied to Chicago by a representative of the Missouri Attorney-General's office.

Gov. Small of Illinois has honored the Missouri demand for Toombs and for his personal adviser, Dr. E. F. Morganstiern, who was a vice president of the International Life Insurance Co. The nature of the charges against Morganstiern has not been made public and he is not in custody.

Toombs is resisting removal to St. Louis on the ground that he has committed no crime in Missouri and is the victim of a conspiracy, the nature of which he has not disclosed. He has made only vague insinuations that "the St. Louis gang" is seeking to ruin him.

The extradition proceeding, set for tomorrow, has had to wait on a bankruptcy hearing of Toombs & Daily Co., Chicago investment house headed by Toombs, from the assets of which $1,000,000 has disappeared. Toombs, a witness in the bankruptcy case, has admitted he transferred the $1,000,000 to a Chicago broker whom he has refused to name.

When urged Friday before Referee in Bankruptcy Charles at Chicago to name the broker so that a check could be made of his story, Toombs refused to do so on the ground that naming the broker would incriminate himself. Thus standing on his constitutional right not to answer, Toombs was excused.

He even refused an offer of Referee Charles to go privately before the broker to corroborate his testimony.

That line of questioning thereupon was dropped and he was asked if he had paid the rent of an apartment occupied by Dr. Morganstiern in Chicago. He said he had not, but when confronted with his own canceled checks for the rent, admitted he had paid it.

It was further developed, through close questioning, that he had paid Dr. Morganstiern about $20,000, or $2000 a month, for consultations and other advice on major undertakings of Toombs & Daily Co., and the International Life over a period of a year.

He could not recall, when pressed, any service of value given by Dr. Morganstiern in this connection.

STOWAWAY FOUND ON CAR GOING TO LEGION CONVENTION

Veteran Leaves Hiding Place On Arrival Here; Fund Raised to Send Him On to San Antonio.

A stowaway was discovered when the special car in which the American Legion Band from Cape May County, N. J., is traveling to the National Legion convention, which will open at San Antonio, Tex., tomorrow, arrived at Union Station yesterday morning.

The stowaway was Morgan Hand, 32 years old, an overseas veteran of Wildwood, N. J. Hand does not belong to the band and did not have funds to make the trip to the convention, so he hid himself under a pile of literature piled on the back platform of the special coach last Wednesday. Half starved and chilled, he left his hiding place when the train arrived here. Members of the band took him in charge and made up a fund so that he could complete the trip to San Antonio in a Pullman.

Storks Presage Severe Winter.

STRASBOURG, Oct. 6.—Alsatian storks predict an early and severe winter for Europe. Bands of these birds which are so sensitive to cold began to gather for the southern flight before the middle of August. Large groups of them flying south to winter quarters were seen passing over St. Etienne and La Roche-Molliere in Central France weeks before the usual period of their annual passage.

How England Deals With Problem of Unemployment

inevitably some of the faults of the people with whom it deals. If any member were to rise in the House of Commons today and propose that the unemployment insurance provisions be repealed he would be quickly told he was talking nonsense.

Similarly, those critics of industrial legislation who tell the people of the United States that British unemployment insurance has been in practice a colossal failure are talking nonsense. Whether the time is ripe for the United States to pass similar legislation is a matter to be determined by the American people themselves in their own way. But the fact remains that British unemployment legislation has rendered services of great magnitude during the years of industrial depression which have come to us since the war.

Public Utility Work

The third lesson relates to the value of schemes for the execution of great works of public utility in times of industrial depression. In Great Britain these schemes have been chiefly concerned with arterial road construction and the main line of action has been that of state aid, given to the extent of 50 per cent of the cost, offered to the local authorities whose territories are served by these roads. One great advantage of these schemes is that they combine local initiative with state stimulus and guidance in road direction.

Many millions of money have been wisely expended in this way during the past seven years. The experience gained has been specially interesting in one regard. It has been definitely proved that best results are secured when good wages are paid and each contractor who takes the job from the local authority is called on to employ men steadily and to get from them the maximum results.

Stated in another way, the experience gained is that the less charity there is and the better management there is about road construction schemes set on foot, with the dual purpose of rendering a public service and of providing employment for those who need it, the better will be the results both in real service rendered to those employed and the economical execution of the work.

Output of Workers

Three years ago, the writer learned from Sir Henry Maybury, the great builder of state arterial roads and the present Chief of the Government Traffic Department, there was little if any difference to be found between the output of unemployed men who were being properly handled and trained and who had been steadily working for a month and the output of men who had been roadmaking for years. The real secret of success was wisdom in organization to secure the best application of the energies of the men employed. Given the knowledge that they are doing a normal job at normal rates of pay, the great majority of men rise to the occasion and do a thoroughly good day's work.

The fourth lesson which we have learned in Great Britain is that of not anticipating that all the time can we secure a perfect ratio between the men and women seeking employment and the volume of work to be done at any given time.

There are, in addition to these lessons definitely learned, some questions we are beginning to ask ourselves. Is it possible that, while the power of the machine is constantly increasing and its labor-saving capacities are continually growing, we can hope to avoid entirely some measure of unemployment? Will it not be better for us to accept as inevitable, even in the best organized state, the need for making provision, through insurance legislation or otherwise, for the carrying from time to time a greater or less number of persons whose energies are temporarily not in demand? Should we not keep always ready for administrative use some schemes of public works on which we can employ relatively large numbers of unemployed persons in times of trade slackness?

Training the Young

And, most vital of all questions, are we doing all we should to bring into being an educational system which will train the younger generation to take a real joy in being ever ready to step out of the crowded town and play the pioneer, but to play the pioneer under conditions different from the senseless and humiliating drudgery which characterized so much of the pioneering of the past?

In the opinion of many who have given this subject much thought the present surplus of labor, especially in Great Britain, can only be dealt with by sending out a steady stream of new-type colonists to Australasia and other undeveloped parts of the British Empire.

Another field of possible development in overseas migration relates to the younger families of miners. There are too many men in the British pits just as there are too many in the mines of the United States.

These problems we have faced, these solutions we have attempted, these questions have we asked. In this closely-knit world it is apparent that the United States must face similar problems, attempt similar solutions, ask similar questions. If our experience can prove of value to our sister country, then, truly, our travail has not been in vain.

Anglo-French Pact's Secrecy Pernicious, Says Lloyd George

under. Now so far as this country is concerned, the submarine of 600 tons and under, in view of the proximity of the French coast to our own and of the narrow waters of the North Sea and the Channel, is a deadly menace, as the German U-boat campaign so clearly showed during the World War. But our abandonment of the attempt to abolish the underwater fiend has been followed by the action of the United States Government in coming forward on the present occasion as the champion of the campaign against submarines.

The question, therefore, may be asked, is it possible now, is it practicable after giving way to France in this vital respect, to go back on this amazing and unwarrantable concession even should the Anglo-French naval agreement have to be dropped, as no doubt it will be formally, owing to Washington's unshakable position? But that is difficult to say.

Reserve Totals Kept Secret.

But important as the question of submarines must be, it is not as vital as another alleged clause in this secret arrangement. I allude to Great Britain's official acquiescence in the French thesis about military reserves as expounded by Paul-Boncour to the preparatory disarmament commission at Geneva. This acquiescence has been notified formally to other Powers. France maintains therefore that these British concessions must stand, whatever the fate of the naval agreement.

To this contention of France, the British Foreign Office more or less assents. Yet what it means is a terrible check to the progress of universal disarmament by land. It is a fillip given to conscription as against the voluntary system of military service throughout the world, for it enables countries like France both to maintain a huge standing army and to give hundreds of thousands of men every year a full military training, and yet entitles them to maintain that their war strength should be computed at a no higher figure than that of a country with a small standing army of only 100,000, like Germany, or 150,000 like Great Britain, with very few trained reserves.

A reference to the figures of the military strength of France, Italy, Poland and Czecho-Slovakia will give some idea of the startling effect of this British concession on the problem of disarmament.

The figures of the regular armies of these four countries are as follows: France, including the colonial army, 654,000; Italy, including colonial army, 250,000; Poland, 250,000; Czecho-Slovakia, 150,000.

Preserve Totals Kept Secret.

These figures are given in the ordinary reference books and are presumably official, but they represent only a fraction of the men who could be put into the field fully trained, and equipped for war in the event of mobilization. The figures of these enormous reserves are carefully suppressed by all the countries who have them at their disposal. In all discussions on disarmament their existence is ignored.

The situation as to reserves is as follows: In all four countries military service is compulsory and all able-bodied men of military age between 20 and 50 who have served their training are liable to be called up in the event of war, and may be regarded as constituting reserves. The exact official figures of these effective reserves are not divulged by any of the governments concerned, and the following figures are therefore estimates from the best available information. France, 5,100,000; Italy, 3,065,000; Poland, 2,518,000; Czecho-Slovakia, 700,000.

That means that France and its allies can at a few days' notice put into the field more than 8,000,000 trained men under arms. No wonder that Italy is uneasy about this pact and that Germany is skeptical about the French claim that the occupation of the Rhineland is essential to French security.

If it be true that the Anglo-French pact includes an undertaking on the part of Britain that in all discussions on disarmament these gigantic reserves are not to be taken into account, then the cause of peace has been deliberately betrayed by the governments of Britain and France. When the British Parliament meets in November, British Ministers will be strongly interrogated on this vital matter.

CHICAGO-TO-NEW YORK AIR MAIL DENOUNCED

Inefficient Service Delayed $21,800,000 Sent From St. Louis, Declares Richard S. Hawes.

In a protest against inefficiency of the Chicago-New York air mail service, Richard S. Hawes, vice-president of the St. Louis Clearing House, has written to Postmaster-General New that during the last two months more than $50,000,000 worth of checks and documents have been sent to New York via air mail by Federal Reserve and Clearing House banks here, but only $21,800,000 arrived on time, the remainder being delayed by poor service east of Chicago.

The St. Louis-Chicago part of the trip has been on schedule 98 per cent of the time.

An important reason for establishment of the air mail was to provide quick transportation for financial items, thereby reducing the interest float, and Hawes pointed out that the Clearing House for two years had provided a subsidy to keep the St. Louis-Chicago service alive, when it was new.

There is a considerable loss caused by slow delivery of air mail, Hawes told the Postmaster-General. As a further example, he cited the fact that only four out of 21 packages sent to New York by St. Louis banks during August had arrived on time. Minneapolis, St. Paul, Milwaukee and Chicago also are suffering from the poor service, the letter asserted. The subject was described as one of concern to the whole business of the nation and the Postoffice Department was asked by Hawes to take corrective steps.

Hawes said that St. Louis not only wanted this service improved but desired the establishment of additional lines radiating from here. A similar protest and demand for new lines has been made by the Air Board of the Chamber of Commerce.

Those who have to work hardest to get to the top of the ladder are the ones who most appreciate success.

$8000 AWARD TO WOMAN FOR PIPE ORGAN AFFIRMED

Commissioner Upholds Mrs. F. V. H. Denvir's Claim to Instrument in Riverside House.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 6.—A judgment of $8000 damages awarded by the St. Louis Circuit Court to Mrs. Frances V. H. Denvir of St. Louis against S. H. Crowe for failure to yield possession of a pipe organ in a residence at Riverside, Jefferson County, was affirmed today by Commissioner Edward Higbee in Division No. 2 of the Supreme Court.

The organ was installed 22 years ago in the Riverside home of the late C. P. Parsons, a wealthy lead mine operator. Parsons was Mrs. Denvir's father-in-law by her first marriage. In the distribution of his estate, Mrs. Denvir, by agreement of the heirs, was to receive the pipe organ, but she never removed it from the residence, although the property was sold several times.

Several of the deeds conveying the property in successive sales contained a reservation that the organ was the property of Mrs. Denvir, but the deed under which Crowe acquired the property contained no such reservation. The evidence showed he had refused to accept a deed containing such a reservation.

Crowe's attorneys contended the organ belonged to him, because his deed contained no reservation as to it, and also contended that under rules of law the organ was a fixture, and, therefore, a part of the building. Commissioner Higbee held this was true, under modern court decisions, but that the deeds conveying the property before the sale to Crowe exempted the organ, and that Crowe had full knowledge of this exemption when he bought the residence.

CAN'T REMEMBER DETAILS OF BANKRUPT COMPANIES

Lee Hess, Lumber Company Promoter, Testifies Before Referee Coles.

Although Lee Hess, lumber company promoter, organized and operated the Mississippi Valley Lumber Co. and the Anchor Lumber Co., both of which are in bankruptcy, he claimed to be unable to recall details concerning either business when questioned before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles Friday.

The two companies, which Hess operated from offices in the Arcade Building, were placed in bankruptcy with total debts of $150,000, following the $75,000 failure of the Reichert-Bright Lumber Co., which had extensive dealings with the Mississippi Valley, Anchor and the Tower Grove Lumber companies. The latter, a "paper concern," operated from the offices of the Mississippi Valley company by William C. Treece, an associate of Hess.

Hess, who is under $5000 bond on a Federal warrant charging him with concealing assets, was questioned concerning the lumber that went into two homes he built on Durant avenue. He said he bought the lumber from the Anchor company, paying for it with his own money. When pressed for a positive statement, Hess said he is not sure that such was the case. At this juncture he was cautioned by Referee Coles that the Federal Courts impose severe penalties on witnesses who perjure themselves.

So far about $20,000 has been realized from assets of the two Hess concerns for distribution among creditors. Hess will be questioned again next Thursday concerning the alleged disappearance of $2500 in cash assets of the Mississippi Valley Lumber Co. after the concern was placed in bankruptcy.

DELEGATION TO MEMPHIS TO WELCOME DAIRY SHOW

F. W. A. Vesper Heads Group From Chamber of Commerce and Other Clubs.

A formal welcome to St. Louis will be conveyed to the National Dairy Show, which is to establish permanent headquarters here next year, on Oct. 18 by a Chamber of Commerce delegation to Memphis, where the show will be held Oct. 15 to 22 this year.

F. W. A. Vesper, head of the delegation, pointed out that the dairy industry produced a fourth of the entire crop value of the country, and said 300,000 persons were expected to attend the show this year. City officials and members of the Chamber and other civic and commercial clubs will be invited to make the trip, departing on the evening of Oct. 17 on special sleepers, spending the eighteenth in Memphis and arriving here again early on Oct. 19.

KILLS FATHER OVER USING CAR

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAMDEN, Ark., Oct. 6.—Harvey Braswell is held on a charge of having shot and killed his father Tuesday in a quarrel over the use of an automobile. He said he shot in self-defense when his father attacked him with a club.

His father, 56 years old, operated a filling station on the Snow Hill-Norphlet highway. On being refused the use of an automobile by his son, the latter said, he chased him with a club, and later attempted to pick up a revolver. The son seized a shotgun and fired. Mrs. Braswell upheld her son, saying her husband threatened to kill both him and herself several times. The son surrendered voluntarily to Sheriff Arthur Ellis and Deputy B. M. Milner, and is awaiting a preliminary hearing.

Decay of British Village Life.

CRICCIETH, Wales, Oct. 6.—The decay of village life in Wales, England and Scotland is a menace to Great Britain, says David Lloyd George, former Prime Minister. "No country has ever lived," he declares, "when its cities and towns have grown and the country faded. The countryside has been denuded and the people have crowded into towns and cities."

TO DISCUSS CUTTING FLYERS' INSURANCE

American Life Convention Will Hear Reports at Meeting This Week.

The comparative safety of aviation as a profession has come to be recognized by life insurance companies, and insurance for aviators at a premium much lower than heretofore but within the bounds of good business judgment, will be discussed at the twenty-third annual meeting of the American Life Convention, which will open at Hotel Statler tomorrow morning and runs with daily sessions through Friday.

A committee which has been studying the question will report on the insuring of aviators.

Another important discussion will center around the place of farm mortgages in the insurance world. Almost every problem encountered by insurance companies, legal, medical, financial and those affecting agency and office management, will find a place on the program.

About 7000 men and women connected with the insurance business, including executives, counselors and department managers of life insurance companies from every part of the United States and Canada will attend the convention, which will be presided over by Frank W. McAllister of Kansas City, general counsel of the Kansas City Life Insurance Co. The convention was organized in St. Louis in 1906 with 15 small companies. It now has 140 members, representing assets of more than $2,700,000,000 and about $22,000,000,000 insurance in force. The St. Louis members are Missouri State Life Insurance Co., Central States Life, American National Assurance, Continental Life and the St. Louis Mutual Life.

The usual program of entertainment for visiting conventions will be given with local members in charge. This includes a golf tournament at the Algonquin Club.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

500 MOSLEMS OF JUGO-SLAVIA DIE ON PILGRIMAGE TO MECCA

Many Return Penniless and Diseased, Telling of Ill Treatment by Arabs.

By the Associated Press.

SERAJEVO, Bosnia, Oct. 6.—Five hundred of this year's pilgrimage of Jugoslav Moslems to Mecca have died of illness either on the pilgrim ship in the neighborhood of Mecca. The survivors have returned penniless and give harrowing details of how they were treated by the Wahabis, the puritan sect of Arabs who control the Holy Lands.

Each year Jugoslavia sends an important contingent of Moslems to Mecca. They often return without money or clothes and the victims of disease, dying on the way to the coast and aboard the pilgrim ships. Malaria and typhoid fever have worked havoc among the ranks of pilgrims of all nationalities who undertake the strenuous trip to the birthplace of Mohammed.

At the suggestion of a well-known Power whose Moslem subjects run into tens of millions, Jugoslavia will add her voice to that of other Moslem countries in asking for better treatment of pilgrims who make the annual trip to Mecca.

There are regularly no fewer than 100,000 pilgrims clustering round the Kaaba, the oblong building containing the sacred black stone, towards which all Moslems turn in worship. The fact that the pilgrimage begins in June, when tropical heat obtains in sun-baked Arabia, adds to the plight of the pilgrims, who die on the road from want of water.

Blames G. O. P. for High Taxes.
By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 6. — State Senator Thomas J. Courtney, Democratic nominee for Attorney General, in an address here yesterday charged that the present high tax rate in Illinois is due to the State Legislature, which passed the bills fixing the amount of taxation.

The Legislature which passed these bills raising the tax rate, he said, was controlled entirely by the Republican administration, and added that "it would be better for the people of Illinois if this Legislature had never met."

HARTFORD-EMPIRE GLASS MACHINERY PATENTS UPHELD

Federal Judge Faris Holds Obear-Nester Company of St. Louis Is Guilty of Infringement.

MILLIONS INVOLVED IN THE LITIGATION

Decision "First Step in Long Journey to Supreme Court," as Loser Is Expected to Appeal.

A decision of deep interest to the entire glass manufacturing industry of the United States was given by Federal Judge Faris yesterday when he upheld the patent infringement claims of the Hartford-Empire Co. of Hartford, Conn., manufacturers of glass-making machinery, against the Obear-Nester Glass Co. of St. Louis.

"That is the first step in a long journey to the Supreme Court," Judge Faris remarked as he disposed of the case.

It is estibated that millions of dollars are involved in the Hartford-Empire company's claims for a practical monopoly of the manufacture of machinery for making glass receptacles, inasmuch as every glass manufacturer of the country uses the Hartford-Empire machinery or similar devices.

The patents involved relate to a furnace for the melting of the chemical constituents of glass, a process of dropping molten glass from the furnace into moldts, and a synchronized shearing device for cutting the glass into exact portions as it drops.

Judge Faris held that seven original patents issued to an inventor named Steimer, now dead, were valid and had been infringed, and upheld 10 patents on improvements of the device, issued to Charles E Peiler, chief engineer of the Hartford-Empire Co.

He ruled against only one claim which involved the shearing process, holding that the shearing of molten glass is a part of a prior art. His opinion recited that under the old practice of making glass by hand one workman poured the fluid while another sheared it depending on "the accuracy of his eye and mind" to get proper proportions. "This apparently is an attempt to patent a function and a function is not patentable," Judge Faris ruled.

The St. Louis company, in its defense, had maintained that the Hartford-Empire Co. was estopped from maintaining the action because it had failed to prosecute applications for patents for a period of 10 years from 1915, when the applications were filed by Steiner, to 1926 when the patents were granted. Judge Faris held that there had been numerous interferences during the 10 years by virtue of which the company was not guilty of unnecessary delay.

The Obear-Nester Co. is expected to appeal to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals within the coming week. If the decision is upheld, the case probably will be taken to the United States Supreme Court for a final decision under which a number of similar infringement claims would be settled out of court.

COTTON BELT SUBSIDIARY BUYS THREE ARKANSAS BUS LINES

St. Louisan Heads Company to 6 Maintain Service on Routes Parallel to Railroad.
By the Associated Press.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 6.—Purchase of the property assets and license permits of the Krummen Motor Bus Co., Incorporated, the Red Ball Bus line, and the permit of the Smith Arkansas Traveler Co., between Camden and Pine Bluff, all operating in the State, by the newly organized Southwestern Transportation Co., a subsidiary of the St. Louis Southwestern (Cotton Belt) Railroad, was announced officially yesterday.

The purchase price was given as $250,000. The transaction was negotiated by Daniel Upthegrove of St. Louis, president of the Cotton Belt, and John Turney, general solicitor of the railroad, representing the Southwestern Transportation Co., and C. M. Conway of Texarkana, representing the Krummen company and the Red Ball company. The railroad officials announced that bus service would be operated on highways parallel with all its railroad lines in Arkansas to supplement passenger train service.

The new owners will take over immediately the purchased lines, and a new schedule will be announced in about a month. Officers of the new transportation firm were announced as follows: Mr. Upthegrove, president; D. Russell of Little Rock, vice president and general manager, and C. Messick of St. Louis, secretary and treasurer.

SLOGAN CHOSEN FOR FUND CAMPAIGN, OCT. 22 TO 31

"He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother," Are Words of Boy in Picture Giving Unfortunate a "Lift."

"He ain't heavy, he's my brother," has been approved as official slogan for the seventh Community Fund Campaign, Oct. 22 to 31.

The explanatory symbol which accompanies the slogan shows a ragged urchin giving his crippled brother "a lift." The goal for the campaign, with requirements this year estimated to exceed by $150,000 the $1,740,271 subscribed last year, will be announced this week.

Hugh McKittrick Jones has been named St. Louis County chairman to succeed George R. Robinson, who resigned upon the death of a daughter in Paris several weeks ago.

P. S. C. HALTS ALL WORK ON FRANKLIN AVE.
Action Follows Granting of Writ Against Building of Loop on Third Street—Hearing Tomorrow.
200 MEN REMOVED FROM DOUBLE TRACK PROJECT
City Can't Proceed With Widening Until Car Company Completes Its Portion — May Mean Year's Delay.
The Public Service Company today withdrew 200 workmen from its $150,000 double track project on Franklin avenue from High street east to Third street because of a temporary injunction issued yesterday by Circuit Judge Hamilton restraining the company against further work on a loop at Third street and Franklin avenue.
Unless the matter is determined early in court, completion of the newly-widened Franklin avenue may have to be deferred until the construction season next year.
The street is now torn up with the relaying of tracks in much the same manner as the south side of Olive street was for a considerable time last year. Sam W. Greenland, vice president and general manager of the P. S. C. said no further work will be done until the court determines the issue.

ILLINOIS U. ART TOUR WILL END IN ST. LOUIS

Party of 100, Including Lorado Taft, Will Dine at City Club Wednesday.

The 1928 seven-day tour of the Art Extension Committee sponsored by the University of Illinois will end in St. Louis Wednesday evening with a dinner at the City Club in co-operation with civic agencies of the city.

Lorado Taft, the sculptor, his wife and his daughter, Emily, will be in the tourist party of more than 100.

The stated purpose of the committee is "to assist in making art a more potent elevating force in the lives of the people of the States of Illinois and Missouri. It aims to help the people to discover beauty in nature and to enjoy it, to recognize beauty in art and appreciate it, and to stimulate the production of beautiful things. Furthermore, the serious purpose of this particular tour, as of all previous trips, is to see and enjoy and be profited by parks and playgrounds, gardens and country clubs, libraries, school buildings and grounds, churches, community houses and memorial buildings, examples of landscaping, both public and private, distinctive buildings, collections of paintings, sculpture and other forms of art, to listen to good music, to hear constructive addresses and to take part in worth-while discussions that have a direct bearing on making better and more beautiful the communities in which we live."

The Art Extension Committee is headed by Dr. R. E. Hieronymus, community adviser of the University of Illinois. Dr. Henry B. Ward, head of the department of zoology of the university and president of the Izaak Walton League, is with the party.

Taft will be the chief speaker at the City Club meeting. W. C. Ropiequet is chairman of the local committee and will deliver the address of welcome. Harland Bartholomew also will speak. J. E. Noon, '14, is president of the Illini Club of St. Louis. All persons interested are invited to the meeting. Reservations should be made with Jonh Rabenau, 923 Paul Brown Building, CHestnut 4488.

The Art Extension Committee's tour began last Thursday at Danville, Ill., and already has taken the party to Harrisburg, Shawneetown, Golconda and Cairo, with side trips to places of interest. The itinerary for tomorrow is from Cairo to Carbondale and for Tuesday from Carbondale to Centralia. Wednesday morning the tourists will go to Salem, Lebanon and Scott Field. In the afternoon they will visit Belleville, Cahokia Mounds State Park and East St. Louis, and in the evening they will be in St. Louis for the final dinner and program.

GERMANS AMAZED AT BIG WINE PRODUCTION IN U. S.

Hear Dry America Is Growing Ten Times as Many Grapes as Germany.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Germany has been amazed by the news that prohibitionist America grows 10 times as many grapes as Germany and that Kalamazoo wine of 1920 has excellent quality.

Counselor Dr. J. Diel of Berlin, writing from Washington to the Deutsche Tageszeitung, tells German readers that the United States is producing possibly 55,000,000 gallons of wine annually, or 10,000,000 gallons more than in pre-prohibition times.

Dr. Diel says that America justifies more than ever the name of Vinland, given to the Eastern coast by Leif Ericsson and his band of Icelandic explorers, as, in spite of the Volstead Act, it has more than doubled its acreage devoted to the culture of the vine since 1920.

Delving into history, Dr. Diel recalls that it was Nicholas Longworth, grandfather of Congressman Nicholas Longworth, who headed the band of German vintners from the Mosel region and became known as the "Father of American Grape Culture."

FALL FLOWER SHOW THIS WEEK

Entry Blanks Must Be Filed With Society by Tomorrow.

All who intend to exhibit in the Dahlia and Autumn Flower Show of the St. Louis Horticultural Society in Nugent's auditorium Wednesday and Thursday, must file their entry blanks with the society, 821 Central National Bank building, not later than tomorrow afternoon. The show is open to both amateur and professional growers, and there is no entry fee. Medals, ribbons and other awards will be given. In addition to dahlias, entries are sought of roses, chrysanthemums, gladioli, asters and familiar late blooming perennials. This is the first flower show held under the auspices of the Horticultural Society and it will be free to the public.

A cup donated by Eugene H. Angert, president of the Horticultural Society, for the best garden in the city, will be on exhibition at the show. The cup with a prize of $100 will go to the garden which is considered St. Louis' finest, after all the district winners in the best garden contest of the Horticultural Society have been chosen. Announcement of the winners will be made at a meeting of the Horticultural Society Nov. 10.

Will Speak on Prison Problem.

Sanford Bates, Commissioner of Correction for Massachusetts, will speak on "The Prison Problem" before a meeting of the St. Louis Chapter, Missouri Welfare League, at the Y. M. C. A., Sixteenth and Locust streets, at noon next Saturday.

NATURAL GAS COMPANY SEEKS FRANCHISE HERE

Proposes to Supply Factories With Fuel Piped From Louisiana Field.

A bill to franchise "the St. Louis Industrial Gas Co." to pipe natural gas to industries about St. Louis was introduced to the Board of Aldermen Friday.

For more than a year as many as four groups of promoters have been seeking assurance of the sale of enough low-priced, natural gas in St. Louis to justify piping it from the Louisiana fields. The city now uses approximately 20,000,000 feet of gas a day. An additional daily consumption of not less than 50,000,000 feet a day must be found before the $30,000,000 or more necessary to build the pipe line would be a profitable investment.

The group that heretofore has seemed to have advanced its plans farthest is the Standard Oil Co., associated with the Electric Bond & Share Co., and three others who agreed to pool their Louisiana gas holdings to assure the supply for a sufficient period of years. This group from time to time has been in negotiation with Union Electric Light & Power Co., because Union Electric could use at its Cahokia power plant as fuel a sufficient daily amount of gas to form a base load. Laclede Gas Light Co., which distributes gas to householders and the St. Louis County Gas Co., serving suburban towns were in these negotiations also. These negotiations have come to nothing chiefly because the delivered price in St. Louis was not considered low enough.

W. L. Gourley of Anderson & Gourley, 1112 Locust street, jobber of gas furnaces and other gas appliances, said that the St. Louis Industrial Gas Co. had received assurances from 86 industries in the St. Louis district that they would use the gas as fuel if it were brought in and sold at from 20 to 30 cents a 1000 feet. The lowest rate in the Laclede Gas Light Co. schedule for industrial gas is 60 cents a 1000 feet of gas having a lower heat content than the Louisiana gas.

Gourley said that arrangements for financing had been taken over by Woods Brothers, a Chicago investment house, and that the only thing lacking now was a franchise. It is not proposed to sell the gas to households. The cost of duplicating the Laclede company's distribution system would be prohibitive. Gourley said that the new company would be controlled by the heads of St. Louis industries.

FRENCH DUCHESS KEEPS PACK OF 1200 DOGS AT HER CHATEAU

Hounds Looked After by Four Valets; After Meals They Have Faces Washed.

By the Associated Press.

BONNELLES, France, Oct. 6.—Dog heaven has been discovered at the nearby Chateau de Bonnelles, ancient domain of the Duchess Anne de Rochechouart-Mortemart d'Uzes. Her 1200 hounds live the life that other dogs dream about when they doze after a satisfactory bone. The largest and finest pack in France resides in an immense, well-aired basement hall which once quartered hundreds of troops.

A "chef piqueur" is in command of the dogs and they are cared for by four valets. The daily dinner is typical of the strict obedience and manners required of the pack. The dogs are assembled for exercise in the great courtyard outside their hall bedroom. They run, frisk, stretch and yawn. As feeding time approaches the excitement becomes intense. While the long troughs are being brought in the pack, wild with impatience, must remain at the opposite end of the courtyard. At a signal they rush over and take their places and at a second signal the meal begins.

Afterward, like children at a party, the dogs crowd around the keepers and present their muzzles to be washed. That is a dog's life at Chateau de Bonnelles except on great occasions, when the duchess, 82 years old, goes hunting, sitting on eggs.

WOMAN SEEKS MEN TO MARRY WIDOWS

Mrs. Nelle B. Stull, Head of National Organization, Visits S. Louis.

In an undisguised search for eligible males who would consider marriage, Mrs. Nelle B. Stull of Elyria, O., arrived in St. Louis Friday. She canvassed the leading hotels, found all the rooms occupied or reserved for world series guests, and transferred the scene of her man hunt to St. Joseph, Mo.

Mrs. Stull is not seeking a husband for herself. She has received, she said, 15,002 proposals of marriage and every one she has flatly rejected. As president of the Widows and Widowers' Club of the United States, she is seeking satisfactory husbands for the widows among her following.

Although a by-law of the club provides suspension from membership on marriage, Mrs. Stull admits having a husband in Elyria.

"I founded the club six years ago for middle-aged persons in Elyria and it has expanded into a national organization," Mrs. Stull explained. "It has 1500 members who pay $6 dues a year and in return they receive the names and addresses of members of the opposite sex, so that they can correspond.

"Each couple that gets married in the club is automatically out and is expected to pay $25. You'd be surprised how few of them pay."

Mrs. Stull related that the membership included 46 women over 70 years old and 19 men in their eighties, with an unusually large number of young girls among the newer members.

"The elderly men all want to marry kids," Mrs. Stull said. "I try to persuade them to choose some one of their own age, but it's hard to convince them.

"Women marry for companionship, a home and protection as they always did. Men marry because they need women for their spirits as they need garters for their socks or to keep them from slipping. When they don't get what they want they are disappointed and when they do they are disillusioned. What can you do about that?"

HAY ATTACKS PATTERSON FOR DEFENSE OF OIL SCANDALS

Democratic Candidate for Senator Opens Campaign in Ninth District at Mexico.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 6.—Attacking Roecoe Patterson, his Republican opponent in the campaign for United States Senator, for what he called "his specific defense of the miserable record of the oil scandals," Charles M. Hay, St. Louis, opened his campaign in the Ninth Congressional District in a speech here yesterday.

"Can it be possible that the American people at this hour want to lift to places of honor and power, men who can review the record of the past seven and one-half years in this unblushing manner, and in the extermities of those position, have the temerity to defend th erecord which has brought shame and humiliation to every proud Amreican?" he asked.

Hay spoke to an overflow crowd in the Audrain County Courthouse, wiht representatives from counties over this section of the State in attendance. Other candidates for State office, who spoke also, are Dwight H. Brown, for Secretary of State; Forrest Smith, for State Auditor; Frank G. Harris, for Lieutenant-Governor; Richard Nace, for Treasurer; Clarence Cannon, for Congressman, and Robert E. Sutton for Judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

GIVES THREE PAINTINGS TO CITY ART MUSEUM

Mrs. Eugene Perry Makes Gift Valued at $17,000 in Honor of Mother.

Three paintings with an approximate value of $17,000 have been given to the City Art Museum by Mrs. Eugene Perry of New York City in memory of her mother, Mrs. Dorothy L. Kilpatrick, 33 Portland place, who died Aug. 10, leaving an estate of more than $1,000,000 to Mrs. Perry.

The paintings, formally accepted by the Museum Friday, are an interior, with figures, by Jacob Ochtervelt, Dutch painter of the seventeenth century, and member of the "School of th Little Dutchmen"; a picture of coast and sea by John Constable, English landscape painter and reputed father of the French Barbizon School, and a landscape by Henri Joseph Harpignies, a follower of Corot.

Mrs. Kilpatrick's sister, Mrs. John Fowler, who died a fortnight before her, left a $100,000 collection of paintings to the City Art Museum. They were daughters of the late John E. Liggett, multimillionaire tobacco manufacturer.

Seested died Tuesday. The estate was valued at approximately $2,000,000. The widow, Mrs. Mary Seested, and Frank C. Seested, a brother, were named trustees in a 10-year trusteeship.

Miner Killed by Own Carelessness.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., Oct. 6.—I. D. Landreth, 64-year-old miner, was killed by being crushed under a rock at Kribbs' mine west of here "due to his own carelessness," a coroner's jury decided in an investigation here Thursday. W. E. Kribbs, owner of the mine, and workmen there testified that the miners were paid extra to keep loose rocks propped or torn down and that Landreth had been warned for several days concerning the rock which caused his death.

Truck Output May Set New Mark in 1928

377,954 Units Produced to Sept. 1, as Compared With 358,234 in Same Period Last Year, A. J. Brosseau, N. A. C. C. Officer, Reveals PREDICTING the continuance during the remaining months of 1928 of the high motor truck production which has marked the first eight months, A. J. Brosseau, chairman of the Motor Truck Committee of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, in a review of truck prospects just issued foresees the possibility of 1928 equalling if not surpassing the record year of 1925.

"The National Automobile Chamber of Commerce figure of 66,795 trucks produced in the United States and Canada in August sets a new high mark for the production of trucks in any month since the beginning of the industry," Brosseau points out, "the previous high mark of 61,185 having been set in September, 1925. This high production continues the movements which began in May and which characterized the early summer months of this year."

"The accelerated production in mid-year has resulted in a total of 377,954 trucks produced to Sept. 1, as compared with 358,234, during the same period last year, and 346,528 produced during the first eight months of 1925, the truck industry's record year. In 1925 a total of 531,628 trucks were produced, due chiefly to a well-sustained production toward the end of the year. Production was also continued at a good level toward the end of 1926, when a total of 529,920 trucks were produced. The rather marked reduction in the output of trucks during the last quarter of 1927 carried the total for that year below the half-million mark for the first time since 1924."

With the total of trucks produced so far this year ahead of all other years at this date, there is a strong possibility that a new production record will be established in 1928. A production during the last four months of 1928 equal to the last four months of 1925 or 1926 would make a new record this year a certainty.

"The gains made this year," Brosseau says, "are due chiefly to the notable increase in fast, light trucks having a capacity of two tons or less than two tons. The largest gain in the light truck field has been in the two-ton class, in which 21,230 trucks were produced in the first eight months of 1928, as compared with 13,990 in the same period of 1927. The next largest gain was made in the one-half ton class, with the one-ton and three-quarter ton classes following. It may be interesting to note in passing that of the 377,954 trucks produced in the first eight months of this year, about 240,000 or more than half, were trucks of one-ton capacity.

"Foreign countries have been absorbing trucks made in the United States and Canada at a record rate this year, 101,928 having been exported during the first eight months. This compares with 90,348 trucks exported during the first eight months of 1927. There is every indication that, if export of trucks is continued in the last quarter at the levels prevailing in previous years, 1928 will equal, if not surpass, the record total of 1927, when 127,706 trucks were shipped overseas.

"With the acceleration of general business during the fall months and with the many new models of greatly improved trucks recently placed on the market ready to serve the expanding needs of industry and commerce, there is every indication that the remaining months of this year will bring to the truck industry satisfactory, if not a record-breaking, amount of business."

R. E. Lee in Havana

Major Robert E. Lee, general manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, accompanied by Mrs. Lee, left St. Louis Tuesday of the past week for Havana, Cuba, where they will attend the annual Spanish War Veterans' encampment. They will return to St. Louis on Oct. 15.

Lee, who is a direct descendent of Gen. Robert E. Lee of Civil War fame, served in the Spanish American War as a Captain. Recently he was appointed a reserve Major by the War Department.

Jaywalking Laws.

According to Philip D. Hoyt, First Deputy Police Commissioner of New York City, the introduction of jaywalking laws in Manhattan, such as are now enforced throughout New Jersey, cannot be successfully enforced. He further declared that there was no immediate necessity for pedestrian traffic ordinances.

SEARCHLIGHTS of the type shown are now in use on Mines Field, Los Angeles. They are automatic, and the device used for turning them on consists of a microphone which picks up the hum of the approaching airplane motor—and resonant and amplifying circuits which amplify the vibration and thus turn on the powerful lights.

Thrills Spanish Trail Offers Told by Writer

First Highway Across Continent Runs for 2,743 Miles From Florida Seacoast Through Rugged Rockies to California

THE Old Spanish Trail Highway is not only the first ocean-to-ocean trail, but is also the only great transcontinental route which is not at some period of the winter time closed by mountain snowfalls reports Charles Phelps Cushing. Telling how to follow its 2743 miles "from orange groves to orange groves" in McCall's for October. Mr. Cushing describes its beginning:

"The pioneers of Old Spain broke our first trail from ocean to ocean. Along it the brown-cowled friars kept pace on the perilous march with the sun-flashing helmets and breastplates of the Conquistadors. For upward of 3000 miles the Old Spanish Trail traced its wavering line across what now are our eight most southerly borderland states. Eventually the road linked up our first Southern outposts of Spanish and French civilization—St. Augustine and various Gulf Coast colonies with New Orleans, San Antonio, the 'Pass of the North' (El Paso, the gateway to Santa Fe from Mexico), Tucson, Phoenix and San Diego. Its course lay from the oldest settlement on the Atlantic coast to the oldest on the Pacific.

"This motor trail 'from orange groves to orange groves' is of special attraction to tourists because it is our only great transcontinental highway which is not at some period of the winter time closed by mountain snowfalls. The trail, which we are to follow across the whole breadth of the continent ending the tour at St. Augustine, Fla., begins officially at San Diego. There are 178 miles to tick off through the crossing of Southern California; a stretch of which we might say tersely that: 'It's scenic switchback riding.' At the San Diego zero stone we are only 46 feet above tide water. Only 63 miles later, after climbing, twisting, dipping, climbing again through the red hills and mountains, we rise to a summit of 4103 feet. Seven miles more, and (at Boulevard) we have coasted down to 3750 feet. More scenic coasting follows.

"The Gila River is followed to Phoenix. Between Temple and the Arizona capital we come upon another national monument, the Papago Saguaro. It is a botanical gardent of desert flora, saved from the inroads of irrigation; and its pride are the giant Papago Saguaro cacti, some of which are 60 or 70 feet high.

"Back to the main highway of U. S. 80 again, and follow it to Florence. A little west of here we come upon another national monument guarding precious prehistoric ruins; the Casa Grande, where 'the multi-story house' of more than a thousand years ago 'found its highest development.'

"The Old Spanish Trail's route, if we don't swerve from the broad red line, doesn't show us a great deal of New Mexico, only 192 miles. More's the pity! Texas lies ahead after crossing to El Paso; a third of the length of the whole trail is in this vast State—931 miles of it. The richest agricultural region of Texas, all the richer now by oil in addition to farm products of many assorted kinds, lies ahead. Houston will surprise you—even if you roll through hurriedly—by the admirable quality and the quantity of its modern architecture. At last, after Beaumont, a $1,000,000 bridge three miles long leads us out of Texas into Louisiana.

"Rice fields, sugar plantations, the land of the Acadians. Over Berwick Bay by catamaran ferry boat, then a 'little Holland bulwarked by dikes; New Orleans next with the Mississippi's tawny flood to ferry, then a bridge 15 miles long conquering the Lake Ponchartrain barrier.

"Ninety-six miles through the State of Mississippi come next. The memorable feature here is a shoreline residential drive of unusual beauty, the Gulf Boulevard, 37 miles long, from Bay St. Louis through Biloxi to Ocean Springs.

"Across the bottom fringe of Alabama's coat-tail we follow now for 77 miles. About 50 miles of this make no claim to being improved. In Florida the first churches were built of wood, and time destroyed them; but the Conquistadors bequeathed us some fortresses. Ruins of two of these old forts share honors at Pensacola with Uncle Sam's modern naval and aviation stations."

Color Display Device Invented

A color display, enabling any motor car dealer to show every color combination used by the maker o fthe car he represents, although he may not have cars finished in these colors in his showroom floor, has been evolved by E. R. Van Bergen of Cleveland, O. It is known as the artcraft automobile color display.

This device consists of a transparent shield on which the outline and shadings of the car are sketched. Various color combinations which are available for the particular model being shown, are provided on interchangeable color underlays, which are held in position under the transparent shield. By changing the color underlays the customer is given an exact idea of the same car in vorious color combinations.

The color underlays used are finished in the actual colors available for the particular model of car for which the outline is drawn. Transparent shields are furnished for the particular models of the line such as the coupe, coach, sedan, phaeton, etc.

The transparent shields are interchangeable on the same board so that after showing the customer the coupe in its complete line of color combinations, the dealer substitutes the transparent outline of the sedan and uses the color underlays which correspond with the combinations available for that model.

Orange Tail Lights.

Motor vehicles in Germany are required to have tail lights of orange color.

Municipal Economy Seen In Uniform Traffic Code

BELIEVING that the model municipal traffic code just adopted by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety is an important step which will aid the traveling public and industry in general, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has indorsed the measure.

This action was taken by the board of directors on the unanimous recommendation of its street traffic committee.

"No greater contribution toward transportation has been made than this proposed model law," said Edward S. Jordan of the chamber's Street Traffic Committee in announcing the stand of that body.

"First of all is its value in reducing the hazard to life on our city streets which is caused to some extent by the wide variety in regulations which confuse the motorist and the pedestrian. Some cities are reporting improvement in their safety records in 1928, though the general total is running somewhat higher than a year ago. Detroit, Baltimore, Boston, San Francisco and Washington have lower fatality records for the first seven months of this year as compared with last year.

"Mechanical advances and knowledge of how to build pavements have been increasing rapidly, but until now our city regulations have been in a chaotic state.

"As soon as cities agreed upon this law as a standard confusing differences such as turning rules, lighting and other regulations will be on the clear basis in all cities of the country.

"This model ordinance has taken a year to draft and it has been passed upon by representatives from the general public, women's clubs, State and city officials and all types of transportation. It is the work of the National Council on Street and Highway Safety which called together the Committee on Municipal Traffic Ordinances and Regulations, of which William E. Metzger is chairman.

"Uniformity in city traffic laws will not only help the traveling public but it will be a distinct gain in industry and trade. The present day congestion in cities increases shipping costs, delays the income and outgo of materals from the factories and wastes time in interplant communication. These matters are not as vital as the convenience of the traveling public, but they furnish additional reasons why industry should join with the public in urging a prompt adoption of uniformity."

Service Managers Bureau Meeting

Three speakers covering different phases of the problems of the service manager addressed the first meeting of the season of the Service Managers Bureau of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association at a dinner meeting at the Marquet Hotel Friday night, Sept. 28.

B. M. Bell, general superintendent of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, St. Louis, talked on the relationship between the aircraft and the automobile motor and told of the close tie-up between motor cars and airplanes, the latter being largely dependent on the former.

Fred V. McGraw of the Ray Day Piston Co. of Detroit, spoke on the superiority of alloyed pistons over the old style.

Major Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, told of the experiences which he had had in 20 years with service managers and pointed out the mistakes and pitfalls in the path of all service managers. Lee caused much amusement by advising that service managers and service salesmen should give much more polite attention to elderly fat ladies than to charming debutantes who might drive in to service stations on the ground that the elderly ladies always had more money to buy new cars than the flappers.

LONGEST AUTO BRIDGE IN U. S.

AN imposing view of the five-mile span of the new Newport News James River bridge, near Norfolk, Va., which will be dedicated Nov. 17. The bridge proper is 4½ miles long, while the approaches bring it to 5 miles. It has one of the longest lift spans in the world—300 feet, with a lift of 150 feet, high enough for any ship in the world to pass under. Its foundations extend over 100 feet below the James River.

New York to Mexico Air Mail Begun

Service Established Past Week Via Chicago to Dallas to Laredo—Mexican Government Planes Will Be Used from There Southward

DIRECT air mail service between New York City and Mexico City was established Oct. 1 over the National Air Transport New York-Chicago day run and the Chicago-Dallas night run, connection being made at Fort Worth with the Texas Air Transport, Inc., contract air mail route No. 22, now operating to San Antonio, which will be extended to Laredo, on the border. The air mail line from Laredo to Mexico City will be operated by the Mexican Government. A fleet of six Stinson-Detroiter combination passenger and mail planes have just been delivered to the Mexican postoffice officials.

The National Air Transport line from Chicago to Dallas is completely lighted for night flying, with 2,000,000 candlepower beacons placed every 10 miles, but there are no lights south of this line, which means Texas Air Transport and Mexican Government pilots will be able to fly only in daylight hours. Flying conditions therefore require, at the present time, that

Statistics Show Gas Is the Cheapest Commomdity in Use in United States

House Furnishings and Coal Have Increased Most in Twelve Years, Department of Labor Figures Reveal.

COMPARED with groups of commodities for which price statistics are published by the United States Department of Labor, gasoline is now the cheapest commodity of general use in the country.

The average wholesale price of gasoline for 1927 is given as 111.4 per cent of the average price for 1913. But the average price of "all commodities" is 146.8 per cent of 1913 prices. Everybody realizes that prices, as a whole, are a great deal higher than before the war. But there have been wide variations between the price experiences of different commodities or groups of commondities.

The Department of Labor has just published its price statistics covering the full year 1927. From these the accompanying graph has been prepared, showing how prices have moved in the various commodity groups. The department's figures are based on wholesale prices. They show that for the full year 1927, the index figure for prices of all commodities was 146.8.

That is, the dollar of 1913 had a purchasing power equal to $1.46 of 1927 money.

Among groups of commodities, it is shown that house furnishing goods have increased most in price since 1913; their index figure for 1927 was 223.8; that is, it cost in 1926, $2.23 to buy as much of these articles as a dollar bought in 1913.

Anthracite and bituminous coal has advanced almost as much; and so has brick. Woolens and worsteds, boots and shoes, and lumber, well-nigh doubled in price.

The advances for the various groups, as recorded by the Department of Labor, are graphically presented in the chart.

That gasoline should appear at the bottom of such a list is remarkable as consumption of gasoline has increased 1000 per cent since 1913.

Thus the official figures show that the petroleum industry has been able, in the face of such an enormously increasing demand, to maintain a price level far below other commodity groups. They prove he high efficiency of the industry and the constant bettermant of its methods. They demonstrate, further, that the full benefit of efficiency and constant improvement in spite of increasing labor costs, has been passed on to the consumer.

Ever since the war it has been the persistent boast of the oil industry that among staples largely used and increasingly demanded, none showed such price moderation as gasoline.

The official figures now made available indicate further that no commodity group has since the war so nearly returned to the pre-war price level as has gasoline.

New York to Mexico Air Mail Begins

mail going in either direction lay overnight at the border, but, even with this loss of time, air mail between New York City and Mexico City will still save 37½ hours over present railroad connections.

The Mexican mail planes will leave Nuevo Laredo at 8:30 in the morning and fly via Monterey and San Luis Potosi, due in Mexico City at 5:40 p. m. Northbound mail leaving Mexico City at 9:15 in the morning will arrive at Nuevo Laredo at 6:20 at night, where it will be held overnight. Leaving Laredo, Tex., the following afternoon at 2:35, the mail will arrive in Chicago the following morning in time to catch National Air Transport's day plane, due in New York at 4:45 in the afternoon.

Postmasters at San Antonio and Laredo have been authorized to use a special cancellation stamp on letters mailed the opening day of the new service.

STUDEBAKER RACE RECORDS RECOGNIZED

Auto Clubs Association Officially Registers New Stock Marks

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Official recognition of five new world speed and endurance records made by an American stock car has just been granted by the International Association of Recognized Automobile Clubs in Paris, according to the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association.

The new world records were all made by a strictly stock Studebaker President Eight roadster, one of four Studebaker President Eight models which covered 30,000 miles on the Atlantic City Speedway at sustained average speeds ranging from 64 to 68 miles per hour.

International reognition was accorded the records made by the fastest of the four cars at five periods during the run. The new marks are as follows: 10,000 miles, average speed, 66.82 m. p. h.; 15,000 miles, average speed, 66.59 m. p. h.; 20,000 miles, average speed, 66.55 m. p. h.; 25,000 miles, average speed, 66.47 m. p. h.; 30,000 miles, average speed 66.37 m. p. h.

According to A. H. Means, assistant secretary of the Contest Board of the A. A. A., the International Association does not differentiate between special built racing cars and stock cars in record trials. Thus the new world records made by the Studebaker President exceed all previous racing car performances and are the best for any class of cars for all time.

These Three Cardinals prefer HUPMOBILES

BASEBALL fans who know the big league players have always accorded the characteristics of sound judgment to Harold Haid, Andy High and Clarence Mitchell.

It now develops that their discernment of values extends beyond the science of baseball and into the field of automobiles as evidenced by their choice of new cars.

High and Mitchell selected the Hupp Eight and Haid the Hupp Six. In addition to congratulations on their success as baseball players they are entitled to additional congratulations upon their choice of automobiles.

At St. Louis Air Fields

THE effect of the airport bond issue is becoming more apparent at Lambert-St. Louis Field each week.

The control building, which will contain the office of the field manager, a lounging room for pilots and visitors, and a switchboard controlling the field lights, is nearing completion. The building is masonry with brick chimneys for two large open fire places, and is topped with a turret for observation purposes.

Other improvements now going forward include the installation of a water system, filling and grading, the removal of the fence which formerly was the northern boundary of the field, and the starting of a concrete "apron," 250 feet wide, in front of the hangars on the west side of the field. Boundary and hazard lights also are being placed on the principal buildings at the field. Most of the work is being financed by companies operating at the field, the expenditure to be refunded from bond issue funds later.

There is urgent need for hastening the installation of the field lighting system, however. The trimotored passenger plane from Chicago, which arrives at the field about 6 p. m., will be landing in darkness in another month. Director of Public Welfare Salisbury, Park Commissioner Pape and Assistant Comptroller Cunningham visited the field Thursday in connection with the lighting system and announced that the contract for the work would be let shortly and the installation begun as soon as possible.

Plans to Buy Plane Output.

An important development in commercial aviation was shown in the announcement by Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Rbertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., that the Curtiss Flying Service will buy the output of "Curtiss-Robins" for the next three or five years. The Curtiss Flying Service, of which Maj. Robertson is a director, plans to purchase the yearly output of several other concerns with a view to becoming the "General Motors" of the aviation industry. When the plan is completed, Curtiss Flying Service will be the distributers of planes varying in size from single-seaters to 20-passenger transports, according to Maj. Robertson.

The present manufacturing schedule of the Curtiss-Robertson plant is a plane a day. This is to be increased to three ships a day by early summer. Beginning in January, the Curtiss Challenger air-cooled motor will begin taking the place of the Ox-5's in the "Robins." The "Robin," a three-place plane, sells for $4000. Under the new arrangement, the 25 Curtiss-Robertson distributers will become agents for the Curtiss Flying Service.

The Curtiss Flying Service is headed by Charles "Casey" Jones, noted pilot, who likewise plans the establishment of airplane service stations, flying schools and aerial taxi service throughout the United States. Maj. Robertson will confer with Jones at New York this week.

To Start Work on Factory.

Ground for Parks Aircraft, Inc., probably will be broken at Parks' Airport, on the East Side, this week.

When completed the new plant will be one of the largest in the country, covering an area 550 feet by 100 feet. The plant will employabout 300 workmen and ultimately will turn out 200 planes a month, officials of the company announce.

The plane, which is still to be named, will be a cabin monoplane somewhat similarto the Ryan. It is probable two sizes will be made, one for two passengers and pilot and the other a four-place job. The selling price is to be based on mass production and will place the plane in the so-called popular-priced field. The ship will have the Lycoming air-cooled motor, of more than 200 horsepower, it is said.

Officers of Parks Aircraft, Inc., are: Russell E. Gardner Jr., chairman of the board; Harry P. Mammen, president; Oliver L. Parks, vice president and general manager, and Fred W. Gardner, executive vice president. Russell Gardner is president of the Gardner Motor Co., while Mammen is president of Parks' Airplanes, Inc. Directors, in addition to the officers named, will be Oliver A. Andersno, investment banker, and Thomas Hayburn of the Gardner Motor Co. The concern is capitalized at $2,100,000, and a small amount of stock is offered for sale locally.

Three Go in Plane to Wedding.

Maj. William B. Robertson, his wife, and Mrs. Robertson's mother, Mrs. J. D. Livingston, flew to Kansas City last Tuesday afternoon in a Curtiss-Robin to attend a wedding. They returned the next day.

Emergency Field Selected.

Another emergency landing field has been selected for the proposed St. Louis-Kansas City-Omaha air mail route. The field is at High Ridge, Mo., wheer 80 acres have been leased by the Government. A beacon is to be installed. Other emergency fields have been laid out at Wentzville and Fulton. The route is being surveyed and will be lighted early in January. The Robertson Aircraft Corporation, which holds the contract for the route, plans to start daylight service on the Kansas City-Omaha part of the route this month because of the demand at Kansas City for a conection with the transcontinental line at Omaha.

Business Trip by Airplane.

John McMillan piloted Gustav J. Spengler Jr., vice president of the Spengler Mfg. Co., and Herbert Hoppe, a salesman for the concern, to Murphysboro and Carbondale last Sunday in a Waco, on a business trip. They returned to Lambert Field the same day.

Commercial Aviation Survey.

I. G. Rhenstrom, a World War pilot now representing the Fairchild Aviation Corp., spent Thursday and Friday at Lambert Field gathering data for a report on commercial aviation for his company. From St. Louis he is flying through Oklahoma and Texas to get additional information. The Fairchild Corp. is making a survey of the country in the interest of commercial aviation and Rhenstrom is covering the Middle West.

Visit to Reunion by Plane.

Eight planes of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service were flown to Springfield, Mo., and return a week ago, the occasion being the annual reunion of veterans of the Thirty-Fifth Division. Officers who made the cross-country hop were: Captains Harry Young, William Wimer, William Robertson and Russell Young, and Lieutenants Frank Dunn, John Sparks, Walter Braznell and Rodney DeLang. Eight enlisted men of the unit went along as p

Ferries Brougham to Florida.

Milt Girton, chief pilot for the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., ferried a Ryan brougham to Orlando, Fla., for the B. F. Mahoney Aircraft Co., last week. The ship was flown to St. Louis from the Mahoney Co.'s San Diego, Cal., plant.

Enters Aviation Business.

F. E. Hamann, who was graduated from the Robertson Flying School Aug. 2, has set up in the aviation business at Evansville, Ind., he writes officials of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation. Hamann bought a new Waco-10 from the Robertson company before leaving Lambert Field, and says he has obtained an option on a flying field.

Students Get Factory Jobs.

Seven students completing their 10 weeks' course of ground instruction at the Von Hoffmann Aircraft School last week obtained jobs as mechanics in an Eastern airplane factory. Four additional students completing the course elected to stay here and enroll for flying instruction.

Pilot Eyre Sloniger of the Rebertson Aaircraft Corporation staff piloted Dorothy Speare, novelist and concert singer, to Chicago, in a small plane several months ago. Miss Speare was so pleased with the trip that she presented "Slony" with a wrist watch. But the kickback arrived in the form of a short story by Miss Speare, entitled, "My Flight With the Air Mail," in which she has this to say: "Air mail pilot, Eyre Sloniger. What a lovely name. I notice that he is young and very attractive looking."

B. F. Mahoney Visits St. Louis.

B. F. Mahoney, president of the aircraft company of that name, makers of the "Spirit of St. Louis," arrived in St. Louis Thursday to help John C. Nulsen, vice president of the concern, get the new Mahoney plant at Lambert Field ready for production. The first St. Louis-made Ryan monoplane will take the air about Nov. 15, according to Mahoney.

Passenger Business Good.

Passenger carrying on Sunday afternoons continues heavy. Last Sunday the Von Hoffman company kept four planes busy all afternoon.

35th Division Man Is Air Pilot.

Lieut. Walter Brazell of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Service now is a mail pilot. He learned to fly in the air unit and has been an instructor for the Robertson Aircraft Corporation all summer. He has a regular run on the Chicago-St. Louis route.

Dan Robertson Back to Work.

Dan Robertson, who flew a Curtiss-Robin in the recent transcontinental air races for "Brother Bill," has gone back to work in the Robertson Aircraft Corporation flying school for "Brother Frank." He will be assisted in operating the school by Bill Dings.

To Fly Over World Series Game.

"Boots" Dempsey got an advertising job flying over Sportsman's Park during the world series. "Boots," who is advertising "Wings," made it plain to Skouras Brothers that his appearance over the ball park would be before the game. "I'm not going to have those Cards calling me a jinx if they lose," Dempsey explained.

Will Take Pictures to Chicago.

"Bud" Gurney expects to make a fast trip to Chicago today with world series pictures in the Robertson Aircraft Corporation's new Cessna. He will start at 4 p. m. and has contracted to make late evening newspaper editions in Chicago. The Cessna can do 150 miles an hour.

Makes First Cross-Country Hop.

Sam Lambert, who has had only 25 hours in the air, made his first cross-country hop in his Monocoupe to Arcadia, Mo., and return. It took him two hours to make the 100 miles down there Wednesday and 44 minutes to come back Thursday with the aid of a powerful tail wind. Sam and Frank Watts, another Monocoupe owner, plan to fly to Cape Girardeau in their little ships today.

Flies to New York on Business.

George Lee Lambert, son of Maj. Lambert, an instructor at Parks Airport, made a trip to New York in a Travel-air last week on business for the company. Carol Oscanyon of Bogota, N. J., a Parks' Air College student, accompanied Lambert.

Dale "Red" Jackson now is test pilot for the Curtiss-Robertson Co. "Red" made a good record with a Swallow in the transcontinental race.

Gentray Shelton is the Curtiss-Robertson Co.'s other flyer. He so far has ferried planes to Montana and the Pacific Coast and will take two more Robins to the coast starting in the first one this week.

Japanese Robin Now Stuffed.

The Japanese robin presented to Maj. Robertson by Art Goebel, trans-Pacific flyer, failed to stand the St. Louis smoke, or else Maj. Robertson failed to follow Goebel's instructions with regard to feeding. The robin has been stuffed and occupies a place under a glass in Maj. Robertson's office.

Plane Owners Want Hangars.

Owners of private planes at Lambert Field are petitioning city officials for private hangars, which the city could build from bond issue funds and rent to the plane owners. Oscar Johnson, who has a Travel-air and is buying a $11,000 Stearman biplane also, says he will build his own hangar if allotted field space.

Flying Visitors at Field.

Vicitors at Lambert Field during the week included Maj. J. C. Cove of the Arkansas National Guard, Cloyd Clevinger, formerly of Lambert Field, now a Curtiss-Robin distributor at Tulsa, Ok.; Fred Lane, in the Nafziger Bakery plane; F. C. Doring, going from Memphis to Wichita; H. A. Speer, from Cincinnati; Gove Hambidge a short story writer who is gathering data for an air mail yarn; Walter Friedenberg, a Mexico City banker on his way home from Cincinnati; Harvey Gund Jr., in a Laird; Alger Graham and Ray Cooper in a Buehl, and Leonard Flo, flying from Ann Arbor, Mich., to Tulsa.

Reo Chassis Used for Rural Fire Protection

Great Need for Co-operation by Farmers Against Flame Menace Pointed Out.

By W. C. PARKER,
Reo Motor Car Co.

The fight against carelessness with fire finds the height of its expression in "National Fire Prevention Week." Farmers and members of small rural communities are fast realizing the importance of adequate fire protection. Farm and rural losses are tremendous. Ninety-six farms burn up every day of the year at a total cost of $150,000,000 annually. About 25 per cent of the farms are not insured.

Many large stock fire insurance companies are declining to renew fire policies on rural properties owing to unfavorable losses experienced in the last few years. Some companies are even discounting existing business. Farm mutual fire insurance companies of the Middle West are carrying a tremendous burden.

It is shown that 35 per cent of rural fire losses are due to carelessness. If insurance companies are forced to withdraw protection for the individual, as they threaten to do, the mortgage holder will also be forced into a like position, putting the farmer in an even more precarious position.

If it were possible to eliminate carelessness entirely, as well as all other fire causes, no fire protection would be necessary. Because this is impossible, we readily see that efficient and adequate equipment is essential in this fight against uncontrolled flame.

In the last 10 years there has been a strong movement toward better rural fire protection. Many small communities have installed excellent equipment with volunteer, trained operators, who cover a rural radius as well. In communities where this system has been conscientiously carried out, there has been a decided decline in fire losses. Thousands of fires which would have meant total losses were brought under control quickly with a tremendous saving.

The Reo Motor Car Co. for several years has been outstanding in its efforts toward better rural protection and in this work Reo's activities have been closely paralleled by the Boyer Fire Apparatus Co. of Logansport, Ind., whose apparatus is specialized for smaller communities. During the last year or two there have been many installations of their equipment on Reo speed wagon chassis for rural service.

KIND OF PLANE TO BE BUILT BY PARKS AIRCRAFT, INC.

Pierce-Arrow Improvements

In line with Pierce-Arrow's traditional policy of continual betterment of current models, as opposed to the "yearly model" plan, a group of improvements has been incorporated in the company's larger type of car, the big Series 36 dual-valve model. Distributors and dealers in the larger centers now are exhibiting these cars.

Dodge Sets New Truck Output Mark

Shipments of Graham Brothers trucks from Dodge Brothers factories in August, set a new record for any month in 1928, exceeding July this year by 10 per cent, and a 60 per cent increase over August, 1927. The figures represent the combined shipments of the plants in Detroit, Toronto, Evansville, Ind., and Stockton, Cal., the latter plant reporting the best month in history.

The increased volume of business is reflected by the fact that retail deliveries of Canadian dealers were three and one-half times greater in August than in August, 1927, while shipments to overseas dealers showed an increase of 43 per cent in the same period.

With the recent announcement of the 3-ton truck, Graham Brothers has invaded new fields in commercial hauling, and now offers a line of trucks and commercial cars in six capacities, said to meet the needs of 96 per cent of all business.

QUALITY AT LOW COST

TIRE OUTPUT IN 1928 TO SET NEW MARK

425,000 Tons of Crude Rubber To Be Used, Is Estimate.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6.—The tire industry is bringing to a close a record-breaking third-quarter year and will enter the final quarter year with a far more aggressive production schedule than ever before at this particular season.

Crude rubber consumption so far in 1928 has eclipsed all previous marks and for the year should greatly exceed earlier estimates of 390,000 tons. In fact, crude consumption in the first nine months of 1928 will total fully 325,000 tons and it is calculated that the American industry will use 100,000 tons during the final quarter, making a total for this year of approximately 425,000 tons.

As the industry enters the final month of the British restriction measure, there appears to be no concerted effort to enforce any substitute restriction. Dutch rubber growers, it is officially reported at Washington, have refused to join hands with the British in any voluntary restriction program. Although the British rubber ban, which was started five years ago, is not officially lifted until Nov. 1, the law has been practically inoperative ever since last April.

From a retail standpoint the tire industry should enjoy a substantial spurt in renewal sales during October, due principally to heavy motor travels to and from thousands of football games in all sections of the United States.

It is assumed by most manufacturers that the industry will enforce this year, as in the past, the spring dating custom with dealers, although final decision very probably will come from the new Rubber Institute. Twice in previous years the industry has tried to eliminate the spring dating plan but in each instance has been forced to revive it hurriedly to enable dealers to order heavily in advance for spring and early summer delivery.

FREE FERRIES OPERATING OVER RIVER AT MEMPHIS

Tennessee Highway Department Service Eliminates Necessity of Paying $3.50 Toll to Private Operators

THE Tennessee State Highway Department is operating free ferries across the Mississippi River from Memphis to the Arkansas side owing to the burning of the Harahan bridge which previously served automobile traffic. This service eliminates the toll of $3.50 which was charged in the beginning.

More than 1300 cars and 2800 passengers were transported across the Mississippi River by the free State ferry on the first day of its operation. At one time the Memphis wharf was cleared of all automobiles and at no time was there a recurrence of the traffic tangle that often existed before the State ferry service began.

Delight over the orderly and rapid service has been expressed by city officials and citizens of Memphis, and travelers who find it necessary to cross the riven often and who have been forced to wait in line for hours during the first days of the emergency were pleased with the improved and rapid service.

No schedule is being followed by the ferries and if cross-river traffic remains at its present size, no schedule will be followed hereafter. As quickly as a ferry can be unloaded and loaded again it casts off. Sailings to date have been a little more than 15 minutes apart, and the time will be reduced as motorists and crews become more accustomed to the new service.

Free service will be rendered from 5 a. m. to 2 a. m. of the following day. One boat will be operated throughout this period, while a second boat will be in service from 6 a. m. until 5.30 p. m.

BUILDER OF STUTZ CARS SPEAKS HERE

F. E. Moskovics Gives Advertising Club His Business Viewpoints.

That the vendor of advertising must thoroughly understand all phases of the business of the concern who desires to do advertising before intelligent recommendations on the expenditure of money can be made, was the keynote of an address by F. E. Moskovics, president of the Stutz Motor Car Co. before the members of the Advertising Club of St. Louis at noon, Tuesday, Oct. 2. Moskovics spoke on "Advertising Co-Operation in Every-Day Business."

Robert E. Lee, secretary-manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, and former president of the Advertising Club, presented Moskovics to a large audience of business men and told his hearers that the now Stutz president drove the first automobile into St. Louis in 1903, just prior to the World's Fair. Arthur E. Schanuel, president of the club, at the conclusion of the well-received talk, presented Moscovics with a replica of the plaque given to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when the "Lone Eagle" made his historic trans-Atlantic flight.

Throughout his many years' experience in the atomobile industry, Moskovics has purchased thousands of dollars' worth of advertising space and he reviewed some of the solicitations that have been made by sellers of advertising space.

"I bow to none," he said, "in my respect and regard of the power and importance of advertising but at the same time I do not want to blind myself to some of the all-too-evident evils I see in it. There is room for wonderful co-operation between the seller and user of advertising and the seller can render a service of inestimable value to the buyer.

"The first duty of the seller of advertising is to establish the fact that the product to be advertised is worthy of an advertising expenditure. Only that which has a right to exist will survive—and the advertising man's first job is to carefully analyze the needs of the business marketing the product. Otherwise the money will be wasted and advertising in general will be injured.

"One danger that I want to point out is the utter folly of a small manufacturer or merchant attempting to equal the advertising expenditure of the big companies. Just because a large concern, doing a tremendous volume of business, spends enormous sums in advertising, is no reason why the concern doing a much smaller volume of business should endeavor to keep pace. Such a policy would be ruinous. And the seller of advertising should be the first to point this out to the buyer of advertising."

Moskovics made a plea for all men engaged in advertising, in all of its phases, to devote more time and attention to the study of the subject from every standpoint to be better enabled to properly assist the advertiser in analyzing his needs.

In conclusion, he said, "I don't believe there is a business in the world that has greater opportunities, a greater future or more reason and right to exist, than advertising. And by better fitting yourself to intelligently analyze the advertisers' needs, its importance will be greater than ever and its good will be reflected in its general success."

—based on growing recognition of greater dollar value in size, style and performance—plus in-built dependability

EACH day more and more of the millions who count the cost of motoring recognize the obvious superiorities of the new Plymouth in full size, style and performance.

But this is only to be expected in the Plymouth, as in every Chrysler-built car, because of the unique Chrysler principle of Standardized Quality in engineering and manufacturing under which these cars are built.

Such features as the "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine, using any gasoline, slender profile radiator, arched windows, "air-wing" fenders, internal expanding hydraulic squeakless 4-wheel brakes—are convincing naked-eye evidence of Plymouth's greater dollar value in the lowest-priced field.

See it. Drive it yourself. You are then bound to know the reasons for the spectacular demand which has already necessitated a doubling of the Plymouth production capacity to meet mounting sales.

ONE OF TEN U. S. AUTOS EXPORTED

This Average Is Made in Production for First Half of Year.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 6.—One of every 10 motor cars produced in the United States in the first half of 1928 was shipped to a foreign country. This compares with slightly less than one of 11 cars manufactured, exported in the corresponding months of last year. These figures do not include cars, the parts of which were made in this country but which were assembled abroad. When these are taken into consideration, the foreign business of the automobile industry is shown to assume even greater proportions than these figures indicate.

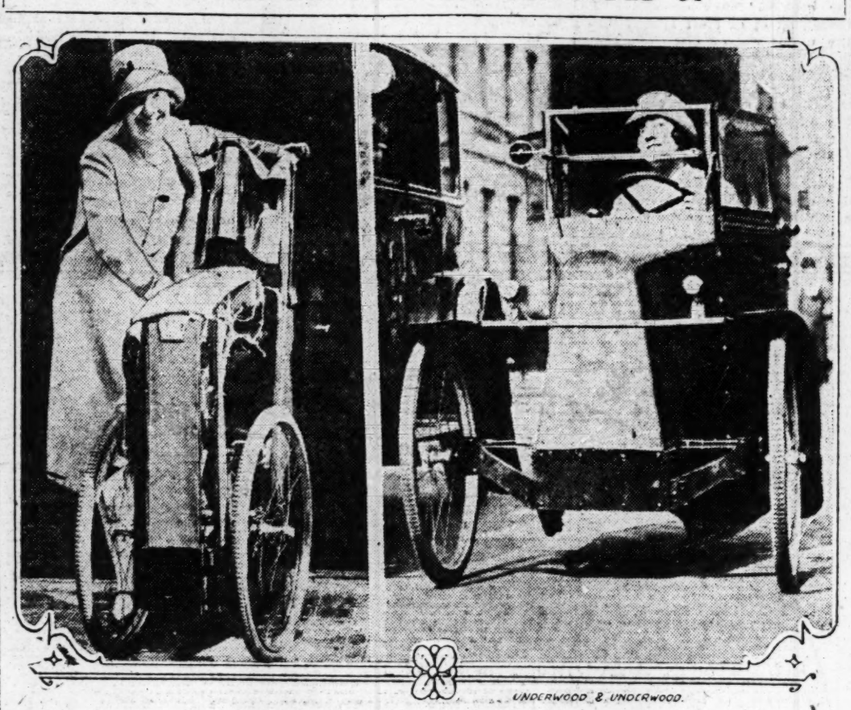
In every month, with two exceptions, January and April, the exportations of finished cars were greater this year, in both actual units and in the percentage of the total month's production, than they were last year. The following figures give the monthly production of finished cars in the United States for the first half of this year and last year, the monthly exports and the percentagrt that the latter bear to the former:

1927.	Production U. S.	Export.	Percentage Export to Productoin.
January ...	190,650	22,122	11.0
February ...	264,171	21,355	7.1
March ...	345,911	29,985	8.7
April ...	357,099	34,840	9.8
May ...	357,150	30,652	8.6
June ...	278,729	20,815	7.5
Total ...	1,802,620	150,769	8.9
1928.
January ...	205,576	20,476	10.0
February ...	291,131	27,336	9.7
March ...	371,421	40,181	10.8
April ...	364,877	33,646	9.2
May ...	375,863	39,353	10.5
June ...	356,430	36,505	10.2
Total ...	1,865,727	197,497	10.0

Prior to 1921, the exports of American-built motor cars held to no definite trend. The percentage of the total production exported was low one year, high the next, and low again the next. But following the inflation period at the close of the war, this phase of the industry assumed a more stable and definite trend.

Year after year since 1921, except in the record production year of 1926, automobile exports have been an increasingly important factor in the industry.

HERE'S A CAR THAT CAN BE FOLDED UP



UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD.

THIS new foot power folding-mobile can go between 20 and 30 m. p. h. It is the newest thing in London. Photo at the left shows how it folds up so that one can bring it right through the house door. Right the machine as it appears on the street. It has bicycle wheels and is propelled by foot power and three gears. Since it is taxless—being motorless—it has become very popular in Europe.

New Dodge Dealer Is Appointed Here

Bantle-Paulette Motor Car Co., a partnership recently organized by Maurice Paulette and Joseph Bantle, has opened temporary headquarters at 6700 Olive street for the sale of Dodge passenger cars and Graham Brothers trucks. The firm is an authorized dealer appointed by the Tate Motor Car Co., Dodge distributer here. It is planned to obtain larger headquarters as soon as the business is firmly established, Bantle said yesterday.

Paulette is well known on Automobile Row, having for years been a member of the Tate Motor Car Co. sales staff. Bantle has been in the real estate business and is a director of the Richmond Heights Bank.

High, Mitchell, Haid Purchase Hupmobile Cars

The old maxim, "Where one goes, others follow," seems to apply in the case of at least three members of the Cardinal baseball team.

About a month ago Harold Haid, pitcher for the pennant winners, purchased a blue custom-built six-cylinder Hupmobile sedan of the Weber Implement and Motor Co. Evidently he was pleased with his purchase, for George Weber, president of the Hupmobile firm here, announced yesterday that two other members of the Cardinals, Andy High and Clarence Mitchell, have had cars delivered to them. Both of the latter players purchased eight-cylinder custom-built sedans.

Nash Sets New Production Record

Another production and sales record was set by the Nash Motors Co. in September when a total of 20,606 of its "400" Series cars were placed in the hands of new Nash owners.

The record, according to official figures revealed today by the Nash sales department, is 6176 cars over and above the number manufactured and shipped during the best previous September in Nash history, and an increase of 8007 cars over September, 1927.

Unique Danger Sign.

The Ducal Automobile Club of Brunswick, Germany, is erecting a system of signs with skull and crossbones, black on a white ground, for dangerous points on automobile roads.

Hudson Leads in Production of 6-Cylinder Cars

The Hudson Motor Car Co. has maintained its position as the world's largest manufacturer of six-cylinder cars, and has now passed a quarter-million car mark for the 1928 season, according to a factory report to the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co. distributer here. Officials of the factory say that the fall demand for cars is universally active not only in the United States, but in Canada and the world markets, where Hudson-Essex has long occupied the leading position.

Says A. S. Frampton, vice president of the local distributing office: "From throughout the world comes reports that motorists are once again taking a keen interest in mechanical design and construction. They are studying comparative values and looking closely into the factors of construction which makes for reliability and modern performance.

"The time when beauty alone or any certain special features, such as colorful upholstery or special paint combinations were the deciding factors in the purchase of an automobile has become a thing of the past. Today the purchaser insists, of course, on style and beauty, and goes first to the car that presents the style leadership of the season, but he wants to know about the mechanical construction of the car, its performance record in the hands of owners, and its speed, pickup and flexibility.

"This change in the tendency of the purchaser is due to the fact that the average car buyer today is an experienced motorist. In many cases he or she, as the case may be, has been the owner of anywhere from three to 12 motor cars. These years of driving experience have taught these owners to look beneath the hood and check up on the performance records of the cars in the owners' hands.

"This tendency in buying has been a great help to Hudson-Essex this year, for we have made a particular point of the rugged and reliable design of our Hudson and Essex chasses. Our special chasses display, which has just been completed, has proven in every item that these cars are overstrength and built for service that lasts a long, long time.

We are inviting all motorists to make a comparative study of all automobiles, and we have arranged a special display which illustrates the leading features of our cars."

HOME OF NEW CHRYSLER DEALER

THIS sales and service building at 5626 Gravois avenue, has been acquired by the Lasker Motors, Inc., new Chrysler dealer here. It has 85-foot frontage and a depth of 160 feet. E. M. Lasker is president of the firm.

Cadillac, La Salle Sales Records

Cadillac and La Salle shipments during September to distributors and dealers again exceeded 5000 units. Stocks in the hands of dealers are low and in order to keep up with the increasing demand, October and November production schedules have been increased to maximum plant capacity. September sales and deliveries to consumers exceeded any previous month.

Buys 5 Chryslers For His Family

Another family is now completely Chrysler-ized.

C. F. Retzler, general manager of the Columbia Firebrick Co., of Strasburg, O., was the first man to own a six-cylinder automobile in his home county. After investing more than $31,000 in fine motor cars, including eight different makes, he has abandoned them all for the products of Chrysler.

First attracted to the Chrysler car in 1926, Retzler investigated the claims, drove several Imperial "80's" and bought a four-passenger coupe, which he drove two years. Recently he bought five new Chryslers for himself and family. The transaction amounted to more than $16,000.

WORLD AERO CONFERENCE BEGINS DEC. 12

54 Countries Invited to Attend Washington Conference

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Notables in the world of aeronautics will assemble in Washington for the first International Civil Aeronautics Conference, Dec. 12, 13 and 14. The list of 54 countries invited through the Department of State was announced today by the Department of Commerce, which is sponsoring the event. Committees in charge of preparations were also announced.

Each country will name its own delegation. Many of these are expected to include famous World War fliers and distinguished figures in aeronautics, both commercial and military. None of the delegations has been named so far. The American delegation, which will include some of the country's outstanding figures in aeronautics, will be selected soon, according to Leighton W. Rogers, executive officer of the conference.

The purpose of the international meeting, first suggested by President Coolidge as a fitting way to observe the twenty-fifth anniversary of the first flight of a power-driven craft by the Wright Brothers, is to provide an interchange of views on problems relating to aircraft in commerce and trade.

Developments in commercial aeronautics in the last two or three years have resulted in a widespread desire for a thorough study and consideration of the best methods of construction, operation and navigation of aircraft. Those in charge of the forthcoming conference regard it as an excellent opportunity for discussions of such problems by the world's best qualified commercial and technical men.

No formal agreement is projected, but many of those experienced in commercial aeronautics feel that the consensus of opinion of the world's experts as to the best methods will naturally indicate a general trend which can be followed or rejected, as the various countries desire.

The Executive Committee of the conference has been named as follows:

Chairman William P. MacCracken Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics; Francis White, Assistant Secretary of State; Trubee Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aeronautics; Edward P. Warner, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aeronautics; W. Irving Glover, Second Assistant Postmaster-General; Col. Paul Henderson, vice president, Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce; Dr. G. M. Lewis, director, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics; Capt. E. S. Land, Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics; Senator Hiram Bingham, president, National Aeronautics Association; A. S. Stewart, United States Chamber of Commerce; Leighton W. Rogers, executive officer.

Early Ills of Motoring Are Recalled by Pioneer

Twenty Years Makes a Great Difference to Driver, Review of Another Generation's Automobile and Highway System Discloses.

Interesting reminiscences of automobiles and automobiling 20 years ago are narrated by B. W. De Guichard, a pioneer in the automotive industry and head of the AC Spark Plug Co., which rounds out its twentieth anniversary this month.

"Today the motorist steps into his car, turns on the ignition and is comfortably and confidently away on his journey," Mr. De Guichard said.

"Twenty years ago this same motorist, perhaps, used a teakettle full of hot water to prime his machine, pouring some of the hot water into the radiator and some of it over the carburetor. Then he would bend over and crank the car; if adroit at this operation, he would escape a broken arm.

"There were the headlights that had to be filled with oil in the real early days; a little later carbide lights were introduced. With this method the motorist found it necessary to see that the tank was supplied with water and carbide.

"Riding over a rough road, and there certainly were plenty of them, the carbide lights would suddenly flare up like Vesuvius and then as quickly fade away. Following the carbides came the acetylene pressure tank, which was quite an improvement. It will be remembered that all of these lamps had to be lighted with a match.

"There were no garages along the roadways 20 years ago and few passersby to render help, so in case of a punctured tire the motorist would begin work on changing the offending bolted-on, lug or clincher type fabric tire. Inflating the tire was done by hand pump. There was no such thing as carrying an inflated spare tire in the early days. And changing a flat tire often meant half a day's work, a pair of badly skinned hands, and anything but a sweet disposition.

"Shock absorbers were unheard of in the early days. This didn't make motoring over the bumpy roads any better. Windshield wipers were another unknown appliance, but they weren't needed in the winter time anyway because everybody jacked their cars up in the garages and kept them there because road conditions made it impossible to use them.

"While there was no such thing as a spark plug thirty odd years ago, in the days of sprockets and skepticism the accepted means of firing the fuel mixture was a fearful contrivance known as a 'hot tube.'

"Equipped with a blow torch the motoist would proceed to heat up the tube. If he couldn't get the tube hot enough, the engine remained dead. If the tube became over-heated — bam!!!! backfire, bandages.

"Under such handicaps labored the intrepid motorist before he even put on his gloves and goggles to go forth and give Main street a big thrill.

"When it looked as though that hardy band of pioneer motorists was destined for extinction, the fiendish 'hot tube' was discarded in favor of spark plugs.

"The first spark plugs were nothing to enthuse about. They were bought by the peck and thrown out by the bushel. But in the intervening years of automobile progress, spark plugs like other component parts of the automobile have been gradually developed and improved until they are as nearly perfect as it is possible to make them.

"Today improved engine design eliminates necessity of the tea kettle full of hot water; better tires have reduced greatly necessity for changing. Improved roads and cars make winter driving as popular as at any season and certainly more appreciated. On any well traveled road the motorist is able as a rule to get service when necessary.

How Oldsmobile Makes Fenders

When an automobile owner endeavors to straighten a fender bent or dented in a collision he is apt to wonder how such heavy and resisting sheet steel, as is used for fenders in the better automobiles, ever was formed in such smooth, graceful curves. It requires the largest and heaviest machinery in an automobile factory to accomplish this work, according to Oldsmobile engineers.

"Giant presses mold the heavy steel fenders used on Oldsmobiles as easily as a housewife cuts dough for cookies," they explain. "An oblong sheet of steel is laid upon the under die of one of these presses and a lever is thrown. The upper die closes down, pressing the steel between the two die faces with its own ponderous weight and the added power of large electric motors. The combined pressure exerted is 265 tons. When the upper die raises the steel has been changed to a perfectly formed fender with the superfluous metal neatly trimmed from the edges.

"All other sheet metal parts are similarly formed, including radiator shells, rear axle cover plate, fender skirts, step housings and lamp brackets.

"Wheer two sheet metal parts are joined together it is the practice in the Oldsmobile factories to use electric welding for this purpose."

ACTIVITIES OF BOY SCOUTS

NEW AWARDS OFFERED TO SCOUT EXECUTIVES

Heads of Troops and Others Eligible to Try for Solid Gold Key Charm.

A new award for scoutmasters, troop committeemen and deputy commissioners who have been actively connected with the Boy Scout movement five years or longer, in the form of a solid gold key charm, is being offered those officers in the St. Louis district, announces William Buffer, educational director of the local Boy Scout Council. The key will be awarded to any leader of five years' experience who has completed a comprehensive course in scoutmastership training. The awards will be presented by the national headquarters of the organization, through the local Council.

The necessary training courses cover a wide range of subjects, and in themselves would require several years to complete. In fact, the program itself, as formulated by the educational department, would take five years for a scoutmaster just starting in the work, but some of the requirements have been given as training courses by the Council in former years.

Program of Courses.

The full program necessary will include completing the following courses:

1. "The Elements of Scoutmastership," the approved course for new and inexperienced leaders. This course has been given before and all leaders holding standard training certificates dated before June 1, 1928, will be given credit for this. Leaders holding other certificates should see the educational director for adjustment of credits.

2. "Principles of Scoutmastership," a new approved course to be given for the first time this season. This class will give the scoutmaster a foundation in scouting methods and principles, a knowledge of source of materials, the nature of boys and program building. Scoutmasters who have completed the Columbia University home study course in scoutmastership will be credited as having satisfied this requirement.

3. First Aid Course. This class will be held with the co-operation of the American Red Cross, and will enable the leader not only to practice accident prevention and emergency treatment, but to teach these subjects to his troop. Three certificates will be awarded in this course: A standard Red Cross certificate at the end of the seventh session, a Red Cross advanced first aid certificate, and a scoutmasters specialization certificate in first aid, the latter two at the end of the course. The last certificate is the one required.

To Earn Advanced Certificate.

4. Advanced Certificate. To be obtained by acting as an officer, patrol leader, or special instructor in a training course for as many meetings as required to complete that course, plus as many extra training sessions as may be required.

5 and 6. Specialization Courses. Two, each of a minimum of 10 hours, required for the key. They will not be offered this fall, but when they are they may be selected from such subjects as swimming, life saving, nature study, etc.

7. Camp Attendance. Two weeks with troop at an approved camp. This may be two periods of one week each, or any other division as long as it is not a series of overnight hikes. Past camping, if approved, will be credited.

Courses in the first three requirements will be given by the local council this winter, beginning Nov. 5.

Troop Notes

North District.

Doing its scouting in the open, Troop No. 3 of the Grace Holy Cross Church held an overnight camp at Kenwood Springs last week end. An exploring trip through the woods, followed by a camp-cooked meal and ghost stories told around the fire, marked the high point of the trip.

An intensive program of birdhouse building, and construction of model airplanes and other exhibits for an entertainment to take place in November is being conducted by Troop No. 42, of Zion Evangelical Church. Scout Jesse Lawson of the troop has built a model of Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" 39 inches long and with a wing-spread of three feet.

An overnight hike to the Lions' Den reservation was taken by the troop recently, almost 100 per cent of the membership attending. A large number of tests were passed. Assistant Patrol Leader Norman Stockho of the Wolf patrol is continuing his exceptionally rapid advancement. Although in the troop only a year, he is already a first-class merit badge scout, one of his merit badges being the difficult Pioneering badge. Most of his badges were won at Irondale.

The Beaver patrol made the best record in a series of contests conducted recently by Troop No. 161, of the Webster School Welfare Club, to develop scouting technique, so it was declared the most efficient in the troop. Contests were held in knot-tying, fire-by-friction, first aid, and others, including several merely recreational.

A Parents' night, the program of which included also a minstrel show, was staged by Troop No. 206, of the Ames School, last week. A large crowd of parents and friends of the scouts attended. The meeting was also made the occasion of the elevation of Scout Herbert Herzog to the rank of Junior Assistant Scoutmaster. Scot Herzog was presented with his new badge by Chairman A. W. Pauley of the North District Court of Honor. The Mothers' Club of the troop presented the scouts with four bugles, as a nucleus for a drum corps. Field Executive L. L. Hotchkiss gave a talk on "Scouting, the Character-Building Movement."

South District.

An inter-patrol achievement contest has been inaugurated by Troop No. 77 of the Tyler Place Church to start off its new season. First aid, pioneering, fire-by-friction, knot-tying, weekly attendance, and stunts will count. Each scout has pledged himself to advance at least one rank during this period, and points will be awarded for such advancement. Attendance at church also will count for credits.

A hike to Sugar Loaf Creek is being planned by Troop No. 105 of the Church of the Assumption, as a homecoming welcome for their scoutmaster, Joseph Reinhardt, who was absent from the city this summer. A comprehensive program of activities has been planned for the fall and winter seasons by this troop.

West District.

Thirty-six scouts of Troop No. 90, of the Temple Shaare Emeth, participated in their first hike of the fall season to Creve Coeur Lake last Sunday. A treasure-hunt and a campfire conducted by Scoutmaster Burgheim featured the hike. Dr. Harry Greditzer, a member of the troop committee, spoke on personal hygene and its relation to common diseases, at the last meeting of the troop. Field Executive Reaves was also present and gave a short talk.

The Beaver patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest being conducted by Troop No. 94, of St. Margaret's Church. The contest will be continued three months, and a prize will be given the winning patrol. New members are rapidly being added to this troop.

A hike to Cliff Cave for the purpose of passing tests, collecting leaves, and exploring a number of small caves in the vicinity was taken by Troop No. 101 last Sunday. The advisory council which conducts the affairs of the troop has been constantly active. It recently installed a new library and library desk at the troop headquarters.

Suburban District.

A Board of Review for the purpose of reviewing applicants for first-class scout and merit badges has been formed for the newly organized St. Charles area of the Suburban District, St. Louis Council, according to Field Executive M. N. Leavitt. The first meeting of the board will be held at the law offices of Charles J. Daudt, Oct. 15. The board will function for all troops in St. Charles and vicinity.

R. G. Bigelow, principal of Kirkwood High School, has succeeded E. L. Lyons, athletic director of the same school, as scoutmaster of Kirkwood No. 4, which meets at the high school. Former Scoutmaster Lyons' duties with the athletic teams will require too much of his time for him to continue with the troop, he announced.

A new Suburban District troop, Kirkwood No. 5, is being organized at the Kirkwood Junior High School, under the leadership of Scoutmaster Coulson. The first meeting will be held tomorrow evening, at which time candidates for membership will submit their applications. It is also planned to have the fathers of the candidates attend.

NEW HANDICRAFT PROGRAM PLANNED FOR SCOUT TROOPS

Experiment Being Conducted in North District Under Lead of Field Executive.

A new experiment in a district-wide handicraft program for Boy Scout troops is being conducted in the North District of St. Louis, under the leadership of L. L. Hotchkiss, field executive for that area. The experiment plans to make available for every troop officer in the district a system of handicraft training that may be carried back to the troop as a new, interest arousing activity program. If the plan is successful, it will be adopted by the entire council, for all troops in the St. Louis territory.

The first meeting under the new plan will be held tomorrow evening at the Sherman Park Community Center, at 7:30 o'clock. Scoutmasters, assistant scoutmasters, junior assistants, senior patrol leaders and patrol leaders may attend, and will be given program material they may teach to their own troops in keeping with the principles and practices of good scouting. The program will follow closely that used by the scouts at the Ironside Reservation camps, which has been found to meet the requirements most closely.

The introduction of this new departure from regular troop meeting routine is expected to restore interest in lagging troops, and revitalize those that have "gone stale" after years of the same type of scouting.

I like to drive with Champion Spark Plugs because I know I'll not be annoyed with engine trouble due to faulty spark plugs.

Champion is the better spark plug because it has an exclusive sillimanite insulator specially treated to withstand the much higher temperatures of the modern high-compression engine. Also a new patented solid copper gasket-seal that remains absolutely gas-tight under high compression. Special analysis electrodes which assure a fixed spark-gap under all driving conditions.

Beginning October 4th and every Thursday thereafter the Champion Sparkers will broadcast over the Blue Network of the National Broadcasting Company from 8:30 to 9:00 p. m. Eastern Standard Time.

The 4-Door Sedan • Body by Fisher

-a Successful Six now winning Even Greater Success

NEW VALUE Brings New Heights of Public Favor

As a result of the new value offered by today's Pontiac—as a consequence of its greater power, higher speed and smarter style—this lowest-priced General Motors six continues to win new heights of public favor, surpassing even its own world's records of previous years.

More than ever in the past, Pontiac Six now provides motoring luxury far in advance of anything else in its field. Staunch, beautiful bodies by Fisher—smaller, sturdier wheels with larger tires—an engine of 186 cubic inches displacement—the famous cross-flow radiator—the G-M-R cylinder head... all these and a score of additional advancements are emphasized by the performance supremacy resulting from a new, more highly perfected carburetor and new improved manifolding.

That's why today's Pontiac Six is attracting new buyers at a rate which even its own renowned predecessors never achieved. That's why it is winning leadership in the low-priced six-cylinder field.

Cold weather driving gains a new freedom from inconveniences in today's Pontiac Six equipped with the thermostically controlled cross-flow radiator. The cross-flow radiator consists of two side tanks, a top tank and a core made up of horizontal passages. Water from the engine enters the inlet tank at the right, flows horizontally through the core and is pumped from the outlet tank at the left, back to the engine. It cannot come into contact with liquid in the top tank until it has been cooled. Hence it reduces to a minimum losses of water and alcohol through boiling.

Zaro Agha, Doorkeeper in Stamboul, Studies Latin Alphabet.

By the Associated Press.

STAMBOUL, Turkey, Oct. 6.—The dean of centenarians, 154-year-old Zaro Agha, is learning his ABC's now that the prefect of Stamboul, whom the sprightly aged Kurd serves as doorkeeper, has ordered all municipal servants to read and write the newly adopted Latin alphabet within the next two weeks.

The 154-year-old schoolboy is attending the lessons organized by the prefect at the city hall and is delighting his teacher by his ability in learning the 29 letters borrowed from the West, which Turkey is using to replace the 600 characters of the Arabic alphabet, which 12,500,000 other Turks, along with old Zaro, had never been able to learn.

OFFICERS LEAVE FOR MEETING OF MORRIS PLAN BANKERS

R. O. Bonnell, President, Among Those on Way to Convention in Richmond, Va.

Robert O. Bonnell, president of the Morris Plan Bankers' Association, and Ralph W. Pitman, secretary and treasurer, departed yesterday to attend the ninth annual convention of Morris plan bankers in Richmond, Va.

Among the delegates from Missouri and vicinity, who are traveling to Richmond in a special car, is Arthur A. Blumeyer, president of the Industrial Savings Trust Co. Two hundred and fifty bankers from all parts of the United States will attend the meeting, according to a statement issued by the national office of the association, which is in St. Louis.

Among the most important matters to be discussed is the consideration of ways and means of broadening the scope of service now being rendered by Morris plan banks. As a part of this program, and with a view to meeting competition which has arisen from the increased demands for industrial banking service, the convention will be asked to pass upon a unified advertising campaign using newspapers in the larger cities for its medium. While Morris plan banks, operating in 127 of the larger cities in the United States, are independent institutions, the proponents of such an advertising campaign feel that a unified effort through newspapers would have great cumulative value.

WHAT CHRYSLER ENGINEERS HAVE FOUND OUT ABOUT

by

WALTER P. CHRYSLER

The corps of technical experts directed by Fred M. Zeder, Vice-President in charge of engineering for all Chrysler companies, has completed its very exhaustive study of Dodge Brothers products.

Their findings have more than confirmed my personal knowledge of the soundness and integrity of Dodge Brothers methods.

While certain changes have been made in conformity with Chrysler ideals of luxury and style, Chrysler engineers found that Dodge Brothers three new Sixes—the Senior, the Victory and the Standard—are basically as sound as motor cars can be built.

They report that the very highest standard of excellence in materials and workmanship is revealed by their investigations.

This report more than justifies my personal conviction that Dodge Brothers new Senior is a Six of remarkable distinction and quality.

It explains, in terms of honest value, why Dodge Brothers improved Standard Six commands a great and growing market.

And it confirms my sincere belief that the new Victory Six, with its original and exclusive advantages in construction, is today one of the truly great cars of the world.

In fact, every one of these cars proves beyond the shadow of a doubt that Dodge Brothers policy of building well is today more rigidly in force than ever; and that Dodge ruggedness and Dodge dependability can be successfully expressed in terms of flashing performance and advanced style.

Dodge Brothers Motor Cars will continue to bear the name they have borne so honorably for fourteen years, and Dodge Brothers dealers will continue to market them throughout the world.

With the return of personal management the entire thought and effort of this organization are being directed towards a single high objective—to make Dodge Brothers good name better still.

From my complete knowledge of all Dodge Brothers advantages and assets, and knowing, as I do, the exceptional talents of the men who share with me the responsibility for success—I have no hesitancy in predicting for Dodge Brothers a future even more brilliant than its magnificent past.

WHAT BUSINESS CAN EXPECT FROM GOV. SMITH STATED BY CHAIRMAN JOHN J. RASKOB

Nominee's Record Shows He Is Competent to Promote Commerce of Country, Says Head of Democratic Committee.

WHAT has business to expect from Alfred E. Smith? John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, answers this question in the following article:

By JOHN J. RASKOB.

IN all of its diversified industries and commerce, honest business has no truer friend than the Democratic candidate for the presidency. Honest business might comb the country from coast to coast and find no stancher protector.

No man in public life in the last 10 years has equaled Gov. Smith's capacity for handling large business affairs or exceeded his understanding of the relationship between the security of business and the prosperity of the whole country.

A great many business men are aware, either from personal acquaintanceship with Gov. Smith or through their study of his career, that all this is true, and they have turned from long-time affiliation with the Republican party to align themselves in the Governor's support.

Among Supporters of Smith.

Very many of these business converts are gentlemen of enormous and widespread interests whose security or prosperity might conceivably be affected if Gov. Smith were the type of statesman he is represented to be by Republican propaganda. E. S. Harkness is a Standard Oil financier and a director in a dozen railroads. Rudolph Spreckels of San Francisco is a banker and sugar refiner. John J. Stamler and Uzal H. McCarter are presidents of banks in Newark.

August Heckscher of New York, a lifelong Republican, is a capitalist and large scale real estate operator. Pierre S. du Pont is chairman of the board of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., and also chairman of the board of General Motors. Arthur Curtiss James is a New York financier whose interests embrace railroads, securities companies, real estate and merchandising.

Not one of these gentlemen, or of the thousands of others who have been irresistibly attracted by the extraordinary character and competency of the Democratic candidate, consider that their interests are in the slightest degree imperilled. On the contrary, they assume with an eye on experience and the facts, that their interests will be as secure, if not safer, under the presidency of Alfred E. Smith as under the presidency of Mr. Hoover.

Why Smith Gets Support.

Some of these gentlemen have been drawn to Gov. Smith because of his unprecedented political courage—the forthrightness of his views on prohibition. It would be absurd to assume, however, that they were drawn to him in spite of their belief that he might be unsafe or dangerous to the business interests of the country and, of course, their own particular interests. Things don't happen that way.

One has a right to assume reasonably and logically that all of these big business men who have come over to the support of Gov. Smith for one expressed reason or another have entire confidence that the prosperity of the country will find in him a protector, not an assailant.

The truth is that business men, large and small, all over the country, who will take the trouble to survey the actual facts of Gov. Smith's career and of his capacity for handling business, from the most minute details to the most enormous projects, as well as his proved understanding of business, its problems and aspirations, cannot fail to be impressed by his extraordinary competency and reliability. They see, first of all, that they are dealing with a man of sterling character as well as sterling ability, and the good business man doesn't live who isn't impressed by character.

Says Smith Keeps Pledges.

There is nothing that a business man values more highly than integrity and honesty which, with courage and ability, are the hallmarks of Alfred E. Smith. Gov. Smith has never been known to break a promise or evade a pledge. In the most literal sense, his word is his bond. With him there is no such thing as a political promise—a promise given to attract support is a cheap, deceitful, vote-getting artifice.

Political expediency has no place in his scheme of things. This fact is recognized by his political opponents as well as by his friends. As Governor of New York, he has made as many appointments requiring Senate confirmation as President Coolidge has made, I suppose, and only once in the eight years of his governorship has he had a Democratic Senate to send his appointments to. Yet there is not a single instance where the Senate failed to confirm. Nor is there a single instance in the whole eight years of the Republican legislature passing a bill over his veto.

All of this means something to the business man. It means honesty, courage, adherence to the pledged word, the gift of selecting men eminently qualified for holding office, wise leadership, Advocate of Honest Business.

My relations with Gov. Smith over a period of years enable me to estimate his attitude toward business and his comprehension of its problems very completely and accurately. No man could have higher, finer ideals with respect to the relation which should exist between Government and business. He is a strong advocate of less Government in business and more business in Government.

His whole career demonstrates his fairness to labor and his regard for the welfare of the plain people, but I assert with the utmost emphasis that Gov. Smith as President of the United States, would not tolerate disturbance of honest business—would not countenance measures which he believed might upset the course of business and so imperil the prosperity of the people.

The Governor knows that this country is committed to a high standard of living which requires high wage rates. High wage rates make production costlier in the United States than it is abroad. Therefore we must have tariff protection. Alfred E. Smith comprehends this as clearly as I comprehend it, or as any other business man comprehends it. He knows that high wages both in industry and in agriculture, and a fair return on capital employed in both, spell increased purchasing power.

The Basis of Prosperity.

Purchasing power is the basis of all prosperity. High wages mean increased consumption. Increased consumption means increased production. Increased production means increased employment. Increased employment means high wages. And thus the cycle of prosperity is completed. No man in public life has a clearer understanding than Gov. Smith of these economic principles. No man would be less likely to disturb the very base of the country's prosperity.

The Governor believes in a tariff for the protection of American business and American labor — an honest tariff. He believes in protection, but he wants the protection to be general—to be spread equally over industry, including agriculture—not piled up here and thinned out there, unjust and inequitable. He believes that all legitimate business should be fostered and protected, under the tariff, but he does not believe that special interests should be coddled under the tariff.

Good Business of Decade.

We have had great prosperity in many industries and particularly in large business, and we have had high wages in industry. Industry has prospered materially during the last 10 years on account of our large exports. The balance of the world—Europe—had not recovered from the destructive effects of the World War.

But Europe is recovering. She is challenging our right to much of this export trade. More and more she is becoming a formidable competitor in many fields of industrial production. To insure continued prosperity for the people of the United States there is nothing more necessary and important than developing ways and means of increasing this prosperity, of increasing it and extending it to small business men and to agriculture.

The farming industry must be made a profitable industry so that it, too, can pay higher wages and lend its shoulder to the cause of the prosperity of the whole. All of this is perfectly clear to Gov. Smith, as I definitely know, and would have his first attention in the event of his election.

Experience as Governor.

Gov. Smith's record as chief executive of the Empire State for four terms has given to him a splendid grasp of the fundamentals involved in our cycle of American prosperity. The Governorship of the State of New York is a wonderful training school for executive responsibilities. There could be no better course of training for the duties of President of the United States.

Grover Cleveland and Theodore Roosevelt were trained for the presidency through holding the office of Governor of New York. Woodrow Wilson was Governor of New Jersey before his party called him to its leadership and placed him in the White House. William McKinley received similar training as Governor of Ohio, and Calvin Coolidge was an able Governor of Massachusetts before he was called to presidential responsibilities.

It is not uninteresting to recall that the Governor of the Empire State holds authority over more people than did the first six Presidents of the United States. The responsibility is enormous. The burden of labor as well is well nigh as heavy as the burden of the presidency. The business of the State is enormous both in the vastness of its operations and the amount of money that has to be safeguarded in the spending.

Fine Record in State.

For four terms of the Governorship Alfred E. Smith has had intimate experience of all this and made such a record, indeed, as attracted to him the enthusiastic commendation of such great Republican leaders as Elihu Root and Charles Evans Hughes.

He could not have been Governor of New York for eight years unless the business interests of the State—the multitude of small business men as well as the big business interests—had acquired confidence in his judgment and intentions. He could not have been re-elected time after time unless the wide business interests of the State had estimated correctly his conception and grasp of the fundamentals upon which business depends.

Business in New York has quietly observed Alfred E. Smith for a good many years and has learned not only to trust him, but to follow him with entire confidence in his leadership. It has seen him transform the insurance and banking departments of the State government, eliminating scandal, waste, incompetency and public distrust. It has seen him introduce common sense and modern busines practices into State government.

Reorganized State Offices.

Another very important business accomplishment which must be put to the credit of Gov. Smith was his reorganization and reconstruction of the machinery of the State's government. By that reorganization, 187 departments and agencies, with wasteful, overlapping and confusing functions, were consolidated into 18 departments whose heads are responsible to the Governor. Until that business reform was brought about, the State's business was handled just about the way it had been handled a half century before.

The Governor realized that the consolidation and reorganization of the multiplicity of separate and independent State agencies was an absolute necessity in meeting the trend of modern business. The trend of modern business is to centralize and to fix responsibility upon department heads. More and more, emphasis is laid upon centralized and responsible management as a principal factor of business success.

The trend of modern business is to cut down overhead expense. It is relatively as important in the affairs of the great business corporation known as the State of New York as it is in the affairs of that other vast business corporation, the United States of America.

Best to Fix Responsibility.

As a good business man, the Governor realized that it was poor business to spread responsibility so thinly and through so many channels. It could not be readily traced or fixed. The Governor maintained that the business organization of government should be made so simple as to be readily understandable to any man. He knew that the business of government was a blind mystery to the man in the street and that the great mass of the people had only the haziest idea of how their affairs were run.

If he is elected President, he will do something that should have been done years ago, that has been persistently avoided and neglected, because of politics. That is, the reorganization and reconstruction of the activities of the United States Government. With the aid of Congress, Gov. Smith would effect a real reorganization and consolidation of government activities, putting them upon a real business basis, and instituting the true economy which comes from prudent expenditure.

He will do in Washington what he has done in New York—put modern business principles and practices into the Government, thereby doing away with waste and improving efficiency. Time and time again he has saved large sums of money for the State of New York by his knowledge of real estate values and his business sense, cutting down expenditures for rents while providing ampler quarters.

Saves a Million in Rents.

The Governor also put into effect a system of new office buildings in Albany, New York City and Buffalo, by which $1,000,000 in rents will be saved annually for the taxpayers. If he goes to Washington he will accomplish similar business reforms, and savings on a far larger scale.

The establishment of the Port Authority in New York is considered by the Governor to be one of his major achievements. It not only illustrated his talent for large business undertakings, it gave him, in addition, a wider experience and knowledge than he had ever had before with the ramifications of industry and finance. In planning for the Port Authority, which is the governmental agency which controls and improves the transportation facilities within the port, Gov. Smith required himself to make an exhaustive study of railroad problems, for example.

There are few men in the country outside of the railroad business who have a better knowledge of this industry. In the same way, he made special and intensive studies of all the principal industries, including agriculture, which contribute products to the port. Always thorough and painstaking in what he does, these were not superficial studies but deep and intensive investigations of business and finance. It is the simple fact that his several years of work in planning for the Port Authority was in itself a very fine business training. It gave the Governor an opportunity to acquire first hand and accurate knowledge of the needs of business—what treatment it must have in order to prosper.

Issue of Improvement Bonds.

One of the financial reforms of the first importance that he instituted as Governor was to pay for capital and permanent improvements by the sale of bonds, rather than out of current revenues. Good business and prudent financing suggested to him that it was inequitable and unfair to the taxpayers of a single generation to burden them with the cost of public improvements designed to have a life of more than a hundred years. He took that policy to the people and they directed the Legislature to accept the Governor's leadership.

As Governor of New York, he has helped agriculture practically and definitely. Since 1918 the State, under Gov. Smith's leadership, has put into effect a far-reaching program to cheapen marketing costs, to decrease marketing risks and, in general to facilitate the distribution and sale of New York farm products for the ultimate benefit of both the farmer producer and the city consumer. The functioning of Gov. Smith's agricultural relief

9TH RECORD BREAKING MONTH!
GREATEST SEPTEMBER IN WILLYS-OVERLAND HISTORY!

141% AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

MONTH after month, Willys-Overland's sales records have been smashed throughout the year! And the big parade goes on—last month was the greatest September in the Company's 20-year history!

It was the ninth consecutive record-breaking month. Sales of Whippet and Willys-Knight motor cars were 141% ahead of sales for September, 1927.

This towering structure of success has its foundations deep down in the sound elements of dollar-for-dollar value—in proved operating economy and dependable performance of the Whippet Four, Whippet Six and Willys-Knight Six.

The Whippet Four offers to light car buyers many engineering advantages formerly found only in costly cars. The Whippet Six is the world's lowest-priced Six, with 7-bearing crankshaft and other important superiorities. The Willys-Knight Six—at the lowest price in history—is bringing the marked advantages of the patented double sleeve-valve engine to thousands of new owners.

LITTLE RELIGION IN SERBIA

Only Four Churches Remain in Belgrade, Few Attending.

BELGRADE, Oct. 6.—Religion has reached the lowest ebb in the history of the Serbian people. There remain but four churches in Belgrade for the spiritual comfort of 500,000 Serbs.

Church services on Sunday are attended only by a few persons. High mass is often said on Sunday to empty auditoriums. The indifference of the average Serb to church services exists but cannot be defined. Bishop Lukovitch, dean of the Belgrade Cathedral, discussed the situation frankly with the Associated Press correspondent. "The State is supporting our church," he said. "There is no such thing as public support. Whereas there are often at least five churches in towns of 20,000, here in Belgrade, with a population of 500,000, four churches are too many."

ARE YOUR HANDS DEFORMED WITH RHEUMATISM LIKE THIS?

Unsightly Joints and Painful Muscles Said to Respond to Weldona.

It is surprising how many people one meets in public places with hands deformed, more or less, with rheumatism. In most cases this unsightly appearance is due to neglect or lack of proper treatment. In rare cases the deformity is due to inherited tendency, but almost every case can be traced to rheumatic arthritis, and is improved by proper treatment.

Showing hands deformed by rheumatism—from "Germs of Rheumatism"

If your hands and fingers are stiff in the morning, weak and joints are enlarged, do not neglect them The same is true of stiff and painful knee joints and where the knees are stiff when sitting down any length of time, or if there is difficulty in going up or down stairs.

The same condition, except that there is often more pain, is found in the shoulder and arm, only this condition does not show deformity until the disease has been active for some months. It is often difficult to reach up to comb the hair or put on a coat. One of the most successful preparations yet given to the public and which has thousands of personal recommendations is Weldona.

Some claim that Weldona gave immediate relief from the pain and stiffness, while others had to take the preparation for some months before a marked decrease in the joints was apparent. Now, today, is the time to start taking Weldona.

Weldona is recommended for acute and chronic forms of neuritis, arthritis, lumbago, sciatica, inflammatory and muscular rheumatism, and even the most severe cases of great many years' standing seem to respond to Weldona. One trial proves it, Weldona will not upset the most delicate stomach. Ask for local evidence right here in St. Louis. The Weldona representative, who now meets the public daily at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, explains more about this preparation and gives out the 24-page, fully illustrated books: "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free to all who call or write for them. WHAT BUSINESS CAN EXPECT OF GOV. SMITH program in New York has been an important factor in modifying in the State the severity of the agricultural depression which affected other states so disastrously.

New York is one of the leading farm states of the Union. Its agriculture is tremendously important to its life. Gov. Smith has consistently fostered and built up agriculture in the State by wise and prudent policies. He has insisted on good roads being built through farming communities. He has insisted that good schools be provided in rural districts. He has helped the farmer get his products to market at less cost than in former years. He has encouraged market reports by press and radio. He has encouraged and aided the organization of co-operative associations, and facilitated systems of inspecting and grading farm products at shipping points. He has given New York, in a word a real state-aiding program for agriculture.

Since Gov. Smith, as business men in New York are perfectly well aware, has at all times been concerned with and for the prosperity of the people in one state, it is not conceivable that President Smith would assume a different attitude toward the prosperity of all the people in all the states.

Joffre's Part Forgotten.

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Marshal Joffre, "victor of the Marne," is learning something of the world's forgetfulness. The newspaper, Echo de Paris, points out that the name of Joffre was not mentioned once during the elaborate official ceremonies at Meaux on the fourteenth anniversary of the Marne battle, which turned the tide of the war and saved Paris from capture.

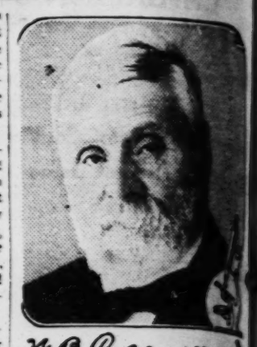
Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right



Dr. W. B. Caldwell, M.D. AT AGE 83

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES

PART SIX — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 7, 1928.

Provincetown Players Here

Pulitzer Prize Play, "In Abraham's Bosom," Will Be Presented at the Odeon for Three Nights and a Matinee This Week, While the Shubert Will Provide Girl and Music Entertainment With "A Night in Spain."

INTEREST in the drama this week will center in the coming of the cast from the Provincetown Playhouse, in New York, with the Pulitzer prize play, "In Abraham's Bosom," which is to be presented at the Odeon on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights with a matinee next Saturday. The play, being the story of a Negro and Negro life, will be given by a cast of Negro and white actors and theater goers from both races may buy seats on the main floor or in the balcony of the Odeon.

The company presenting "In Abraham's Bosom" is in the main the same as that which created the roles when the play first saw the light in the Provincetown Playhouse where it had a run of 200 nights. Thomas Moseley in the role of Abraham McCranie gives a delineation of the ambitious Negro who strives to uplift himself and his race through education. Abe, although the central figure of the play, does not command all the attention of his audience, for supporting him is Lillian Gillum in the part of "Goldie," Abe's wife who never quite understands her husband but is loyal to the end. Douglas McCranie, Abe's half brother, will be played by Alston Burleigh, the son of Harry Burleigh, one of the leading musicians, organists and composers of the Negro race. The performance includes the singing of characteristic spirituals and work songs native to the early Carolinas.

THE Provincetown Players, a remarkably constructive organization, sprang from a colony of artists at Provincetown, Mass., in 1915, many of them coming from Greenwich Village. The first plays were given on a porch. One of these was "Suppressed Desires," by Susan Glaspell. In 1916 a fishing smack was remodeled and called "The Wharf Theater" with George Cram Cook as director and in the plays presented are listed "Thirst," by Eugene O'Neill, who became identified with the organization that gave him his first opportunity and who acted the Negro in "Thirst."

In the fall of 1916, the group with little money but much enthusiasm rented quarters in Greenwich Village and put on 19 one-act plays, including three by O'Neill. According to the official list printed by the Provincetown Players in 1925, the organization had produced 93 new plays by 47 playwrights, practically all American, among them being Edna St. Vincent Millay, Lewis Beach, and Edna Ferber. In 1920 "Emperor Jones," "The Hairy Ape," and "Inheritors," were produced and later more significant productions were O'Neill's "Desire under the Elms" and "All God's Chillun Got Wings." In 1926-27 came "In Abraham's Bosom," by Paul Green. It created a profound impression at the Provincetown Theater and was awarded the Pulitzer Prize. The play has since moved to theaters with a larger seating capacity and has been well received by the theater going public.

ENTERTAINMENT of the Eye and Ear variety, especially suited to help make whoopee for baseball week, will be furnished by "A Night in Spain," a big girl and music show which comes to the Shubert tonight. This is the revue which had a long and successful run in New York and Chicago. In the cast, which comes here from the latter city, will be Phil Baker, Ted Healy, Aileen Stanley, the eighteen Gertrude Hoffman girls, Helba Huara, Sid Silvers, Cortez and Peggy, Fodi Brown, and Paul and Ferral among the more prominent names.

Through a change in booking arrangements the all-colored revue, "Keep Shufflin," which was scheduled to reopen the American Theater next Sunday night, has been transferred to the Shubert and will follow "A Night in Spain," into that house.

Incidentally from Greek drama to a Shubert revue was the downfall of Ted Healy, one of the leading jokers in "A Night in Spain." Truth must out and the occasion of his debut was not marked by appearance in "Oedipus Rex" or one of the dramas of Euripides. The opus was owned, not written by a Hellene, to wit one Mike Pappas—or mayhap Nick Nicodemus—proprietor of a liberty lunch or All-American cafe in Houston, Tex.

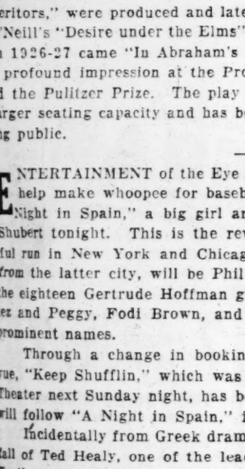
When a youth in Houston, Tex., Healy frequented an Athenian caravansary much patronized by the mill-run grade of actors. As he himself admits the fabulous salaries mentioned by visiting thespians intrigued his interest and excited his cupidity. Right then Healy decided to be an actor.

After much persuasion Mr. Pappas was prevailed upon to finance a tabloid musical comedy. Healy was the star. The outfit met with varying success from the cane brakes of Southern Louisiana to the arid steppes of Texas' Llano Estacado.

One day the leading soubrette decided that being the wife of a wealthy oil man would be more salubrious than in exposing her shanks for the edification of a ten-twenty-thirt' clientele, and quit without notice. So did the troupe. But Healy had learned his trade.

Vaudeville followed. Several seasons in varieties and then the Shuberts. Asked why he went into show business he spurned the usual actor's platitude about love of art and explained, "because the heavy jack they pay fair actors."

THE visit of George Arliss always is one of the high-water marks of the St. Louis season. Particular interest is attached to his appearance at the Shubert the week of Oct. 22 because it will present him in his first important Shakespearean role, Shylock, in Winthrop Ames' presentation of Venice."



Alice Beery in "Beggars of Life" at the Missouri.

In making this production of "The Merchant of Venice" the actor and the director have restudied Shakspeare's play, discarding all tradition that is moss-covered, restoring such tradition as still is vital to modern conditions. With only the one intermission, the comedy moves at a pace that permits its story to be told without the interruptions that ordinarily occur with such an elaborate staging as this. In staging the play, Ames is reported to have combined features of the Elizabethan theater with those of modern stagecraft, setting the comedy in Venice in the fifteenth century.

Frieda Inescort acts Portia, a role that demands youth, but seldom gets it. She last was in St. Louis in the allstar cast of Pinero's "Trelawny of 'The Wells.'" last season being featured in New York in "Escape," by John Galsworthy with Leslie Howard.

DAY BY DAY IN NEW YORK

O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.

I HAVE watched many literary quarrels and the one who got the maddest in print invariably lost. There was, for instance, the tiff several years ago between the eminent Alexander Woollcott and the equally eminent George Jean Nathan—both stylists and clever writing men.

Mr. Nathan wound up in a frothy rage with his "The Seidletz Powder of Times Square" in Smart Set, in which he pilloried Mr. Woollcott with all the bombastic venom he could muster. It was a personal quarrel and interested no one but those in the scribbling trade. And accomplished nothing.

They are probably good friends and regret it now. They were younger. Anyway, Mr. Woollcott was superb in his casual aloofness to Mr. Nathan, and this no doubt goaded the latter to his final diatribe and made him just a little ridiculous.

I recall in one of his deep theatrical essays having nothing to do with the quarrel, Mr. Woollcott finished with this, as though a mere afterthought: "It occurs to me Mr. George Jean Nathan looks like a ticket scalper."

In a cafe the other evening was one of those brash, loud-talking, cigarette-smoking flappers—around 17—disgusting everybody with her ultra sophistication. Departing, I could not help but notice at another table a demure young girl dressed in simple elegance, talking in a modulated voice. A year ago she became the bride of one of New York's most promising rich young men, who was with her.

Short Shavings: Lois Long, who writes about Broadway and its night life with such sophistication, is a Vassar graduate. . . . A muchly married highflyer used a corkscrew for a wedding ring in his latest venture. . . . Broadway's newest electrical sign is a running automobile. . . . Belasco has discarded his trick clerical collar and is wearing a white collar and bow tie. . . . Agua Caliente, the site of the new gambling casino near Tijuana, is translated Hot Water. . . . And to some visitors appropriately named. . . . Bichloride of mercury tablets are now being made in the shape of coffins. . . . A new magazine is to be called Romance, featuring new writers. . . . Coney Island had a better season than for several years. . . .

The first big stage hit of the season was "The Front Page," a newspaper play. . . . The theatrical world mourns the passing of one of its foremost younger actors, Rex Cherryman. He died in France last month. He was last seen as the young lawyer in "The Trial of Mary Dugan."

Babe Ruth was in for a bit of "Agua Caliente" when he was reported to have snubbed Mr. Hoover. His apology that he did not want to appear to be grabbing the spot away from Mr. Hoover by having his picture taken with him was o. k., I suppose. Yet there are a few of us who have our doubts that Babe's popularity is so hot that it would in any way detract from the presidential candidate.

Frisco, the comedian, tells of a chorus girl who looked up the meaning of a word, and upon discovering it was last year's dictionary, apologized.

I think of no experience so ghastly as that of a New Yorker recently. He sent for a barber, who lathered, stropped his razor and prepared to shave him. Then suddenly he began to talk wildly and flourish his razor threateningly. He was finally quieted and removed to a hospital. It developed he had spent the preceding day in the sun at the beach and developed a touch of sunstroke.

Most of us have friends we would not care to bring home to dinner. If we are the right sort they do us no harm and it is quite probable we might be able to do them some good. An eager interest I have in the works of a certain philosopher was inspired solely by a confirmed burglar. Philosophy has taught him many sound truths, but he continues to burgle when he needs the money.

Just as many have a sneaking admiration for a rogue, so does a rogue admire the honest man. I once heard a notorious crook tell a group of reporters: "No matter how hardened a crook becomes, he always suffers from his self-conscious feeling of degradation."

At the Play

—By—
St. John Ervine

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.

A LADY remarked to me the other evening that the ingredients of a Broadway success seemed to be guns, sex, drunken women and foul speech. I, too, am beginning to wonder whether it is not time to ask that dramatists shall deal again in the stuff of literature and not in the stuff of the back street.

After I had listened to Mr. Richard Bennett, a remarkably fine character actor, utter the word "hell" for what must have been the ten-thousandth time during the performance of "Jarnegan," I began to pine for a change of expression and to wish that Mr. Bennett would say, "Oh, brother!" or "Fie, fie!" I came away from the theater resolved to draw up a blacklist of words that might, I think, be allowed to rest in decent obscurity. Mr. Jim Tully is, so I am told, for I have not read any of his works, the leader of the "strong-language" brigade; he never uses one word where three oaths will do. I therefore entitle my blacklist, "Too much Tully," in the hope that the leader of the brigade will moderate the transports of his followers and imitators. Let there be no more "tullying."

THE word "hell" has been uttered too often on the stage. My mouth automatically opens in a yawn when I hear an actor saying, "Oh, hell!" or "The hell you are!" or "What the hell!" or "Hell, yes!" or "You're a helluva fella!" or plain, unadorned "Hell!" I call for its suppression in the contemporary drama and also some relief from the following expressions: "You four-flusher!" "You double-crossed me!" "You big stiff!" and Stick 'em up!" I have not yet been in New York for a month, but already I am sick to death of hearing a woman called a "jane" or "this dame" or a "broad."

I would abolish all cops from Broadway for a space of seven years. The authors of the plays in which cops appear seem never to have seen any policemen, for they present us with men who are either destitute of everyday intelligence or so crooked that they may be called incipient gangsters.

I gather from the majority of plays that all business men are irredeemably idiotic. All business men, of course, are terribly dull. Some day, however, an author will make his fortune by writing a play in which a business man shows signs of intelligence.

I NOW tell myself, immediately the lady secretary enters the scene, "Ha, I know all about you, young woman! You're a hussy! You live in promiscuous sin. . . ." After a season of plays full of secretaries, I feel afraid to trust myself in the same street with stenographers.

If any more guns are fired in any more plays I shall become a bad case of shell shock. There must be millions of people in the world who have never fired, or even handled a revolver in their lives. Why does not some dramatist write a play about them?

The lady who distributes her sex as if she were distributing handbills is an immensely boring person. May there not be a closed season for the wriggling girl who coyly fingers the buttonholes in

Five Students' Concerts On Symphony's Program

THE dates of the Students' Concerts of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra have been set for the afternoons of Nov. 15, Dec. 12, Jan. 17, Feb. 21 and March 21. As previously announced, only one series of students' concerts will be given this season.

The first two concerts will have as conductor and lecturer Emil Oberhoffer; the first concert will be devoted to German music and the second to Slavic music. The third concert, featuring Italian music, will be conducted by Bernardino Molinari, with Mrs. Agnes Moore Fryberger as lecturer.

Spanish and French compositions will be presented at the fourth concert, which will be conducted by E. Fernandez Arbos, the Spanish conductor. Eugene Goossens, who will conduct the fifth and last concert of the series, will present a program of American and English music.

Owing to the fact that only one series of students' concerts will be given this year, the demand for seats is expected to be greater than the supply. The management will allot the seats to the various schools in the most equitable manner if the demand for seats exceeds the number available. All requisitions for seats for the student concerts must be in the Symphony office on or before Oct. 15, according to announcement made yesterday by William E. Walter, manager of the concerts. Schools whose requisitions are not in by Oct. 15 will have to take the seats that are allotted them, he said.

Honor groups composed of pupils who have attended the young peoples concerts for the past three years have been formed in the various local schools. It is planned to have the honor groups act as active committees in the interest of this year's students concerts.

Manager Walter said yesterday that this season's sale of subscription tickets for the regular symphony concerts showed a very material increase over that of last year though there still are available many desirable seats for both the afternoon and evening concerts. He said the season sale today is $20,000 better than it was this time last year and that the demand for tickets is constant and steady. It is expected that the high point set for this season's sale would be reached on the day of the opening concert, Nov. 9.

The prospectus for this season's concerts which has just been issued, contains the names of the four soloists who will assist at the Beethoven festival Dec. 21 and 22. They are Judson House, tenor; Helen Traubel, soprano; Viola Silva, contralto, and Jerome Swinford, bass.

Facing the Music

THE try outs for active membership in the Morning Choral Club will be held in the regular rehearsal rooms of the club, St. John's M. E. Church, Kingshighway and Washington avenue tomorrow morning at 10:20 the music committee acting with Charles Galloway in the selection of voices. The regular rehearsal for the club follows on Tuesday morning at the same time and place, the Apollo Club rehearsal taking place at the same place on Monday evening at 8:15. Both clubs will start rehearsals at once of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony which they will sing with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the regular concerts of the latter on Dec. 21-22 under Emil Oberhoffer. The clubs have also arranged to prepare the Christmas Vesper concert which will take place at the holiday season.

The Musical Research Club will hold its first meeting of the season next Tuesday afternoon, at the Town Club. The meeting will begin at 2 o'clock with a study period under the chairmanship of Miss Vera Schlueter, a former president of the club. The following ladies will be hostesses at the tea to be served after the program: Mrs. Wm. J. Abbott, Mrs. R. Acers, Mrs. R. H. Baumgartner, Mrs. Claude Beal, Mrs. W. G. Becks, Mrs. O. G. Beestrum, Miss Jane Bowlin and Mrs. Jesse L. Bowling.

The program will be as follows:

Piano—Etude in B Flat.....Liszt
Miss Clara Wesendonk.
Vocal—I vow that nothing shall prevent me, from Carmen.....Bizet
Miss Eleanor Lynch.
Mrs. Jesse L. Bowling at the piano.
Violin—Liebestraume.....Liszt
Miss Helene Held.
Mrs. Jesse L. Bowling at the piano.
Vocal—Face Face from La Forza Del Destino.....Verdi
Mrs. Elvira Diamond.
Mrs. Hugo Wiemers at the piano.

The Who's Who dedicated to young American singers who through talent, pluck and energy have arrived shows the name of Mary McCormic, soprano, who makes her St. Louis debut with the Civic Music League at the Odeon on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23. Her first triumph came as "Micaela" in Carmen with Mary Garden, Muratore and Baklanoff pitted against her. The second came in "La Boheme" when she sang "Musette" opposite Galli-Curci as "Mimi." Miss McCormic attributes much of her success to the encouragement received from Mary Garden who as director of the Chicago Opera Company discovered her at a public audition in which 75 voices were tried out. Miss McCormic was the only one accepted. Then after 18 months more of study she was permitted to make her debut with the opera company. Miss McCormic will share the program on Oct. 23 with Alberto Salvi, harp virtuoso, who has been heard several times in St. Louis, his last appearance being under the concert direction of Elizabeth Cueny.

The St. Louis Women's Club, 4609 Lindell boulevard, will inaugurate an extensive and important musical and dramatic schedule of entertainment for the 1928-29 season. The initial affair will be a musical, Thursday, Oct. 18, at 3 p. m., when Bruno Steindel, cellist of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and Miss Bertha Farner, soprano, will be heard in joint recital. The second offering of the club schedule will be Clare Eldrado, the Spanish impersonator, who will present a varied program Nov. 15, depicting the development of the drama in the Latin countries. On Dec. 6 Aline Howard, St. Louis soprano, who spent the past half year studying voice in the musical centers of the old world, will give a recital. The Little Theater movement will be discussed by Mrs. Samuel Scott, another St. Louis woman, who is giving her time and attention to the study of the drama at a club luncheon, Jan. 2. Jan. 24 Joseph Granville, the English actor, will give a dramatic recital which will depict the various forms that the spoken drama has appeared under since the early days of history down to the talkies of today. The last Thursday in February, Branson Decon will be featured at a formal dinner when he will present his musical travelogue program.

the smalltown hero's coat and murmurs, "Say, lissun, Joe, I'd like to have us know each other better!" The moment the sex-appealer begins to toy with the man's lapels I know that before another 10 seconds have passed she will murmur, "I just kinda took to you the moment I saw you." The reader will observe that I am trying to put this speech into the language of the contemporary drama. It is probably due to a defect in my ears that when I listen to real Americans talking they always seem to me to speak like people who have enjoyed some sort of education.

BOOTLEGGERS, booze and high-handed gunmen might, I think, be allowed to leave the stage without any regret. I decline to believe that the entire interest of America is to be found in gunmen, dipsomaniacs and bootleggers.

Those are not all the people and habits that I intend to put on my blacklist, but they will suffice for the present. In the meantime, I suggest to our authors that dramatizing the Police Gazette is not an occupation that calls for much ability in those who follow it. I suggest, too, that "strong" language that is not implicit in the character or the situation is strong only in the sense that a bad smell is strong.

Drama becomes degenerate when authors decline to portray the facts of life with fidelity. The secondrate school makes us feel sick because they overfill us with sugar. The "strong" school makes us feel equally sick because they splatter us with filth. I have never been able to understand why authors who insist upon the details of garbage are called stern realists as if they alone dealt in truth. A rotten egg is not more real than a fresh egg, and it is a lot less pleasant to eat. The great dramatists are not one-eyed. They are able to see more than one sort of people, and they are able to see

German Players In "The Harvest"

Tonight an interesting character play will be presented at the German Theater, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, entitled "Die Ernte" ("The Harvest"), one of the latest plays by the well-known author, Felix Philippi.

The principal parts will be played by Frieda Bartow, Alois Ludig Ludwig Klopper, Paul Gerping, Alfred Lauria and Otto Reuter. The latter will also direct the play.

Players Guild Preparing for Five Offerings

THE Players Guild resumes operations on Tuesday evening at the Artists Guild Theater, Union and Enright, which date has been selected for the first opening for parts in the repertoire for the season. The Players Guild was organized last season by the players and members of the Artists Guild interested in the promotion and growth of the higher dramatic expression in the theater.

The Guild will again have Fred Kinnot Cowley as director and will produce through the season five plays selected from "Villians of Society," by Binns; "Hell Bent for Heaven," Hughes; "Old Dutch," "Mr. Pusback," Arnold Bennett; "Fashion for Men," Molnar; "The Masque of Venice," Goldoni; "The Pigeon," Galsworthy; "Juno and Paycock," O'Casey; "Ariadne," by Wilde, and "To Have the Honor," by the same author. Final selection of the five plays is made by the play reading committee of the organization and Mr. Cowley. Tryouts are open to the public and those interested in participating in the season's work are asked to report at the Guild at 8 o'clock on Tuesday night of this week.

Yiddish Players In Second Bill

The permanent Yiddish theatrical season was inaugurated at the Odeon Theater last Sunday night by the Henrietta Schnitzer players from New York. The company plans to present a series of repertoire plays once a week at the Grand avenue playhouse.

"Before the Wedding," a four-act melodrama by J. Schlossenfeldt, will be the company's presentation tonight. The play deals with the romance, passion and struggles of ghetto life and is replete with traditional Jewish emotion and humor.

Behind the Screens

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.

SO many girl graduates of Hollywood High School have become movie heroines that it has been suggested at various times, facetiously, that the surest way for a screen-struck girl to achieve her ambition is to study algebra and ancient history at the corner of Sunset boulevard and Highland avenue.

The same school, however, has furnished exceedingly few young leading men to the screen. One of the rare exceptions is Stanley Smith, just signed by Pathe as a talking picture "find." Smith was active in sudden theatricals and went on the stage immediately after graduation from Hollywood High. Not only his personality and stage experience, but his singing voice, impressed the company to the point of putting him under contract while waiting for him to complete a stage engagement in San Francisco. What his first screen role will be is therefore uncertain except that it will be in a talking picture.

Charlie Murray brings his screen anthology of American policemen to a climax in the narrative of an honest and hard-working New York patrolman and his efforts to win promotion to a lieutenancy on the force.

It was many a year ago that Murray began playing policemen. What the public wanted to see them was comical cops, so Murray became ridiculous in uniform and soon rose to be Chief of that immortal film law-enforcement organization, the Keystone Cops. Many film fans still live who can recall the pell-mell chases of the Keystone brigade.

As time went on the protests of police organizations and the natural public demand for something different gradually added dignity to the police characterizations of the screen. Murray was able to put more character and less clowning into the uniformed roles which from time to time came his way. In "Do Your Duty" he is the comic but human hero of a police department farce. And so, to the old-timer among film fans who wants to be philosophic about it, the picture is more than a story of how Patrolman Maloney got his promotion. It is also a chapter in the evolution of comedy policemen from clowns to characters in the movies.

It is 12:30 by the clock, and Texas Guinan's night club, Hollywood branch, is full of whoopee. Blonde and brunette extra-girls are prattling across tables from what might be big-moneyed men from the middle-west. Ginger ale bottles clink merrily. A slim and shapely cigaret girl circulates nimbly among the customers with her tray of smokes. In the middle of the floor some bob-haired dancers in high silk hats and swallow-tailed coats kick and stamp their way through a peppy number.

Near the fringe of the noisy crowd sits Lila Lee, a green smock over her dancing costume, waiting for Eddie Fay Jr. to fall in love with her according to the scenario. Eddie's brother, Bryan Fay, is back among the camera tanks tinkering with the placement of a microphone. As director he has to worry about everything but who pays the check for this transplanted Texas Guinan party.

In comes Texas herself, sweepingly attired in orange ostrich plumes and bodice of gleaming sequins, waving aloft an ostrich plume fan. A quick look around, and:

"Boys, the sou's all wrong. Too much room on the dance floor. Never had such a slim crowd in my place. Bring out more tables."

Director sun and assistants go into a huddle. Texas wins, and the prop boys drag in more tables until the floor is jammed.

A saxophone and violin duet wavers a bit—and the orchestra crashes into action. Half the moneymakers squeeze themselves on to the dance floor and another rehearsal is on.

Suddenly a police whistle shrills. The dancers stop. So does the music. A voice in the rear yells "Lock up!" The camera men turn to cover their padded tanks, which look like prostituted sentry boxes. Then sou themselves in and peek nervously out of little windows. The big brave done of the soundproof stage slides shut. The place is padlocked.

Now an absolute hush falls over all. The night club is still as a tomb. But Texas seems quite at ease, and why not? It is not a raid. It is only the moment of sound-proofing and temporary strict silence which precedes the actual start of every talking picture scene.

Picture stars continue to invade the vaudeville spotlights. They find it one of the better ways to show their ability at articulate drama—with talking films in view, no doubt. In all events, young Kenneth Harlan has found vaudeville so much to his liking, and vice versa, that he has been signed up for a considerable tour which opens in Philadelphia next week. . . . Herbert Rawlinson, who needs no introduction to the screen public, will make his bow as a vaudeville attraction the week of Nov. 4 at Proctor's Fifth avenue theater. . . . Wally Wales, comedian from the films, is playing a big success in the music halls as "A Large Party From Hollywood," and has been signed up for a long tour . . . Pat O'Malley, attractive Irish star, is trooping these days. . . . As too, is the very good looking Sally Rand, Pathe ingenue, who dances ankles in company with 10 youths. . . . Eugene O'Brien's vaudeville sketch is one of the hits of the season. . . . Little that of Sessue Hayakawa. . . . Ben Turpin is touring Western K.-A.-O theaters in person.

Maybe the movies are merely passing into song. Lately, however, it has begun to look as if they were also burning into the song-publishing business. What effect this will have on the popular ballad industry now centering in New York is something for the future to reveal, but some studio executives already are hinting that when more and merrier millions are made out of music the movies will make them.

"For years," said one executive, "we have been giving away to music publishers our capacity for exploiting new songs. In return we have received only the advertising a picture gets when a song of the same name is widely sung. Now that we are equipped to record and distribute music as part of our pictures we can originate our own popular hits and keep the song-royalties for ourselves."

Several producers already have composers of wide reputation on their payrolls. The Russian Josef Cherniavsky has begun work at Universal under a contract which puts him in charge of all musical synchronization and requires him to compose a theme song for each picture produced by the company. Billy Rose, who wrote "Me and My Shadow" and other hits, is on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot collaborating with Gus Edwards of New York vaude fame on songs and incidental music for "Broadway Melody." The title song, which will be introduced from the screen by Bessie Love and Anita Page, was written, rehearsed and recorded in 24 hours. So Rose and Edwards are not likely to take all winter filling the talking picture with melody. Their contract calls for them to embellish with ballads any other talking picture made by the studio while they are there.

An example of the studio-composed song is now on the screen in "Mother Knows Best." It was written by William Kaunell, a chiropractor at Fox who used to write popular songs before he turned to pictures. Entitled "Sally of My Dreams," it was composed specifically for and as part of the picture. Irving Berlin and Louis Silvers, the latter Al Jolson's writer of melodies, also have contributed songs to the screen records. And it must not be forgotten that dozens of the set-musicians who have been helping stars to emote in silent pictures were song-writers at one time or another. The talkies have spurred them to new creative effort, too, so a musical Hollywood season is ahead.

And now the influence of Eva La Gallienne's Civic Repertory theater is about to be felt in the talking movies. Mary Duncan, whose early stage training was obtained as an understudy with La Gallienne, has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a talking picture "find." Mary's talent is not confined to acting, however; she also sings and dances, which means as much to the microphone sound as this particular stage of sound-film development as any other combination of talents. She was born and bred in New York and went to Columbia University for three years. Her father, a New York attorney, is still skeptical about the movies, but is withholding judgment until Mary demonstrates what she can do with these new-fangled audible pictures.

Fifty-year-old Jane La Verne is probably the youngest mature picture actress ever cast in a mother role. She is playing Magnolia as a child in the early scenes of "Showboat," and in the later scenes, when Laura La Plante portrays the grown-up Magnolia, Jane plays Magnolia's little daughter. In other words, Jane begins the picture by playing her own mother when she was a girl, later playing the daughter of the girl she was at the beginning.

Speaking of the talkies, as everyone is nowadays, Danny Gray, the head punner at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, says the puttingpuns who think the amount of footage devoted to telling who produced, wrote, directed and acted in a silent film is too great may as well try to get used to it. "For," explains Gray, "unless we want to be partial about giving screen credits, the talking picture credit lines will show not only the producer's, director's, scenarist's and director's and players' names, but also the name of the sound-effects man, the musical director, the speech director, the electrical engineer and who knows how many others."

Wandering around inside the high fences where celluloid excitement is made, one comes upon scenes of make-believe and woe.

Nita Naldi in front of a mirror lathering his face with cake frosting (a durable substitute for real soap in shaving scenes). Lloyd Hughes helping Jane Daly iron her newest bathing costume, a copper-tone one-piece suit as big as three washing machines. On another set, Mae White is shimmying her way through a scene in a flexible glass evening gown, and over the hill, into the lawn, Douglas Fairbanks doing a D'Artagnan jump through a stained glass window made of rock candy.

The boom in audio conservation lately has brought with it an alarming increase in the number of lone wolfs using about whose scars and affiliate acts can pick up pointers. At Universal a sort of machine sweep-sweeping device has been built to keep the studio streets clear. It consists mainly of a wide series of electromagnets mounted between two wheels which keep the poles of the magnets just off the pavements. Every few hundred yards the drive or diamonds and unloads his catch of spikes, tacks and 20-penny nails.

What is known in the trade as the "talking trailer," a short sound-film advertising a forthcoming talking picture, has been developing lately into a new form of screen drama. Instead of merely having an actor tell the audience about the next attraction and possibly introduce the principal members of the cast to show a sample talking scene from the new picture, the latest trailers are one-reel playlets in themselves. Their purpose still is to advertise the forthcoming attraction, but the advertising is woven into an amusing or melodramatic sketch.

An example is the one-reel courtroom sketch written by William Slavens McNutt to advertise Pauline Frederick's first talking picture. Miss Frederick and other members of the cast of "On Trial" appear in the scene and before the prosecuting attorney has finished with them they have admitted plenty with their connection with a sensational murder case which they justify with seeming reluctance, will be very uncomfortable when "on this theater proff week.

Five Students' Concerts On Symphony's Program

THE dates of the Students' Concerts of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra have been set for the afternoons of Nov. 15, Dec. 13, Jan. 17, Feb. 21 and March 21. As previously announced, only one series of students' concerts will be given this season.

The first two concerts will have as conductor and lecturer Emil Oberhoffer; the first concert will be devoted to German music and the second to Slavic music. The third concert, featuring Italian music, will be conducted by Bernardino Molinari, with Mrs. Agnes Moore Fryberger as lecturer.

Spanish and French compositions will be presented at the fourth concert, which will be conducted by E. Fernandez Arbos, the Spanish conductor. Eugene Goossens, who will conduct the fifth and last concert of the series, will present a program of American and English music.

Owing to the fact that only one series of students' concerts will be given this year, the demand for seats is expected to be greater than the supply. The management will allot the seats to the various schools in the most equitable manner if the demand for seats exceeds the number available. All requisitions for seats for the student concerts must be in the Symphony office on or before Oct. 15, according to announcement made yesterday by William E. Walter, manager of the concerts. Schools whose requisitions are not in by Oct. 15 will have to take the seats that are allotted them, he said.

Honor groups composed of pupils who have attended the young peoples concerts for the past three years have been formed in the various local schools. It is planned to have the honor groups act as active committees in the interest of this year's students concerts.

Manager Walter said yesterday that this season's sale of subscription tickets for the regular symphony concerts showed a very material increase over that of last year though there still are available many desirable seats for both the afternoon and evening concerts. He said the season sale today is $20,000 better than it was this time last year and that the demand for tickets is constant and steady. It is expected that the high point set for this season's sale would be reached on the day of the opening concert, Nov. 9.

The prospectus for this season's concerts which has just been issued, contains the names of the four soloists who will assist at the Beethoven festival Dec. 21 and 22. They are Judson House, tenor; Helen Traubel, soprano; Viola Silva, contralto, and Jerome Swinford, bass.

Facing the Music

THE try outs for active membership in the Morning Choral Club will be held in the regular rehearsal rooms of the club, St. John's M. E. Church, Kingshighway and Washington avenue tomorrow morning at 10:20 the music committee acting with Charles Galloway in the selection of voices. The regular rehearsal for the club follows on Tuesday morning at the same time and place, the Apollo Club rehearsal taking place at the same place on Monday evening at 8:15. Both clubs will start rehearsals at once of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony which they will sing with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra at the regular concerts of the latter on Dec. 21-22 under Emil Oberhoffer. The clubs have also arranged to prepare the Christmas Vesper concert which will take place at the holiday season.

The Musical Research Club will hold its first meeting of the season next Tuesday afternoon, at the Town Club. The meeting will begin at 2 o'clock with a study period under the chairmanship of Miss Vera Schlueter, a former president of the club. The following ladies will be hostesses at the tea to be served after the program: Mrs. Wm. J. Abbott, Mrs. R. Acers, Mrs. R. H. Baumgartner, Mrs. Claude Beal, Mrs. W. G. Becke, Mrs. O. G. The Who's Who dedicated to young American singers who through talent, pluck and energy have arrived shows the name of Mary McCormic, soprano, who makes her St. Louis debut with the Civic Music League at the Odeon on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23. Her first triumph came as "Micaela" in Carmen with Mary Garden, Muratore and Baklanoff pitted against her. The second came in "La Boheme" when she sang "Musette" opposite Galli-Curci as "Mimi." Miss McCormic attributes much of her success to the encouragement received from Mary Garden who as director of the Chicago Opera Company discovered her at a public audition in which 75 voices were tried out. Miss McCormic was the only one accepted. Then after 10 months more of study, she was permitted to make her debut with the opera company. Miss McCormic will share the program on Oct. 23 with Alberto Salvi, harp virtuoso, who has been heard several times in St. Louis, his first appearance being under the concert direction of Elizabeth Cueny.

The St. Louis Women's Club, 4600 Lindell boulevard, will inaugurate an extensive and important musical and dramatic schedule of entertainment for the 1928-29 season. The initial affair will be a musical, Thursday, Oct. 18, at 3 p. m., when Bruno Steindel, cellist of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, and Miss Bertha Farner, soprano, will be heard in joint recital. The second offering of the club schedule will be Clare Eldrado, the Spanish impersonator, who will present a varied program Nov. 15, depicting the development of the drama in the Latin countries. On Dec. 6 Aline Howard, St. Louis soprano, who spent the past half year studying voice in the musical centers of the old world, will give a recital. The Little Theater movement will be discussed by Mrs. Samuel Scott, another St. Louis woman, who is giving her time and attention to the study of the drama at a club luncheon, Jan. 3. Jan. 24 Joseph Granville, the English actor, will give a dramatic recital which will depict the various forms that the spoken drama has appeared under since the early days of history down to the talkies of today. The last Thursday in February, Branson Decon will be featured at a formal dinner when he will present his musical travelogue program.

the smalltown hero's coat and murmurs, "Say, lissun, Joe, I'd like to have us know each other better!" The moment the sex-appealer begins to toy with the man's lapels I know that before another 10 seconds have passed she will murmur, "I just kinda took to you the moment I saw you." The reader will observe that I am trying to put this speech into the language of the contemporary drama. It is probably due to a defect in my ears that when I listen to real Americans talking they always seem to me to speak like people who have enjoyed some sort of education.

BOOTLEGGERS, booze and high-handed gunmen might, I think, be allowed to leave the stage without any regret. I decline to believe that the entire interest of America is to be found in gunmen, dipsomaniacs and bootleggers.

Those are not all the people and habits that I intend to put on my blacklist, but they will suffice for the present. In the meantime, I suggest to our authors that dramatizing the Police Gazette is not an occupation that calls for much ability in those who follow it. I suggest, too, that "strong" language that is not implicit in the character or the situation is strong only in the sense that a bad smell is strong.

Drama becomes degenerate when authors decline to portray the facts of life with fidelity. The saccharine school makes us feel sick because they overfill us with sugar. The "strong" school makes us feel equally sick because they spatter us with filth. I have never been able to understand why authors who insist upon the details of garbage are called stern realists as if they alone dealt in truth. A rotten egg is not more real than a fresh egg, and it is a lot less pleasant to eat. The great dramatists are not one-eyed. They are able to see more than one sort of people, and they are able to see in every human being more than one fact. But the little authors, the bubble-and-squeak authors, the authors who pretend to be rebuking our faults when they are lasciviously exploiting them for their personal profit, all of these see only a single aspect of life and, because they have a narrow vision, insist that there is no other aspect to be observed.

TO be an artist is to be one who attempts to draw out of the perishable stuff of life, something that will not perish. The great writers attempt to make immortality for themselves and for us. They take pleasure from speech and, though they do not devitalize it, they do not debase it. They shun the pretty-pretty and they shun, too, the ugly-ugly. They know that in the spectrum of life the rich colors predominate. They do not deceive us, but neither do they disgust us.

When our authors recover their sense of proportion and are free from their ingrowing pains, perhaps they will present us with plays in which the proportions of existence are preserved.

German Players In "The Harvest"

Tonight an interesting character play will be presented at the German Theater, Jefferson and Lafayette avenues, entitled "Die Ernte" (The Harvest), one of the latest plays by the well-known author, Felix Philippi.

The principal parts will be played by Frieda Barlow, Kate Luffy Ludwig Kopper, Paul Gehring, Alfred Laertz and Otto Reuter. The latter will also direct the play.

Players Guild Preparing for Five Offerings

THE Players Guild resumes operations on Tuesday evening at the Artists Guild Theater, Union and Enright, which date has been selected for the first tryouts for parts in the repertoire for the season. The Players Guild was organized last season by the players and members of the Artists Guild interested in the presentation and growth of the higher dramatic expression in the theater.

The Guild will again have Fred Kitson Cowley as director and will produce through the season five plays selected from "Pillars of Society," by Ibsen; "Hell Bent for Heaven," Hughes; "If," Dunsany; "Mr. Proback," Arnold Bennett; "Fashion for Men," Molnar; "The Masque of Venice," Gribble; "The Pigeon," Galsworthy; "Juno and Paycock," O'Casey; "Arladne," by Milne, and "To Have the Honor," by the same author. Final selection of the five plays is made by the play reading committee of the organization and Mr. Corley. Tryouts are open to the public and those interested in participating in the season's work are asked to report at the Guild at 8 o'clock on Tuesday night of this week.

Yiddish Players In Second Bill

The permanent Yiddish theatrical season was inaugurated at the Odeon Theater last Sunday night by the Henrietta Schnitzer players from New York. The company plans to present a series of repertoire plays once a week at the Grand avenue playhouse.

"Before the Wedding," a four-act melodrama by I. Solotarefsky, will be the company's presentation tonight. The play deals with the romance, pathos and struggles of ghetto life and is replete with traditional Jewish emotion and humor.

Behind the Screens

OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.

SO many girl graduates of Hollywood High School have become movie heroines that it has been suggested at various times, facetiously, that the surest way for a screen-struck girl to achieve her ambition is to study algebra and ancient history at the corner of Sunset boulevard and Highland avenue.

The same school, however, has furnished exceedingly few young leading men to the screen. One of the rare exceptions is Stanley Smith, just signed by Pathe as a talking picture "find." Smith was active in sudden theatricals and went on the stage immediately after graduation from Hollywood High. Not only his personality and stage experience, but his singing voice, impressed the company to the point of putting him under contract while waiting for him to complete a stage engagement in San Francisco. What his first screen role will be is therefore uncertain except that it will be in a talking picture.

Charlie Murray brings his screen anthology of American policemen to a climax in the narrative of an honest and hard-working New York patrolman and his efforts to win promotion to a lieutenancy on the force.

It was many a year ago that Murray began playing policemen. What the public wanted to see then was comical cops, so Murray became ridiculous in uniform and soon rose to be Chief of that famous film law-enforcement organization, the Keystone Cops. Many film fans still live who can recall the pell-mell chases of the Keystone brigade.

As time went on, the protests of police organizations and the natural public demand for something different gradually added dignity to the police characterizations of the screen. Murray was able to put more character and less clowning into the uniformed roles which from time to time came his way. In "Do Your Duty" he is the comic but human hero of a police department farce. And so, to the old-timer among film fans who wants to be philosophic about it, the picture is more than a story of how Patrolman Maloney got his promotion. It is also a chapter in the evolution of comedy policemen from clowns to characters in the movies.

It is 12:30 by the clock, and Texas Guinan's night club, Hollywood branch, is full of whoopee. Blonde and brunette extra-girls are prattling across tables from what might be big-moneyed men from the middle-west. Ginger ale bottles clink merrily. A slim and shapely cigaret girl circulates nimbly among the customers with her tray of smokes. In the middle of the floor some bob-haired dancers in high silk hats and swallow-tailed coats kick and stomp their way through a peppy number.

Near the fringe of the noisy crowd sits Lila Lee, a green smock over her dancing costume, waiting for Eddie Foy Jr., to fall in love with her according to the scenario. Eddie's brother, Bryan Foy, is back among the camera tanks tinkering with the placement of a microphone. As director he has to worry about everything but who pays the check for this transplanted Texas Guinan party.

In comes Texas herself, sweepingly attired in orange ostrich plumes and bodice of gleaming sequins, waving aloft an ostrich plume fan. A quick look around, and:

"Boys, the set's all wrong. Too much room on the dance floor. Never had such a slim crowd in my place. Bring out more tables."

Director, star and assistants go into a huddle. Texas wins, and the prop boys drag in more tables until the floor is jammed.

A tuxedoed lad with slick hair waves a baton and the orchestra crashes into action. Half the merrymakers squeeze themselves on to the dance floor and another rehearsal is on.

Suddenly a police whistle shrills. The dancers stop. So does the music. A voice in the rear yells: "Lock up!" The cameramen run to cover in their padded tanks, which look like overstuffed sentry boxes. They seal themselves in and peek nervously out of little windows. The big heavy door of the soundproof stage slides shut. The place is padlocked.

Now an absolute hush falls over all. The night club is still as a tomb. But Texas seems quite at ease; and why not? It is not a raid. It is only the moment of sound-proofing and temporary strict silence which precedes the actual start of every talking picture scene.

Picture stars continue to invoke the vaudeville spotlight. They find it one of the better ways to try their ability at articulate drama—with talking films in view, no doubt. In all events, young Kenneth Harlan has found vaudeville so much to his liking, and vice versa, that he has been signed up for a considerable tour which opens in Philadelphia next week. . . . Herbert Rawlinson, who needs no introduction to the screen public, will make his bow as a vaudeville attraction the week of Nov. 4 at Proctor's Fifth avenue theater. . . . Wally Hiers, comedian from the films, is proving a big success in the music halls, as "A Large Party From Hollywood," and has been signed up for a long tour . . . Pat O'Malley, attractive Irish star, is trouping these days. . . . As too, is the very good looking Sally Rand, Pathe ingenue, who dances agilely in company with 10 youths. . . . Eugene O'Brien's vaudeville sketch is one of the hits of the season. . . . Ditto that of Sessue Hawakaya. . . . Ben Turpin is touring Western K-A-O theaters in person.

Maybe the movies are merely bursting into song. Lately, however, it has begun to look as if they were also bursting into the song-publishing business. What effect this will have on the popular ballad industry now centering in New York is something for the future to reveal, but some studio executives already are hinting that when more and merrier millions are made out of music the movies will make them.

"For years," said one executive, "we have been giving away to music publishers our capacity for exploiting new songs. In return we have received only the advertising a picture gets when a song of the same name is widely sung. Now that we are equipped to record and distribute music as part of our pictures we can originate our own popular hits and keep the song-profits for ourselves."

Several producers already have composers of wide reputation on their payrolls. The Russian Josef Cherniavsky has begun work at Universal under a contract which puts him in charge of all orchestral synchronization and requires him to compose a theme song for each picture produced by the company. Billy Rose, who wrote "Me and My Shadow" and other hits, is on the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer lot collaborating with Gus Edwards of New York revue fame on songs and incidental music for "Broadway Melody." The title song, which will be introduced from the screen by Bessie Love and Anita Page, was written, rehearsed and recorded in 24 hours. So Rose and Edwards are not likely to take all winter filling this talking picture with melody. Their contract calls for them to embellish with ballads any other talking picture made by the studio while they are there.

An example of the studio-composed song is now on the screen in "Mother Knows Best." It was written by William Kernell, a title-writer at Fox who used to write popular songs before he turned to pictures. Entitled "Sally of My Dreams," it was composed specifically for and as part of the picture. Irving Berlin ant Louis Silvers, the latter Al Jolson's writer of melodies, also have contributed songs to the screen recently. And it must not be forgotten that dozens of the set-musicians who have been helping stars to emote in silent pictures were song-writers at one time or another. The talkies have spurred them to new creative effort, too; so a tuneful Hollywood season is ahead.

And now the influence of Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory theater is about to be felt in the talking movies. Mary Doran, whose early stage training was obtained as an understudy with Le Gallienne, has been signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as a talking picture "find." Mary's talent is not confined to acting, however; she also sings and dances, which means as much to the microphone scouts at this particular stage of sound-film development as any other combination of talents. She was born and bred in New York and went to Columbia University for three years. Her father, a New York attorney, is still skeptical about the movies, but is withholding judgment until Mary demonstrates what she can do with these new-fangled audible pictures.

Four-year-old Jane La Verne is probably the youngest motion picture actress ever cast in a mother role. She is playing Magnolia as a child in the early scenes of "Showboat," and in the later scenes, when Laura La Plante portrays the grown-up Magnolia, Jane plays Magnolia's little daughter. In other words, Jane begins the picture by playing her own mother when she was a girl, later playing the daughter of the girl she was at the beginning.

Speaking of the talkies, as everyone is nowadays, Danny Gray, the head cutter at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, says the picturegoers who think the amount of footage devoted to telling who produced, wrote, directed and acted in a silent film is too great may as well try to get used to it. "For," explains Gray, "unless we want to be partial about giving screen credits, the talking picture credit lists will show not only the producer's, director's, scenarist's art director's and players' names, but also the name of the sound-specialist, the musical director, the speech director, the electrical engineer and who knows how many others.

Wandering around inside the high fences where celluloid excitement is made, one comes upon centers of make believe and sees:

Nils Asther in front of a mirror lathering his face with cake frosting (a durable substitute for real soap in shaving scenes). Lloyd Hughes helping Jane Daly into her newest heroine's costume, a copper deep sea diving suit as big as three washing machines. On another set, Alice White is shimmering her way through a scene in a flexible glass evening gown. And over the hill, not far away, Douglas Fairbanks doing a D'Artagnan jump through a stained glass window made of rock candy.

The boom in studio construction lately has brought with it an alarming increase in the number of loose nails lying about where stars' and officials' cars can pick up punctures. At Universal a sort of magnetic street-sweeping device has been built to keep the studio streets clear. It consists mainly of a wide series of electro-magnets mounted between two wheels which keep the poles of the magnets just off the pavement. Every few hundred yards the driver dismounts and unloads his catch of spikes, tacks and 10-penny nails.

What is known in the trade as the "talking trailer," a short sound-film advertising a forthcoming talking picture, has been developing lately into a new form of screen drama. Instead of merely having an actor tell the audience about the next attraction and possibly introduce the principal members of the cast or show a sample talking scene from the new picture, the latest trailers are one-reel playlets in themselves. Their purpose still is to advertise the forthcoming attraction, but the advertising is woven into an amusing or melodramatic sketch.

An example is the one-reel courtroom sketch written by William Bloecher to advertise Pauline Frederick's first talking picture. Miss Frederick and other members of the cast of "On Trial" appear in the scene, and before the prosecuting attorney has finished with them they have admitted under oath their connection with a sensational murder case which they testify with seeming reluctance, will be very entertainingly solved "at this theater next week."

CARING FOR INSANE CITIZENS SERIOUS PROBLEM IN RUSSIA

Only 77 Asylums, for 21,000 Persons, With Five Times as Many Needing Treatment.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6.—Russia has encountered a serious problem in caring for her insane citizens. There are only 77 lunatic asylums in the country, with accommodations for 21,103 persons. The public health authorities say that there are five times that number of lunatics in Russia who ought to be locked up.

Money for this purpose is hard to obtain in Russia and some of the existing asylums need repairs. There are no funds available for building new ones. The State finds it difficult to retain the 11,000 employes who care for inmates. Their dormitory facilities are crowded and working conditions are far from attractive. Many have quit their jobs on the ground that they could not work longer without losing their own minds.

32 C. M. T. C. AWARDS WON BY ST. LOUISANS

Athletic and Military Honors Captured in Competition With Men of 10 States.

The tumult and the shouting of this year's Citizen's Military Training Camps having died, it appears that St. Louis really had something to shout about.

Thirty-two awards, athletic and military, were captured by St. Louis men, in five different encampments in the Sixth and Seventh Army Corps areas. Which may not mean much until it is remembered that the competitions were among 5798 men, from the 10 states of Missouri, Arkansas, Kansas, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Illinois, Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Iowa.

It is believed that St. Louis' record was not equaled by any similar group in the Citizens' Military Training Camps. The figures for the entire country are not yet complete, but this city's contingent probably will be near the top of the list, according to Maj. William S. Woodruff, C. M. T. C. officer of the 102d Division, the reserve unit to which local men would normally find themselves assigned under mobilization conditions.

The St. Louis enrollment increased from 136 in 1926 to 1 this year, according to official figures made public yesterday. It is expected that the full quota of 480 will be chosen next year from the list of applicants to attend camp at Fort Snelling, Minn.; Fort Crook, Neb.; Fort Des Moines, Ia.; Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Jefferson Barracks.

Wins Boxing Championship.

Possibly the most spectacular of this year's rewarded feats was the winning of the heavyweight boxing championship of Camp Snelling, Minn., by Charles Galloway Jr., whose father is a musicain and scholar, living at 4171 Magnolia avenue. Young Galloway boxed and battered his way through four exceptionally tough encounters, to win a gold medal. He is 17 years old, weighs 220 pounds and is a freshman at Yale.

At Snelling a military medal was awarded D. L. Salinger, 5500 Pershing avenue, as the most exemplary member of the camp's battery. Salinger is assigned to the 380th Field Artillery (Organized Reserves) here.

Stanley E. Rosenfeld, 6963 Waterman avenue, who was in D Company at Fort Crook, received two medals, one a citizenship medal, the other an award for the most proficient student in camp. Carr C. Link, 5430 Cabanne avenue, who attended at Des Moines, won a medal as one of the six best first-year men of his camp.

At Leavenworth 15 awards were made to St. Louisans. Edward Byrne, 5033 Louisiana avenue; Dan R. Cross, 5359 Minerva avenue, and Milton W. Vieman, 6158 Etzel avenue, played on the championship-winning baseball team of L Company, and each received a medal for his part.

Victorious in Tennis.

L Company, largely a St. Louis outfit, also furnished the tennis-doubles champions, Harold S. Horwithz, 730 Belt avenue, and William H. Krueger, 3457A Juniata avenue, who together receiver a cup. Krueger won the singles championship cup as well.

Burt C. Kaufman, 3866 Lafayette avenue, Company L, received a medal for second place in the 220-yard hurdles, and Le Roy Jacobs, 1344 McCausland avenue, L Company, one for third in the running broad jump. Jacobs also received an award as best student of his year in his platoon; like awards were given Carl O. Goldstein, 4246 Red Bud avenue, I Company; Raymond W. Warner, 2353 Dozier street, E Troop (Cavalry), and George E. Watt, 2715A Keokuk street, L Company. Watt also won a cup for his publicity work.

Thomas B. Randall, 3975 Utah street, won a citizenship medal, and Henry T. Wiedemueller, 6203 Gravois, L Company, a cup for rifle marksmanship.

Jefferson Barracks naturally had a number of prize-winning St. Louis students. Hugh C. Sexton, 510A Lake avenue, won a medal as one of the two best third-year men in camp, received a marksmanship award, and also got a medal as third man in the one-mile relay, a triple accomplishment not equaled by any other St. Louisan.

Arthur B. Proctor, 5836 Cates avenue, C Company, was captain of the Jefferson Barracks rifle team at the national meet last month at Camp Perry, O.

Watch Fobs for Baseball Team.

Gold watch fobs were earned by Howard R. Schaumburg, 3983 Connecticut avenue; William G. Smith, Webster Groves, and W. H. Wingert, Kirkwood, members of L Company's champion baseball nine. E. L. Flynn, 1387 Bird avenue, received a similar fob for his part in winning the camp basket ball championship for M Company.

Alfred E. Howe, 4520 Chouteau avenue, M Company, won a second in the 440-yard dash, and Phillip Schumacher, 3829 South Broadway, K Company, a first in the 440-yard relay.

In the swimming meet, third place in the 40-yard free style class and second in the 40-yard breaststroke were won by R. A. Wenk, 7094 Minnesota avenue, M Company.

Not one of the St. Louis men was severely disciplined at any of the camps.

These citizens' camps, instituted in 1921, carry no obligation to future military service, but insure to accredited participants preferred standing in any future emergency, Maj. Woodruff explained. Graduates of the final C. M. T. C. course are eligible for commissions in the Organized Reserves, just as are graduates of college or university R. O. T. C. units. It is the Reserves, after the Regular Army and the National Guard, which would form the base for a war-time army under the new Defense Act plans.

Stomach Disorders First Revealed by Coated Tongue

How to Stop Them Before They Get Serious

YOUR TONGUE is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at, no matter what seems to be ailing you. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and, as you know, the physicians say that 90 per cent of all sickness starts with stomach and bowel trouble.

Look at Your Tongue Every Morning!

A Coated Tongue Is a Dangerous Signal!

It's a sign of those digestive disorders which lead to so many kinds of serious illness. And it's a sign that you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks from stomach and bowel troubles—who had "tried everything" in vain and about given up hope.

That coated tongue tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells. See how the first bottle of Tanlac helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Just See How These Sufferers Were Helped:

Mrs. J. M. Roath, of 1200 W. 14th St., Sedalia, Mo. says: "For 15 years I suffered from stomach trouble; also constipation, dizzy spells and nervous headaches. After two bottles of Tanlac I ate more and enjoyed my food. It relieved me of the headaches."

Mr. W. M. Ashby, of 1147 S. 18th St., Louisville, Ky. says: "I was so run down from stomach and liver trouble that I lost 25 lbs. in five months. Tanlac brought me so much relief that I digested every kind of food, gained more than I'd lost, and felt strong and alert."

Mrs. G. H. Mangus, of 919 Hunt Ave., Charleston, W. Va. says: "My 10-year-old daughter always had stomach trouble, been anemic and underweight. After four bottles of Tanlac she eats and sleeps better than in months. She is gaining in weight and is not so nervous."

STILL HOPEFUL GRAF ZEPPELIN WILL COME HERE

Scott Field Officers Think Dirigible Will Visit City If It Crosses Atlantic This Month.

LAKEHURST, N. J., SET AS SHIP'S OBJECTIVE

No Word to Col. Paegelow From Germany Since St. Louis Was Chosen as First Stop in Flight.

Scott Field officers and members of the Air Board of the Chamber of Commerce still are hopeful that St. Louis will see the giant German dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, if it completes its proposed flight from Germany to Lakehurst, N. J., now scheduled to start "any time after next Tuesday."

Col. Paegelow, commandant at Scott Field, said yesterday he thought it likely that Dr. Hugo Eckener, designer of the dirigible, would bring his ship west, weather conditions permitting.

"We are ready for the Zeppelin if it comes to Scott Field," said Col. Paegelow. "Both our mast and hangar are more than large enough to accommodate the ship, but I would put it in the hangar. We also can refuel the ship here."

Col. Paegelow has had no word from Germany since last August, when Herr Lehman, assistant to Dr. Eckener, wrote that it definitely had been decided to make Scott Field the first stop on the ship's proposed non-stop cruise from Friedrichshafen. This letter had been written after Harold M. Bixby, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, had conferred with officials of the Zeppelin company at Friedrichshafen in July, extending a formal invitation for the ship to come to St. Louis.

Later it was stated in cable dispatches that the Zeppelin would carry passengers on the ocean flight and that the objective would be Lakehurst, where the navy has a great airship hangar.

"Weather conditions in October sometimes are not favorable for airships," Col. Paegelow said. "It is my opinion, however, that if weather is favorable, the Zeppelin may be brought west to our field."

The Zeppelin is 770 feet long and 100 feet in diameter at its largest section. Its gas capacity is 2,500,000 cubic feet, so that roughly it is thre times as large as any airship ever seen in the United States. For servicing the ship, Ferr Lehman had written Col. Paegelow to have on hand 350,000 cubic feet of hydrogen and 10 tons of a special engine fuel made up of 75 per cent benzol and 25 per cent gasoline.

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Tells How to Darken Gray Hair With a Home-Made Mixture

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

Delay Likely on Order Aimed At Duplication On Clear Waves

But Radio Board Is Regarded as Sure to Put Into Effect Eventually Ruling Limiting Network Broadcasting by 'National' Stations.

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6. — The Federal Radio Commission probably will postpone enforcement of its order requiring cleared channel stations which broadcast the same program to be at least 300 miles apart.

The change in attitude is due to protests from listeners who objected to losing favorite chain programs.

However, the commission will not rescind its order preventing duplication. It will merely postpone the date of execution for 30 days or longer. That will give the commission a chance to see how many duplications there are under the new allocation and how much spacing is necessary.

Inspection of the Radio Commission's map at Washington reveals that the 300-mile chain programs ruling would affect stations on cleared channels.

In Chicago and St. Louis, Detroit, Louisville, Cincinnati and Fort Wayne, Ind., and in Des Moines and Davenport if WHO and WOC get a national channel between them.

In Detroit and Cincinnati;
In Cincinnati and Pittsburg;
In Detroit and Cleveland;
In Detroit and Pittsburg;
In Louisville and Nashville;
In Louisville and Pittsburg;
In Atlanta and Charlotte, N. C.

In other words, under the ruling, if the Chicago chain stations broadcast chain programs steadily, national stations in Detroit, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Louisville and Fort Wayne, Ind., Des Moines and Davenport could put the same program on the hour only one hour nightly.

If KDKA, Pittsburg, broadcast chain programs throughout the evening, stations on cleared waves in Detroit, Cincinnati, Cleveland and Louisville would be restricted to an hour of chain features at night.

If WEAF, WJZ, WOR and WABC, New York, broadcast the programs for which they are key stations, all other national stations in New England, New York, Philadelphia and Maryland would be limited to an hour a night on a network.

In any event, the ruling on chain stations, when put into effect, appears certain to work to the disadvantage of listeners who hold that the net work programs are the best in broadcasting and declare that they want these.

The chain program regulation applies only to stations on cleared channels. On cleared channels duplications are permitted for one hour each evening. The regulation will be waived for special events.

Commissioner La Fount declares it would be better for the commission to wait until the new allocation was actually working before definitely regulating chain programs.

"I would not attempt to furnish a house before I had seen what it looked like inside," he says. "But that is on the same order of what we did when we issued the chain program order.

"The most important thing now is the new allocation. We want to see how that will work out first. When it is working, we will find out definitely how many duplications exist. Then we can proceed on the basis of facts instead of theoretically.

"It may very well be that a 300-mile separation is inadequate, or it may be that it is too great. I propose that we wait until the new allocation is working, then make careful checks to determine the extent of duplications."

As other commissioners share La Fount's views, it seems likely that they may be adopted.

On the other hand, the commission desires to issue some kind of chain regulatory order before the meeting of Congress in December, because of the pronounced sentiment among the legislators against chain duplications.

Protests have been piling up in Washington as listeners and station owners began to realize what would happen if the Radio Commission insisted on putting into effect its ruling that no station using a nationally cleared channel should broadcast chain programs for more than an hour a night simultaneously with another station less than 300 miles distant.

Disruption of the carefully worked out system of chain broadcasting in some parts of the country, and serious crippling of it in other regions, were cited to the Commission among reasons for seeking modification of the order. The National Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia system filed protests.

St. Louis did not face so serious a curtailment of New York programs as did other regions.

Listeners were assured that KSD, not ranking as a national station, would be able to broadcast from WEAF, New York, about as in past fall-winter seasons, although it would not be able to put certain programs on the air in daylight hours or between 6 and 7 p. m., because of the order to share time with KFUO.

Broadcasting of programs from WJZ, New York, in the St. Louis region depended on the arrangement for sharing time reached by KWK and WIL, or on the result of KWK's demand for full time on the wave allotted to it and WIL. This situation also depended, to some extent, on whether WIL was given a more favorable assignment for use of the 1000-watt transmitter that it was authorized to erect and thus was put in a better position to bid for New York features.

As KMOX was ranked as a national station, the ruling was interpreted generally as limiting it to broadcasting an hour a night of Columbia chain programs, because WMAQ, Chicago, and WOW, Fort Wayne, Ind., both Columbia links, are less than 300 miles from this city. That the Columbia chain would drop its Chicago link in favor of St. Louis or Fort Wayne was regarded, of course, as incredible. That it would acquiesce in the idea of trying to cover St. Louis from Chicago, or in being restricted to an hour a night over a St. Louis station, was held equally to be doubted.

Trying to get Columbia features on St. Louis receivers from WMAQ was regarded as wholly unsatisfactory. Even the 15,000-watt WGN, Chicago, is a long way from being

Importance of Fight on Short Waves Is Great

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—With the political campaigns and the new allocation of stations in the radio spotlight, the fight by commercial concerns for the valuable short waves has attracted relatively slight public attention.

Radio men and Government observers, however, declare that the scramble for these assignments and the threatened struggle between land wire companies and radio concerns for the communication business in the United States is of great commercial import.

Having heard arguments of rival applicants for point-to-point radio service in the United States, the Radio Commission plans to get the recommendations of engineers preparatory to formulating a policy for assignment of these channels. With the supply of wave lengths insufficient to satisfy applicants, the commission says priority of claims must be determined on the basis of greatest public service.

Because of the shortage of wave lengths, the commission has been reluctant to assign radio channels for communication purposes where wire facilities are available. Some time ago the Radio Manufacturers' Association recommended to the commission that radio be used only for those services where wire com-

Six of Chicago Radio Stations On New Basis

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—The broadcasting situation in Chicago has been materially changed.

WJJD, the Loyal Order of Moose station, no longer shares time and programs with WEBH, the Edgewater Beach Hotel. The former now is sharing time with WCFL, owned and operated by the Illinois Federation of Labor.

Although WEBH has consolidated with KYW, owned by the Westinghouse Electric Co., it is believed the hotel will dismantle the station.

WEBH and WJJD formerly drew their programs from the Chicago Herald and Examiner. That paper now operates KYW. The broadcasting of the hotel's music, the chief reason for maintaining the station, now is on Herald and Examiner programs broadcast over KYW.

An attempt has been made by a State street hotel manager to interest retailers of the loop district in a program to be broadcast by WJJD and WCFL to be known as the "Voice of State Street."

The four year ownership and operation of WLS by Sears-Roebuck company terminated Oct. 1, when the station became the property of the Prairie Farmer, agricultural magazine. The old staff was retained and the policy, giving farm programs precedence, will be maintained.

Playlet Feature Of Eveready Hour

The Eveready Hour on KSD next Tuesday night is to bring a one-act play as the chief offering. "The Highest Bidder" is the name of the play. It was written by Everett S. Ruskay, known to vaudeville patrons as the author of a number of successful playlets. The sketch is described as a mirthful satire on the difficulties of young married people who possess an abundance of relatives desirous of making their home with them.

Marcella Shields, who appeared a fortnight ago in the Eveready Hour production of J. P. McEvoy's book "Show Girl," will play the leading part, supported by Richard Abbott and Fred Forrester.

Twenty minutes will be devoted to "The Highest Bidder" and the remaining 40 minutes of Eveready Hour to a program of light concert music, including a saxophone rhapsody by Bonnell, which will be played for the first time anywhere. The International Singers, a male quartet, will sing four songs.

Acousticon Hour on KSD Today

Two new features—a religious service with the Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick as speaker and a renewal of the Acousticon concerts that St. Louisans have had to tune in on distant stations—were to have been broadcast by KSD today. But, because or arrangements to broadcast the world series baseball game this afternoon, the inaugural appearance of Dr. Fosdick over KSD has been deferred until next Sunday. The Acousticon program, however, is scheduled for 4:30 this afternoon.

Tonight's big radio feature will be the first of the new fall-winter hour long Atwater Kent concerts. The soloists will be two Metropolitan opera stars—Frances Alda, soprano, and Mario Chamlee, tenor.

First of today's KSD features will be the Peerless program at 12:30 this afternoon. The slide trombone is the instrument at will be given special attention. The musical numbers in the Peerless period include:

Tannhauser March ..... Wagner
Orchestra.
Prelude from Lohengrin ..... Wagner
Orchestra.
Captain Mac ..... Sanderson
Bass.
Dance de la Fee Dragee ..... Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Dance Chinois ..... Tschaikowsky
Orchestra.
Madam Lulu (Salon Arrangement)
Trombone.
Rolling Down to Rio ..... German
Bass.
Scarf Dance—Symphonic Dance ..... Lange
Orchestra.

For the Acousticon program at 4:30 this afternoon, the orchestra, under Max Smolen, has been increased by addition of a brass section, and the quartet heard in Acousticon concerts last spring has been re-engaged.

Sophie Tucker, vaudeville star, is announced as the featured entertainer in today's Acousticon program. She returned recently from London, where she appeared at the Kit-Kat Club. She is to sing two songs with which she won success in the past—"Some of These Days" and "Mammy's Little Coal Black Rose," as well as a popular song of today.

Popular stage figures of a quarter century ago will be featured again, the list including DeWolf Hopper, Eddie Leonard, Sally Fisher, Josephine Sable, Marie Cahill and Tom Brown. Also, entertainers featured on former Acousticon programs have been invited to appear again, among them Frank Moulan, Joseph Howard, Will Oakland, Fiske O'Hara and Jack Norworth.

The Stetson broadcast, beginning at 5 o'clock this afternoon, is to be devoted to recreating the torchlight procession and festivities on Oct. 21, 1901, when Yale College celebrated its 200th anniversary. The Weymouth Post Band will furnish the music, as usual.

A concert by the National String Quartet is scheduled over KSD at 5:30 this afternoon.

At 6:30 the weekly Capitol Family concert will begin over KSD.

David Lawrence will give his talk on "Our Government" at 8 o'clock.

Frances Alda, Metropolitan Opera soprano, and Mario Chamlee, tenor of the Metropolitan, are to be the soloists in tonight's Atwater Kent concert, beginning at 8:15 o'clock. They will be assisted by the Atwater Kent male quartet and chorus and the orchestra, which for this concert will be directed by Gennaro Papi, formerly conductor at the Metropolitan Opera.

By special permission from the Italian publishers of Puccini's music, arias from his "Madame Butterfly," "Tosca," Gianni Schicchi" and "Lo Boheme" will be included in the program, which will be as follows:

Angora un passo (Entrance of Butterfly) from Madame Butterfly ..... Puccini
Mme. Alda, Orchestra and Chorus.
E lucevan le stelle (The Stars Were Shining) from Tosca ..... Puccini
Mr. Chamlee and Orchestra.
(a) O mio babbino caro (Oh, My Beloved Daddy) from Gianni Schicchi ..... Puccini
(b) Vissi d'arte e d'amour (Love and Music) from Tosca ..... Puccini
Mme. Alda and Orchestra.
Rodolfo's Narrative, from La Boheme ..... Puccini
Mr. Chamlee and Orchestra.
(a) Plantation ..... Steiner
(b) Goin' Home ..... Dvorak
(c) Home, Sweet Home (John Howard Payne) ..... Bishop
Mme. Alda and Quartet.
Intermezzo from Jewels of the Madonna ..... Wolf-Ferrari
Orchestra.
O quanti occhi fisi (Oh Kindly Heavens) from Madame Butterfly ..... Puccini
Mme. Alda, Mr. Chamlee and Orchestra.

DELAY IS LIKELY ON ORDER AIMED AT DUPLICATIONS

a "local station" to St. Louis when there is any static. WMAQ, using only 5000 watts, naturally does not come in here anywhere near as satisfactorily as does WGN.

Cincinnati appeared likely to get all the Columbia programs from a local station — WKRC. But, faced the situation of WLW and WSAI, owned by Powel Crosley, Jr., and signed to share time on a cleared channel, being less than 300 miles from KDKA, Pittsburgh, and WHAS, Louisville, Ky., both on cleared channels. Cincinnati listeners saw no feasible way to get more than an hour a night of WEAF and WJZ programs, since WLW gave up its new 50,000-watt transmitter and obtained in assignment as a low-powered regional station. This, of course, is regarded as out of the question. Having to rely on KDKA, which fades badly and is to be restricted to using its 50,000-watt transmitter at only half power, was said to be wholly unsatisfactory.

Cleveland, with WTAM, ranks as a national station and the Detroit-Pontiac region, with WJR, assigned to a cleared wave, were to have equally serious predicament as to New York programs.

Central Ohio faced the same situation, especially because of assignment of WAIU, Columbus, sharing time on a cleared channel.

The regions that have depended on WOC, Davenport, and WHO, Des Moines, for New York features were unhappy, too. A deluge of protests had caused the Radio Commission to change its attitude toward these Iowa stations and permit them to share time on a cleared channel. But two stations using one wave can not carry many features as can two using two channels.

If the ruling was to remain in force and be interpreted according to the letter, WEAF, WJZ, WOR and WABC, the New York chain key stations, would be restricted to broadcasting an hour a night of their own network programs, and most listeners in New England, New York State, Pennsylvania and Maryland would have to get their New York programs from the key stations. For the most important stations in those states are all less than 300 miles from New York and broadcasting network programs.

The theory on which the Commission's ruling was based was assailed by the NBC and Columbia interests, and by stations associated with them, as impractical and bound to deprive millions of listeners of the programs to which they preferred to listen. The idea of avoiding too much duplication of programs was praised, but it was declared that establishing an arbitrary geographical spacing of chain stations was not practicable.

Static, peculiar regional atmospheric conditions, the geographical contour of certain sections of the country, and the existence of innumerable "dead spots," where distant and sometimes local reception is impossible, were cited as a few reasons why the limit should not be fixed.

As chief consulting engineer of the National Broadcasting Co., Alfred N. Goldsmith told the Commission that no station enjoys a consistent service range of 100 miles, and showed how stations in between high-powered stations and on the fringes of 100-mile circles, might be shut out.

He maintained that the actual service limit of the largest broadcast transmitter (using 50,000 watts) is about 150 miles, fading beyond that occurring beyond that radius.

Worth Remembering

Two antenna binding posts are included in most of the modern receiving sets. One is for "long" and one is for "short" antennas. Each should be tried in turn, as the best results are obtained sometimes a switch for throwing either one will prove convenient.

IMAGINE Paderewski attempting to play the Second Hungarian Rhapsody on a CLAVICHORD—that primitive piano with only four octaves instead of the modern seven!

Would it sound like Paderewski? Would it even sound like the Second Hungarian Rhapsody? Of course not! There would be lacking the thunderous peal of the bass—the twinkling, sparkling notes of the treble; there would be lacking contrast, color, variety!

That illustrates what happens to good music when reproduced by a radio incapable of giving you the full range of tones. Its charm and true beauty are gone!

To realize how beautiful radio music can be, you must hear the Kellogg. Then you hear every note, from the lowest to the highest. You get the harmonics and overtones that give each instrument its purity and richness.

Radio Service Begins Today on Columbia System

Pastor of Philadelphia Church to Be Preacher In Air Vespers

The Columbia Chain is to have a Sunday afternoon religious broadcast, and will inaugurate it today at 4:30 p. m. over KMOX and allied stations. The service will be broadcast from the Tenth Presbyterian Church of Philadelphia, Pa., and this church's pastor, the Rev. Donald Grey Barnhouse, will be the preacher.

Coming from California, the Rev. Mr. Barnhouse, studied at Princeton University and Princeton Theological Seminary, leaving to enter the United States Army in 1917 and serving to the end of the war in the Air Service as a First Lieutenant.

Upon his release from service after the Armistice, he went to Europe where he lived for seven years. In the first two years he was attached to an organization doing relief work in Belgium. He then went to France to do university work for several years. He received the B.A. equivalent and was granted diplomas for graduate work in Ancient History, Modern History and English Literature by the University of Grenoble, France. He traveled extensively through Europe during these years, at one time residing in Athens and again in London.

Returning to the United States in 1925, he took a position on the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania while completing the residence requirements for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

In 1927, he resigned to take the pastorate of the historic Tenth Presbyterian Church, succeeding the world famous Scotch evangelist, John McNeil.

Trade Notes

Two new Brunswick radio-phonograph combinations are expected within a few days by the local distributer, the Brunswicke-Balke-Collender Co. factory branch, of which James H. Bennett is general manager and Hugh E. Brown, sales manager. One combines a powerful superheterodyne receiver, dynamic speaker, Panatrope and electric pickup. The other includes a tuned radio frequency received, a Panatrope, power dynamic speaker and electric pickup.

One of the Brunswick receivers now being shown is a nine-tube superheterodyne in table model and in console with dynamic speaker. This has seven 227 A-C tubes, power tube and rectifier tube.

Then there is a seven-tube radio frequency receiver in table model, and in console with built-in speaker. This set also comes in a combination with Panatrope, speaker and electric pickup.

In addition, there is a Brunswick A speaker.

These Brunswick receivers and combinations are all A-C tube sets. The cabinets are noteworthy for fineness of design and woods and for finish.

Otto N. Frankfort, vice president in charge of sales of the All-American Mohawk Corporation of Chicago, was the principal speaker at a meeting and dinner Wednesday of All-American Mohawk radio dealers at the American Hotel. He discussed methods for merchandising the new All-American Mohawk Lyric receivers. G. H. Cohn, Southwestern manager for the All-American Mohawk Corporation, also spoke. S. C. Lance, head of the Lance Electric Co., distributers of All-American Mahowk sets in this territory, was host.

The new receivers come in six-tube and eight-tube models as well as in radio-phonograph combinations in luxurious cabinets. All models are fully copper shielded, are lamp socket operated, have one dial tuning control and jacks for electric phonographic pickup. The exceptionally large audio transformers are low pitched.

The eight-tube sets have four R. F. stages for great selectivity, and also have two push-pull audio stages for realism of reproduction.

One of the combinations has cone speaker, another has a built-in dynamic speaker.

An interesting use of sound insulating material on walls and floor is a feature of a new radio salon that the Barthel-Duesenberg Piano Co. is fitting in its downtown store. The decorating is in a monotone finish, the walls and ceiling being done in a rich craftex effect. Because of the construction, it will not be necessary to deaden the room with hangings. The general effect is such that radio receivers of all styles and designs, from the quiet Colonial types to the elaborate Chinese and Italian Renaissance models, may be displayed harmoniously.

A new Erla receiver, embodying a number of innovations, is about to be marketed, according to Burton Greene, vice president of the Erla Corporation, which was formed by a merger of the Electrical Research Laboratories and the Greene-Brown Manufacturing Co.

Arthur Kaemmerer, formerly of the Kaenmerer Music Co., has joined the Laudel Radio Co., which has opened a new store at 5527 South Grand boulevard. He is to be sales manager. The firm is to handle Brunswick receivers and Panatropes and Atwater Kent receivers.

B. Freshman, heading a company bearing his own name, announces production in his Chicago factory of the President, an all-electric receiver. One standard chassis will be used for all models. The set is a fully shielded A. C. receiver, with eight tubes, including rectifier tube. Push pull audio is used. Features include, adjustment to a voltage range of 95 to 140 volts; single dial control illuminated; built-in phonograph jack. There are two models, table and console, both in walnut. The console models have full dynamic speakers.

A meeting of Fada dealers of the city was held at the Coronado Hotel Wednesday, with the Beck & Corbitt Co., distributer, as host. Talks on merchandising were made by George Niekamp, vice president and sales manager of the Beck & Corbitt Co., and C. D. Wagner, assistant sales manager.

A. Crossley, formerly head of a radio division of the U. S. Naval Research Laboratories, has joined the staff of the Steinite Radio Laboratories.

Indian Love Story on WMAQ. The romantic and adventurous love story of Chief Chikagou of the Michigans and Tonika, sister of the Great Chief of the Natchez, will be related over WMAQ between 7 and 7:30 Wednesday night.

Gassy Tubes.

Tubes are "gassy" that glow blue or purple. The only remedy for this condition is to lower the plate voltage, which will not only clear up the trouble, but may also reduce the volume to a point below that desired.

Noted Singer On KSD Tomorrow

Merle Alcock, young grand opera contralto, because of a memory and Arthur Pryor, veteran band master, will divide honors before the microphone tomorrow in the General Motors family party over KSD from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock.

Most of the numbers will be popular classics or the more melodious ballads and folk songs.

Merle Alcock's career, began in rural Missouri, where she was born, carried her to the home of a steel magnate on Riverside Drive and revolved around a simple, old-fashioned song which Charles M. Schwab heard for the first time at Loretta, Pa., in 1883, when he was a young engineer working for a foundry.

The song was sung by Eurania Dinkey, daughter of a fellow employee, and caused young Schwab to stop, look and listen at the door of the parlor where an attractive young woman sat at a piano. Miss Dinkey soon became Mrs. Charles M. Schwab. Years later, she and her husband were thrilled when another young woman appeared before them at a concert and happened to sing the song which had first attracted them to each other.

Mrs. Schwab sought the girl who was Merle Alcock, and asked the privilege of assisting her in her musical education. Miss Alcock has been Mrs. Schwab's protege ever since.

Cause of Hum in A-C Is Found

Should a persistent hum occur in an A-C set, where three stages of amplification are employed, the last of the three tubes will be, in many cases, found to be responsible for this condition. A separate grid return for this last tube through a low resistance potentiometer will often eliminate the trouble.

Stations May Use New Channels in The Early Hours

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Stations which must adjust their transmitters to new frequencies under the reallocation will be permitted to experiment on the new channels between 2 and 7 a. m., Eastern stanard time, or between 1 and 7 a. m., Mountain standard time for stations west of the Mississippi River. The tests will be permitted to enable stations to adjust transmitters to the new frequencies.

munication was impracticable or impossible.

Three rival companies now seek permission to establish networks of radio telegraph stations handling public messages in competition with the wire systems of the country. Representatives of the Radio Corporation of America, one of the applicants, maintain that the service they propose would be clearly in the interest of the public. They assert that the Radio Corporation's competition in the transoceanic field resulted in the first reduction in cable rates in 38 years.

The other applicants are the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company and the Universal Wireless Communications company, a new corporation formed at Buffalo.

The Mackay concern contends that it is better equipped to serve the public because of its connection with an established land wire system, the Postal Telegraph Co.

The Universal Wireless Co. bases its plea for priority on the fact that it was first to propose establishing of a national radio network to compete with the wire lines.

Crosley Stations In Cincinnati to Avoid Duplication

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—Complete variety in the programs of WLW and WSAI with no duplication when the two stations are broadcasting simultaneously, is announced by the Crosley Radio Corporation as the result of several months of schedule shifting.

This has been the aim since the Crosley corporation took over control of WSAI in May. The purpose will achieve reality on Oct. 7. After that date no similar programs are to be booked for presentation at the same hour on either station.

"Cincinnati newspapers long ago pointed out that operation of two broadcasting stations in one town did not mean absolute variety for the radio listener," Powel Crosley Jr. said in the announcement.

Caldwell to Stay On Radio Board

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Orestes H. Caldwell, first zone radio commissioner, may not ersign at present as contemplated. But he will not seek reappointment after expiration of his term in February.

Caldwell says he does not think it would be right for him to leave at this time when the commission is likely to be under fire because of the new allocation, the planning of which was largely his work.

"I am going to stay as long as it appears that I am needed," he declares. "But I want to get back to my job in New York as soon as I can."

Dr. Van Dyke on WMAQ.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke of New York City will speak in the inaugural program of the Sunday Evening Club's new season over WMAQ between 7 and 9:15 tonight. WMAQ will present the club with noted speakers each Sunday night.

Can You Lose $10,000 Without Whimpering?

I have radio patents granted and several applications on file in the Patent Office of various countries.

United States, Canadian, French, British and Japanese patents have been issued to me.

I want a man or men with the courage who can afford to gamble with me and lose $10,000 or more if necessary without whimpering, squalling or welching. It is not improbable that we may make many times that much.

Chicago Faces Loss of Clear Wave to Iowa

Conference May Be Called by Radio Board to Care for WHO and WOC.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Nearly two dozen stations have notified the commission that they would like to be heard in connection with their assignment under the new allocation. Some of the stations want more time, others more power or a change in wave length.

Thus far the commission has not set a date for the hearings to begin, although it is said they will be completed before the date set for the new allocation to become effectiv, Nov. 11. Here are some of the stations that have requested hearings:

KWK, St. Louis; WTMJ, Milwaukee; WSPD, Toledo; WADC, Akron; WCAH, Columbus; WENR, Chicago; WGGU, New York; WICC, Bridgeport; WSSH, Boston; WBBC, Brooklyn; WIBS, Elizabeth, N. J.; WHT, Chicago; WREN, Lawrence, Kan.; WGN, Chicago; KRE, Berkeley, Cal.; WCAC, Storrs, Conn., and KFKU, Lawrence, Kan.

Martin P. Rice of WGY has expressed to the commission his dissatisfaction with the new assignment given his station—"limited time" on a cleared channel. He said the record of the station, and the time it has been in operation, clearly justified its claim to full time.

The commission told Rice that four cleared channels were assigned to New York, and that tentatively these have been given to WEAF, WJZ, WABC and WHAM. They suggested to Rice that he apply for the channel of any of those four stations.

The commissioners expressed themselves as sympathetic with Rice's plea, but pointed out that WGY used more chain programs than anything else, duplicating those of WEAF or WJZ in the same State.

In a letter to Rice, Commissioner Caldwell wrote that, through a working agreement with KGO, it might be possible for WGY to be on the air longer. Said Caldwell:

"Answering your inquiry as to the conditions of operation of the two General Electric broadcasting stations under your direction, WGY and KGO, assigned to channel 790 kilocycles, by the new allocation:

"It is the commission's understanding that while this channel is assigned to the Fifth Zone and to KGO, there is nothing in any commission regulation or order which will prevent you, as KGO's manager, from modifying KGO's operating time slightly so that both WGY and KGO may enjoy exclusive-channel operation, each with a time schedule at least 90 per cent of its present operating hours. This can be accomplished as follows:

"Station WGY operate throughout daytime and during the evening to 10 p. m.

"Station KGO operate throughout daytime, stand by from sunset to 7 p. m., and resume operation from 7 p. m. through the rest of the night.

"Since both stations are under your personal management, this schedule can be varied at will, from night to night, to conform to special features on either station.

"You are undoubtedly aware that in its effort to reduce interference and improve radio reception, under the difficult requirements of the equalizing law, the commission has had to impose time sharing and reduced schedules on many stations. In certain cities, great 5000-watt stations are dividing time, even to one-fourth and one-seventh time. Several hundred stations have been reduced to half-time operation.

"In the face of the severe restrictions thus imposed, the commission has felt sure that you will be willing to co-operate toward better radio with a slight limitation of your own broadcasting time, as above suggested."

The commission is also considering a proposal to call a conference of Chicago broadcasters to figure how to take a cleared channel from Chicago and give it to Iowa. Led by WHO, Iowa officials have protested that the State is entitled to one of the cleared channels. The two principal Iowa stations, WHO and WOC, are to operate on a limited time basis, under the new allocation.

If the claim of Iowa is met, a channel must be taken from Chicago, it is said.

FEDERAL BUILDING PROSPECT BOOMS MARKET STREET

Speculation Is Stimulated by Announcement of First Choice as Twelfth and Market Corner.

VALUES ENHANCED BY NEW COURTHOUSE

Many Deals Followed Two Major Projects and Handsome Profits Made by Speculators.

By Berry Moore.

Speculative interest in real estate on Market street, particularly east of Twelfth boulevard, has been greatly stimulated by the prospect—now almost a certainty—that the new Federal building will be located at the southeast corner of Twelfth and Market streets. This site is the first choice of William N. Collier, U. S. Treasury Department Engineer at Washington, for the new government building.

Collier's alternative choice is the block bounded by Market, Chestnut, Tenth and Eleventh streets, directly east of the new Civil Court House, which would also enhance Market street values should it have the preference.

The Twelfth and Market street site is in the control of Oreon E. Scott, president of Oreon E. and E. G. Scott Real Estate Co., who acquired it a number of years ago under a deed of trust held by a bank which made the foreclosure.

Market street is already showing the wholesome effect of the new Civil Court House, and would receive new stimulus with the selection of either of these sites for the new Federal building.

The new Civil Court and Bell Telephone building projects—the latter occupying an entire block from Chestnut to Pine and Tenth to Eleventh streets, which had their inception coincidentally, inspired heavy speculation on both Market and Chestnut streets, in anticipation of the benefits to be derived by these thoroughfares.

Noteworthy purchases in this district predicated on the new Civil Courthouse and the Bell Telephone projects, were those of the southeast corner of Eleventh and Chestnut street by Albert Wenzlick, president of the Wenzlick Real Estate Co., the northeast corner of Eleventh and Chestnut streets by a client of the Ben Altheimer & Bro. Real Estate Co.; 1105 Chestnut street by Robert Burns, president of the Bush-Burns Realty Co., and the northeast corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets by Nathaniel M. Glick.

Syndicates Were a Factor.

A syndicate headed by the Joseph Darst Realy Co. acquired a 99-year lease of the northeast corner of Eleventh and Market street, opposite the Courthouse. A syndicate headed by Fitzsimmons, heading a syndicate, acquired a 99-year lease of the northeast corner of Twelfth and Chestnut streets, owned by the Turner heirs, represented by Cornet & Zeibig.

An outstanding purchase was that for the new Western Union building of the southwest corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets, made at the instance of James D. Dockery of John Dockery & Son.

Charles J. Cella, as president of the Southern Realty Co., purchased the northwest corner of Sixth and Market street. The purchase was made for a 12-story extension to the American Hotel at the northeast corner of Seventh and Market streets, to be erected as soon as practicable, thus completing the upbuilding of the Market street side of this block, begun by the late Louis A. Cella, with the erection of the 12-story American Hotel and theater.

The 16-story DeSoto Hotel project, in course of construction at the northeast corner of Eighth and Market streets, had its origin with the 99-year lease acquired by a syndicate during the spirited movement.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dwyer, who is always in the vanguard of speculative operations, purchased the northwest corner of Ninth and Market streets through Mullen & Walters, just prior to the selection of the new Court House site.

A number of other Market street corners, as well as inside buildings, changed control during this period, either by purchase or on 99-year lease. In several instances these purchases or leases have been since disposed of at handsome profits.

A Cincinnati syndicate recently purchased the northwest corner of Tenth and Chetnut streets, comprising several parcels, as a site for an eight-story garage. The Lesser, Klein Real Estate Co. assembled the site for this project.

4440 LINDELL BOUGHT FOR APARTMENT SITE

Purchase Price Reported at $800 a Foot — A Total of $60,000.

A site 75x213 feet at 4440 Lindell boulevard, occupied by the former William Lenyon residence, has been purchased by T. J. Potashnick and J. A. Pastel, real estate operators, through the Franciscus Realty Co., with plans for a 16-story apartment building.

The purchasers who operate through Stanley Epstein, Inc., have erected a number of apartments and flats, notably in the West End.

The lot was sold by the Franciscus company for the Simpson Radio Corporation, which had only recently acquired it from William Lenyon. The purchase price in the recent transaction was given at $800 a foot, or a total of $60,000.

MULLIN-WALTERS REALTY CO. LEASES DOWNTOWN PROPERTY

Rice-Stix Dry Goods Co. has leased the entire sixth floor in the building at 1113-29 Washington avenue, embracing a half block of space. It will be used as a factory office and stockroom for manufacturing women's dresses. Both parties were represented by Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

A. W. Berson Co. of New York City has leased space in the Fashion Square Building at 1307 Washington avenue for stock office and sample rooms. The Orchard Rubber Co., Milford, Mass., also has leased space in the Fashion Square Building. H. P. Ruwwe, formerly with the Goodyear Rubber Co., has been appointed manager of the company. The lease was made for the Rose Realty Co.

The Northern Crescent Paper Co. has leased the one-story building at 1900-02 North Ninth street. The officers of the company are H. W. Meredith, president, and W. D. Alper, secretary. This lease was made for the account of the Clark-Wade estate.

Dewitt W. Dawkins of Ashley, Ill., has leased the seven-room California bungalow recently erected at 7400 Arlington drive, Richmond Heights, owned by the Missouri Mortgage Security Corporation.

Melvin Jacques has leased 6334 Gilson avenue which he will occupy as a home. Schwerdtman Toy Co. has leased the storeroom at 219-21 Chestnut street. The lease was made for account of Henry Hotze & Sons.

All parties in above transactions were represented by Mullin-Walters Realty Co.

H. A. O'ROURKE BUYS INTEREST OF PARTNER

The new company will continue the business of the old in the established quarters at 5471 Gravois avenue. As in the past, it will conduct a general real estate and financial agency with gilt-edged loans a specialty.

O'Rourke is one of the best known and most aggressive members of the real estate fraternity.

THREE APARTMENT BUILDINGS BOUGHT

Mrs. Minnie Housam Purchases Five-Story Marne for $250,000.

Sales of apartment buildings were a feature of real estate activity of the week. Among such properties sold were the Marne Apartments at 5528 Pershing avenue, bought by Mrs. Minnie Housam, president of the Housam Realty Co., for $250,000; the Marjeanette Apartments at 327 North Taylor avenue, bought by George Krauss, president of the Krauss Radio Sales Corporation, through Harold E. Willson, Inc., for $190,000, and 6231 Rosebury avenue, bought by Robert C. Armstrong, a client of Harry E. Willson, for $90,000.

The Marne is a five-story fireproof building, having 42 four and six-room efficiency apartments, with annual rentals aggregating $42,000. The building, occupying a lot 74 by 165 feet, is a twin structure to the Browning Apartments, 5536 Pershing avene, already owned by Mrs. Housam.

WM. WATSON REALTY CO. OPENS OFFICES ON GRAVOIS

The William Watson Realty Co., Inc., has opened offices at 5463 Gravois avenue. Watson was formerly secretary and treasurer of the Watson-O'Rourke Co., in charge of sales. He has organized a force of active and experienced salesmen conversant with all the details of the real estate business.

The concern will do a general real estate, loan and insurance business.

WALGREENS GET LEASE ON DELMAR-HAMILTON

Transaction Reflects Demand in District of New Viaduct and Wabash Station.

The Walgreen Drug Co. has acquired a 15-year lease, beginning November 1, 1928, of quarters at the northeast corner of Hamilton avenue and Delmar boulevard, for which the rental was not disclosed, but it is understood to be a record for this part of the city. Negotiations were handled by the Apex Realty & Mortgage Co.

The quarters leased by the Walgreen Co. are in the Balson building, owned by the estate of William L. Balson, deceased. Alterations on an extensive scale are contemplated.

Heckmann Co. to Broadcast Game.

The William L. Heckmann Real Estate Co. has completed arrangements with the Schweig-Engel Corporation to broadcast the world series game between 12 and 4 p. m. today at Eldorado, the new subdivision development of the company.

Plaza-Olive Interests Plan $2,000,000 Bank

New Institution Would Occupy Ground Floor of Missouri Pacific Building; Railroad Executives Said to Be Included.

It is learned that the group back of the new Plaza-Olive Building project, on the south side of Olive just west of Twelfth boulevard is organizing a new bank with $2,000,000 capital, to occupy the entire ground floor at the southeast corner of Thirteenth and Olive streets in the Missouri Pacific Building.

Henry R. Weisels, president of Henry R. Weisels, Inc., and treasurer of the Plaza-Olive Investment Co., while refusing to confirm or deny the story, admitted that the Missouri Pacific corner was being held for banking purposes. The space under reservation has a frontage on Olive of 90 feet, and on Thirteenth, overlooking the Memorial Plaza, 70 feet.

The directorate of the proposed bank, it is said, will include heads of business concerns and property owners in the vicinity.

There have been several offers recently for the southeast corner of Eighteenth and Olive, presumably for a bank and trust company. The site, which is vacant, has a large frontage on Olive, with a depth of 67 feet on Eighteenth. It is owned by Frank R. Rice, who recently purchased it.

Negotiations for space in the new Plaza Building, which will be situated just east of and adjoining the Missouri Pacific Building, have begun already.

The United Cigar Stores, it is understood, wants the entire first floor, which will extend from Olive to Pine with identical facades on both thoroughfares. A law firm has acquired one entire floor and a nationally known concern has practically concluded negotiations for two floors, according to Weisels, whose company has the management of the building. There are approximately 7000 square feet on each floor which may be leased as a whole or in part.

The building will be 12 stories high and will conform to the design of the Missouri Pacific Building. It is being erected by the Plaza-Olive Investment Co., of which Benjamin G. Brinkman is president, A. M. Frumberg, vice president, Henry R. Weisels, treasurer, and W. J. Holbrook, second vice president. Weisels and Holbrook were the promoters of the project. Preston J. Bradshaw, architect, drew the plans.

Olive Street Deal Closed.

Final papers have passed in the sale of the property at 4431-41 Olive street, purchased recently by Albert F. Epstein through the Singer-Klein Real Estate Co. The lot has a frontage of 100 feet with a depth of 155 feet. It is occupied by a two-story building containing six stores and a hotel on the second floor, with four apartments. Annual rentals of the building total $14,000.

80 HOMES IN BEL-NOR, KNICKMEYER-FLEER PROJECT

The combined cost of homes and improvements in Bel-Nor now exceeds $1,500,000. Bel-Nor has 80 homes averaging $15,000 each and more than five miles of improved property, most of which has been sold to prospective home owners. During the last year 21 new homes have been built and six others will be started this fall.

Grading and installation of sewers in the new section are about half completed. The building of streets will start within a week or 10 days. The improvement of this section is being financed by the Knickmeyer-Fleer Realty & Investment Co., general sales agents for Bel-Nor.

This subdivision is situated between Bellerive and Normandie Country Clubs, at 8158 Natural Bridge road.

NEW SEPTEMBER CONTRACT RECORD FOR 37 STATES

Total of $587,674,000 of Construction Awards for Territory East of Rocky Mountains.

September construction contracts in the territory east of the Rocky Mountains reached a total of $587,674,000, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. The area covered in this record consists of 37 states and includes approximately 91 per cent of the total construction in the United States. The total of contracts awarded was the highest September contract total on record. It was 13 per cent ahead of the total for the same month of last year and 14 per cent ahead of August, 1928.

The September record brought the total amount of new building and engineering work since the first of the year up to $5,132,944,100, representing an increase of 7 per cent over the corresponding period for 1927.

An analysis of the September building record showed the following outstanding items: $202,806,900, or 35 per cent of the total for residential construction; $119,013,600, or 20 per cent, for public works and public utilities; $111,780,300, or 19 per cent, for industrial buildings; $60,068,000, or 10 per cent, for commercial buildings; $38,800,500, or 7 per cent, for educational buildings; and $23,845,700, or 4 per cent, for hospitals and institutions.

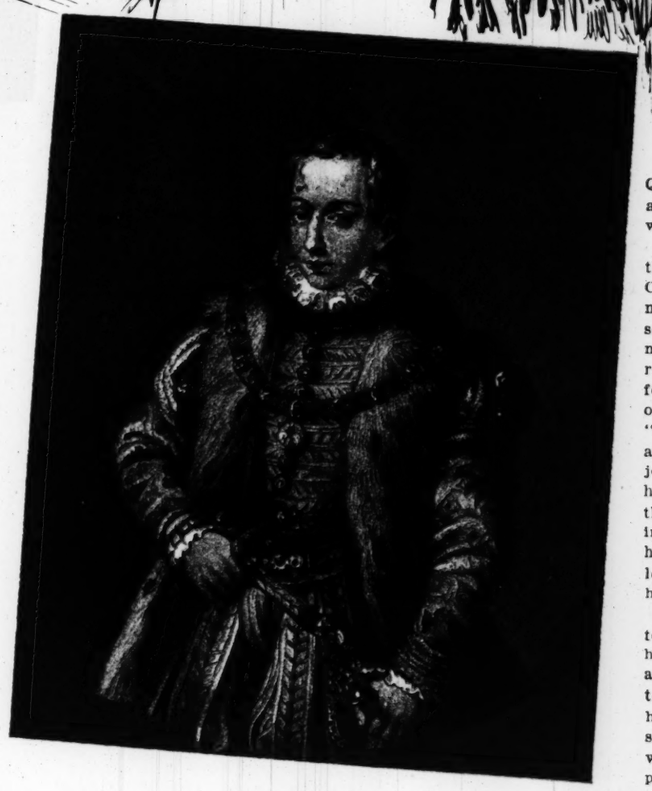
SEEKING TO TRY PHILIP II FOR 360-YEAR-OLD CRIMES

Noted Madrid Historian Wants Bodies of Don Carlos and Queen Isabella Examined by French Poison Expert.

Philip II, King of Spain.



Don Carlos.

Prof. Kohn-Abrest of Paris.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

MADRID.

CHARGES of murder, 360 years old, have been brought up against King Philip II of Spain by the Spanish Royal Academy of History, which is devoting the year to a study of the strange relations between King Philip, "the Prudent," his ill-fated and decidedly imprudent son, Don Carlos, and his lovely and possibly imprudent Queen, Isabella.

The academy contemplates bringing the long-dead monarch to book this autumn, before the test tubes and microscopes of modern science, for poisoning his wife and son. It plans to have the bodies of the Queen and her stepson—who originally was her fiance—exhumed and examined by a noted poison expert, just as though the deaths had occurred last week and this were an ordinary investigation for the Coroner. This is quite in line with the vogue for re-examining history in the light of modern means of investigation, particularly criminal investigation. Joan of Arc thus has been vindicated of the charges which sent her to the stake; half the great names of history have been cleared or re-indicted, and it is reported that Socrates is to be granted a new trial by the Greek Supreme Court.

Isabella, born Elizabeth of Valois, daughter of the formidable Catherine de Medicis, was betrothed to Carlos in the preliminaries of the treaty of Cateau-Cambresis, but his father became a widower before the treaty was completed and took the charming Isabella to himself. She came to the court of Spain in 1560. She was 15 and beautiful; Carlos was 14 and lonely, brilliant of mind but warped of body and thwarted at every turn. Her name headed a secret list of friends kept by Don Carlos; King Philip headed a list of enemies whom he proposed to "eliminate" after the quaint but frequently effective fashion of the day.

DON CARLOS died mysteriously in 1569, a captive of his father, a few weeks after Philip had found the list. Within three months Queen Isabella also was dead. And the somber, unscrupulous nature of Philip the Prudent made it look like something more than coincidence, for, said Cabrero, Spanish historian, "His dagger followed close upon his smile."

The historical argument began even before Don Carlos met his end: half the courtiers in Europe wondered whether the Spanish King was going to poison his son, now that he had such an excellent chance. It was doubled when Isabella died, and trebled when, within two years, Philip II chose for his fourth wife Anne of Austria, who, like Isabella, had been Don Carlos' "intended." It has been woven into many books and plays, including Schiller's "Don Carlos." It has failed to abate in 360 years, and the Spanish historians have about enough of it.

"It seems to me that the time has come for our body to clear up this alleged murder mystery once and for all," declared Senor Elias Tormo, distinguished Madrid historian, at the recent meeting of the academy. "If the King were really alive he would have the right to demand an investigation into the affair, in order to clear his character. Even though he is dead, he has just as much right to profit by such an investigation.

"I therefore propose that the body of Don Carlos, and even that of Queen Isabella as well, be handed over to Professor Kohn-Abrest of Paris, who was the expert in the Landru and Lowenstein cases, or to some other noted toxicologist, with instruction to examine them for traces of poison.

"If the expert finds poison there will be no question of Philip the Second's guilt; if he finds nothing, we can give the King the benefit of the doubt."

The lapse of time should prove no obstacle to the discovery of a mineral poison, said Professor Kohn-Abrest, who is director of the municipal toxicological laboratory in Paris, when consulted by the writer.

"A FEW years ago," he said, "I examined a 4000-year-old Egyptian mummy. In the case of Don Carlos the success of the anlysis depends chiefly on the state of the remains. If he was buried in a leaden casket, and if he was really embalmed, as I understand, this will open up a wide field for investigation. Provided he was killed by a mineral poison we would certainly be able to find and identify it."

Professor Kohn-Abrest declared that there was no possibility of finding an organic poison like strychnine or hemlock in the Prince's remains, as traces of these substances would quickly disintegrate into the atmosphere. Besides, they had their vogue in the thirteenth century and have more or less gone out of fashion since then.

Arsenic would be what he would expect to find, from his knowledge of the methods whereby sixteenth century wives or husbands solved their domestic problems. The Borgias preferred corrosive sublimate for their famous dinner parties, but the common run of poisons, the sort used by the ordinary crude workman with no real creative genius, were arsenical. Old Spanish and Italian books are full of warnings against eating anything flavored with vinegar or onions, since they were used to disguise the taste of the poisons.

Some of the real achievements of the poisoner's art, also, were arsenical. They included the notorious "Aqua Tofana," or "Acquetta di Napoli," an invention of the aimiable widow Tofana, said to have killed 600 persons, including Popes Pius III and Clement XIV. It was the death froth of a pig which had been dosed with arsenic. The "cantrella," favorite poison of Cesare Borgia, was the foam of a pig made mad by being suspended head downward, and then beaten to death. Another favorite of sweet young things in Naples was extracted from dried pork, powdered with arsenic.

With all these to choose from, and in the days before divorce and alimony had supplanted the more direct method of a little poison and outright seizure of the deceased's estates, it appears that King Philip would not remain long at a loss to end the love affair of Carlos and Isabella, if love affair it was. At any rate, pending the verdict of Professor Kohn-Abrest there is ample and interesting room for speculation.

THERE is a great deal of doubt that Queen Isabella was attracted by Don Carlos, but little that the unfortunate and unruly boy was strongly attracted to her, and bitterly disappointed when he saw her married off to his gray-haired father. And there is considerable evidence that, whatever her attitude, he was not the sort to stand on any ceremony. About two years after the marriage the courts of Europe were set buzzing with the news that the heir apparent of the greatest empire of them all was in danger of death from a skull fracture. He had fallen on the stairway when creeping down to pay a midnight visit to the gardener's daughter. He used to gather a group of lordlings and run wild on the streets of Madrid, poking at tradesmen with the sword and hurling insults at pretty girls and pompous grandmammas.

Boots were large in those days, but Carlos had his made larger to accommodate a pair of pistols. Philip heard of it and ordered them made smaller. When the bootmaker brought them in, Carlos gave him a beating, had the leather cut into strips and stewed and forced the tradesman to eat it.

He asked a merchant named Grimaldo to advance him 1500 ducats. "All I have is at your disposal," bowed the money lender. Carlos took him at his word and made it 100,000 ducats.

"You will ruin me," said the astounded Grimaldo; "what I said was only in the way of compliment."

"You have no right to bandy compliments with Princes," retorted Carlos, and let him off at 60,000.

Another of these little whimsies was, probably, to cost him much a few years late. President Espinosa of the Council of Castile banished from the castle a player who was to have performed for the Prince. Carlos seized him by the throat, laid a hand on his poniard and exclaimed: "You scurvy priest, do you dare prevent Cisneros from playing before me? By the life of my father, I will kill you!"

TO MAKE the threat without executing it was a tactical error. Espinosa, later Cardinal Espinosa, became Grand Inquisitor and presided over the commission of three at the secret trial of Don Carlos.

Only a former tutor and the beautiful and engaging Queen seem to have found a more attractive side in the tempestuous Prince. The Bishop of Limoges wrote in a letter that Queen Isabella "gave the Prince so gracious and affectionate a reception that it afforded singular contentment to the King, and yet more to Carlos, as appeared by his frequent visits to the Queen—as frequent as the etiquette of a court much stiffer than that of Paris would permit."

The next month the Bishop wrote that the Queen endeavored to amuse Carlos with such innocent games as might cheer the young Prince, who seemed to be wasting away under his malady. A member of Isabella's train reported to Catherine de Medicis the following year that the Queen was often joined at supper by Don Carlos, "who loves the Queen singularly well, and, as I suspect, would have no objection to be more nearly related to her." And a French historian asserted that Carlos, "after long conversations in the Queen's apartment, was often heard, as he came out, to complain loudly of his father's having robbed him of her."

Did Isabella feel some attraction to the Prince? Stranger things have happened. The Prince was wan and sickly; he suffered from intermittent fever; one shoulder was higher than the other, and one leg was shorter than the other. His personality was turgid, wild and erratic; he was passionately ambitious; intense, indeed, in everything; but he was, at times, eerily brilliant; generous—also at times—to the point of prodigality.

LORD Byron's lameness and his reputation were called as attractive to women as his poetry and his looks; it may be that Carlos' faults were as fascinating to women as his nearly nonexistent good points. Isabella was instructed to "cultivate" Don Carlos, with a view to marrying him to her sister, but some historians and a great many playwrights and novelists have indicated that her interest went farther than that.

At any rate, she was vastly distressed by his arrest and the fact that she, like everyone else, was forbidden to visit him. Carlos had decided to leave the country, writing a number of letters, for delivery after his departure, explaining that he left because of harsh treatment by his father. He had been denied an appointment to Flanders, where revolution was under way—in fact, had threatened to kill the man sent in his place. And he threatened to kill his father.

He ordered eight horses to be in readiness at the palace that evening—Jan. 18, 1568. At 11 o'clock the King, helmeted and in full armor, crept down the stairs with Feria, Captain of the guard, four or five other lords, and a dozen privates. The Duke of Feria stole to the head of Don Carlos' bed and seized the musket, sword and dagger which Carlos never slept without; already, by order of the King, a mechanic had disabled a system of pulleys whereby the Prince could open or close the door from his bed. Carlos started up and reached for his weapons. The King stood before him.

"What does your majesty want of me?" he asked.

"You will soon learn," was the ominous reply. And from that hour Don Carlos was as completely out of the world as though Feria had plunged the dagger through his heart.

PHILIP took Don Carlos' coffer of private papers. Among them were the letters, the list of friends headed by Isabella, the list of enemies headed by Philip. The prudent ruler let it be understood, though he made no forthright explanation, that Don Carlos was mad and had to be imprisoned for the good of the empire; some historians consider that a medieval brand of applesauce, and argue that Philip imprisoned his son, if he did not cause his murder, out of jealousy of his ambitions, if not of his attentions to Isabella.

Philip ignored the tumult of suspicion, rife throughout Europe. When his brother wore mourning to court, because of the imprisonment, he coldly bade him change his clothes; when great towns prepared messages of condolence, he showed such displeasure that they abandoned the idea, and when Don Carlos went on a hunger strike and his physician feared he would die, Philip replied: "He'll eat when he gets hungry."

Don Carlos broke his fast with a pastry of four partridges. To allay his fever he drank snow water, slept with a warming pan filled with ice, covered the floor with water and paddled about on the cold pavement, barefooted and half-undressed. Some of the historians who doubt that he was poisoned believe his guards were instructed to give his excesses free rein, so that poison would not be necessary.

WITH poison or without, he died. He returned to the church, of which he had grown careless during his imprisonment, forgave his father and his judges, even Grand Inquisitor Espinosa, whom he had treated so rudely a few years previously. His father came to the deathbed, made the sign of the cross and gave him the parting benedition to complete this touching picture of affection between father and son.

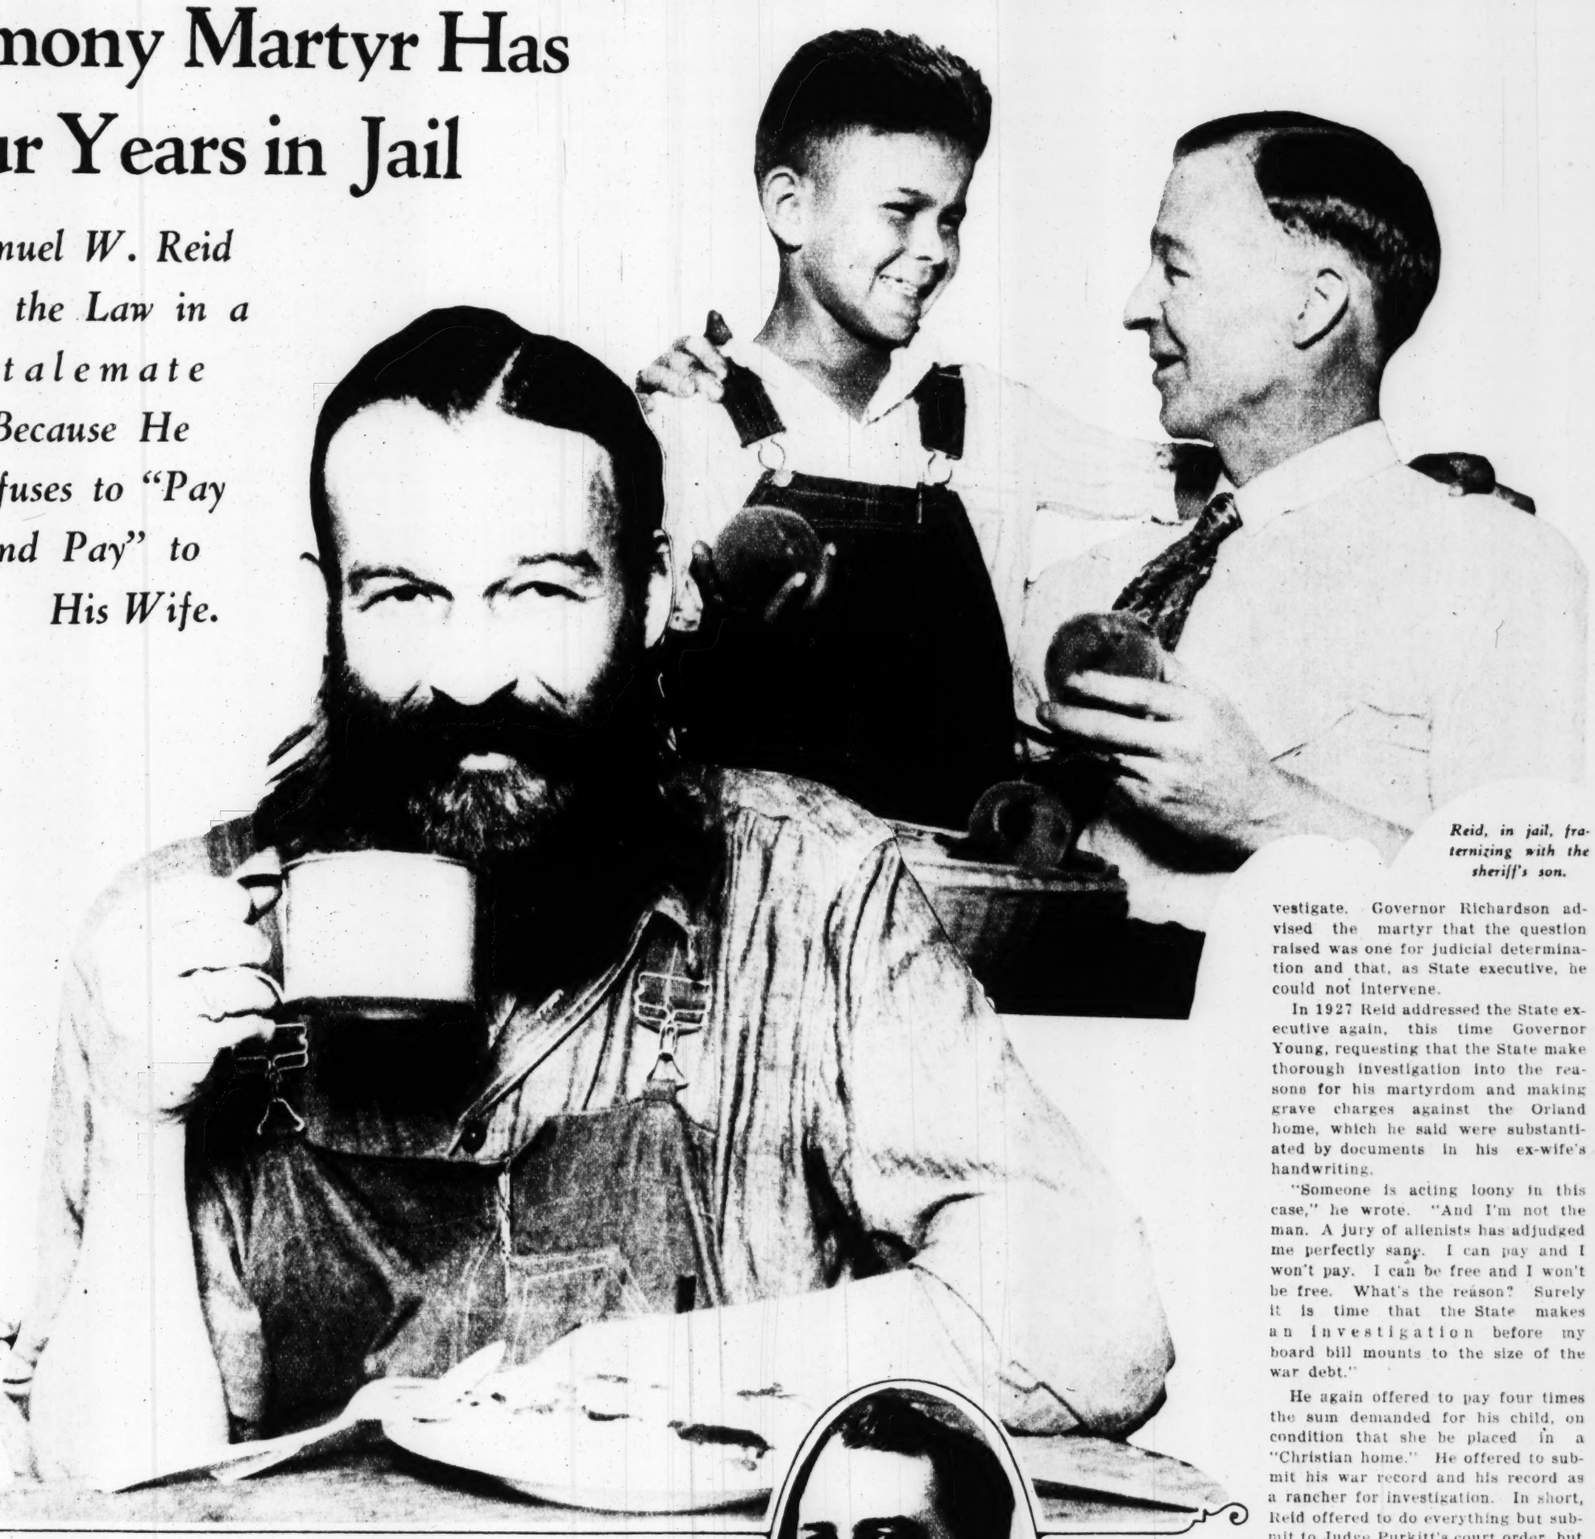
Three months later the Queen died. The physicians, it was said, had given her the wrong medicines. Like all Spain, Philip mourned.

"His dagger followed close upon his smile," wrote Cabrera; "hence some called him wise, others severe."

Why the Alimony Martyr Has Spent Four Years in Jail

Samuel W. Reid and the Law in a Stalemate Because He Refuses to "Pay and Pay" to His Wife.

Zada May Reid, daughter of Samuel Reid, over whom the alimony battle has raged.



Reid, in jail, fraternizing with the sheriff's son.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SAN FRANCISCO, California.

WHEN Samuel W. Reid, trim, young and prosperous rancher of Glenn County, California, went to jail in contempt of court, in 1925, for refusal to pay alimony to his wife, he did not know he was to become a national figure nor that his strange defiance of what he calls "legalized blackmail" might bear fruit in a modification of the California State laws.

"It's not the money," Reid insists, "although I'll never pay. It's the principle. I may be here for life. What of it? I'm the first martyr in a great cause."

And Glenn County officials look gloomily at each other and count up the cost of Reid's four-year board bill in jail.

Astonishing things have come of the young World War veteran's stand. Leaning over the jail's galvanized iron washtub to do his laundry, assisting Sheriff Roy Heard as "handy man" about the jail, making and mending toys for the children who come peering into the shadows of his self-imposed incarceration—Reid has a small daughter of his own, the crux of the whole marital mixup—Reid was unaware of what powerful assistance his lone stand in the little California hill town was to bring him. In the four years of his sentence these things have come to pass:

1. The Alimony Payers' Association of New York has asked the California Legislature to mediate on his behalf.

2. Two Governors of California have been appealed to and have confessed themselves legally unable to act in the case.

3. Lawyers have become aroused to discuss a limit on sentences for contempt of court.

4. Reid has become an embarrassment to his county. The very Judge who sentenced him has striven to have him released.

5. Reid has received floods of letters and telegrams from alimony sufferers who have not the courage of his convictions but watch his fight with the utmost interest.

6. And he has been offered a vaudeville contract if he ever gets out!

But is no small "if." Legal talent all over the country has been debating whether a man can be kept in jail for life on such a charge—as contempt of court. It may come under the ban on "cruel and unusual punishment."

One attorney has stated: "Reid is virtually in debtor's prison. He owes a sum of money which he doesn't pay . . . hence he is imprisoned. This is against the fundamentals of our judicial system."

In his present condition Reid is likely to serve a longer term than most felons. The life sentence, reserved for murderers, may possibly become his.

In 1917, while Sam Reid was overseas with the 363d Infantry, Phoebe Brownell of Orland, California, eloped with Walter Steuben, who had been employed on her father's ranch.

Four years later she sued for divorce on grounds of nonsupport. Steuben took himself to the ranch home of the Brownells outside of Orland, and there, broken up over his marital disaster, shot himself through the body. He was taken into the home of his wife's parents and nursed back to health, but meanwhile Phoebe Steuben obtained her divorce and was free.

THREE years afterward she met Samuel Reid, home from the war and again in the business of civil life. He was young, good-looking and prosperous. At a fashionable wedding in the St. Francis Hotel, a great gray pile that overlooks San Francisco's smartest hotel district, the two were married. Sam Reid and Phoebe, his wife, felt that the stresses of life were over.

This joyful belief lasted a whole year. In that time they had a child, called Zada May, for whom Sam Reid was to spend some of the most vigorous years of his manhood in jail. Phoebe Reid sued for divorce on grounds of extreme cruelty. Reid countered with a charge that his wife was an addict of narcotics. The divorce was granted to the wife and the child given into her custody. Samuel Reid was ordered by the Court to pay $20 for the support of his child each month, and $20 monthly alimony to his wife.

It was in February, 1925, that Superior Judge Claude F. Purkitt of Glenn County ordered Reid to pay these sums. Reid refused, saying that his ex-wife was unable to provide a fit home for his child; he would not contribute to the support of either until the child was placed in a "good Christian home."

Samuel W. Reid in his bearded state.

Judge Purkitt remained adamant. On July 27, 1925, Sam Reid entered Glenn County Jail for contempt of court. He has remained there ever since.

Phoebe Reid has remarried her first husband, Walter Steuben. Only 15 miles way from the jail where Reid maintains his stubborn stand, the Steubens live in a neat, pleasant bungalow with a wide, tree-dotted lawn, on which Zada May tumbles with the other children of the neighborhood.

"You may judge for yourself the kind of home the child has," says Mrs. Steuben, and adds that she is "not interested" in the stand her ex-spouse has taken—except as it effects her child.

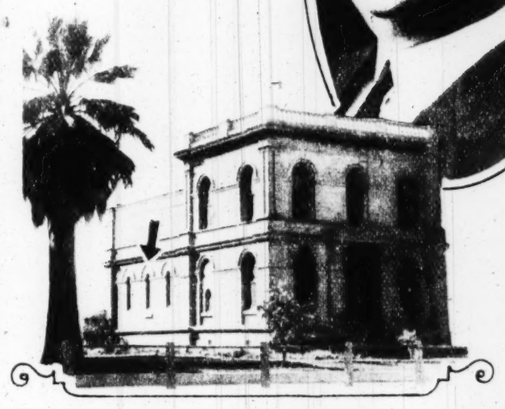
"If he is holding out for a principle, well, so am I," she has declared. "That's all there is to it. I feel it is his moral obligation to pay a certain nominal sum to his child as long as he is able. This is my belief, and I'll stand by it."

"Pay it? Certainly not!" Reid replies. "I have the money in the bank and I'm able to pay, but I will not. I have been persecuted by my ex-wife because I refuse to help support her and her present husband."

"Compromise?" says Mrs. Steuben. "I have never given the matter a thought. He has made no advances. The law has acted. The entire question lies not with me, but with Mr. Reid and the court which has placed him where he is. There is nothing I could do if I wished."

And Reid retorts: "A father is entitled to some voice in the upbringing of his child. Certainly I did not bring a child of mine into the world to go into such a home. A baby's place is with its mother, beyond doubt, if the mother's home is proper. It's not that I'm trying to take the baby from its mother. I'm fighting to take her away from such a home as her mother provides."

Judge Claude F. Purkitt.



The Glenn County Jail at Willow's, Cal.

In the first 16 months of his incarceration, Reid refused to cut his hair or beard, allowing them to grow into an auburn thicket about his face and shoulders. So strange was his appearance that Judge Purkitt, the man who had sentenced him, believed it the first sign of approaching insanity. He had urged Reid to clear himself by paying the alimony and then to apply for a modification of the decree.

But Reid would not budge.

"I have the money and can pay," he told the Judge, "but I will not do so. My case alone is not at stake. The whole alimony system is wrong. I propose to do what I can to right it."

JUDGE PURKITT asked the grand jury to investigate Reid's sanity.

"Reid is defying constituted authority," said the Judge. "But there is no excuse for him to remain longer in jail."

The grand jury found that before a man can be examined for his sanity a complaint must be filed against him. John Thomas, chairman of the jury, filed the complaint and Sam Reid was brought before four doctors.

Glenn County and the town of Willows, where the jail is, had grown accustomed to the hairy visage of the alimony martyr. What was their surprise when into court walked a neatly barbered, well-set-up young man, a little more than 30, quick of step and keen of eye, ready to meet any questions they might hurl at him.

The examination was short and pointed. The unanimous agreement was that Reid was sane.

Sheriff Heard, in whose custody the man has been, took the stand for him.

"He's as sane as anyone," the officer told them. "And he's a fine man. A square shooter."

So Sam Reid was sent back to jail. He looked out dismally at a carved figure of Justice, which he could see from his barred window.

"Justice is lopsided," he commented. "One of the scales is lower than the other.

"I have never refused to support my child. I believe that the alimony laws are right enough, but the fault lies in the application of them. I have offered repeatedly to give $90, and even $100, monthly for the support of my child, but I will not do it while she is in the sort of home provided by her mother."

Reid has offered in his pleas to the Governors to make such provision for Zada May, provided his terms are met. In his letter to Gov. Richardson in 1926, Reid wrote:

"I have never at any time refused to support my baby when the child is placed in proper care. I want my baby placed in a Christian home, with my parents or with my sister, or in any Christian home.

"I am not asking you to get me out of jail or to do anything for me personally. I went overseas with the Ninety-first Division and fought for a principle and I will die fighting for a principle."

As to his sanity, he wrote:

"I was before the grand jury as to my insanity and their verdict was I had more sense than two-thirds of the grand jurors, but that is nothing to brag about."

Governor Richardson referred the matter to Robert H. Braden, chairman of the State Department of Public Welfare, who reported that his department was without legal power to investigate. Governor Richardson advised the martyr that the question raised was one for judicial determination and that, as State executive, he could not intervene.

In 1927 Reid addressed the State executive again, this time Governor Young, requesting that the State make thorough investigation into the reasons for his martyrdom and making grave charges against the Orland home, which he said were substantiated by documents in his ex-wife's handwriting.

"Someone is acting loony in this case," he wrote. "And I'm not the man. A jury of alienists has adjudged me perfectly sane. I can pay and I won't pay. I can be free and I won't be free. What's the reason? Surely it is time that the State makes an investigation before my board bill mounts to the size of the war debt."

He again offered to pay four times the sum demanded for his child, on condition that she be placed in a "Christian home." He offered to submit his war record and his record as a rancher for investigation. In short, Reid offered to do everything but submit to Judge Purkitt's court order, but Gov. Young refused to take up the case.

Then Reid filed suit for $15,000 damages against John Thomas, foreman of the grand jury before whom he appeared for sanity investigation. He charged that his reputation had suffered damage by Thomas' swearing complaint on a charge of insanity against him. The case was nonsuited, and once again Reid retired discomfited.

And so life goes on in jail for the alimony martyr.

A bunch of children with legless dolls and a broken-wheeled red wagon show up and ask for "Sam." He looks out at them eagerly and tells them to wait, "he'll fix it."

"Don't think I enjoy being in jail," he says earnestly. "I'd be out in a minute if they'd take my baby from that home. As long as she stays there, I stay here. Certainly neither Zada nor I would gain a thing if I were to pay up now. I expected to go to jail when I refused to obey that court order and I expect to stay until things are changed, even if it means a life sentence."

A MAN down a corridor moans, a prisoner who has attempted to kill himself and whose nurse the alimony martyr has become. Reid starts up toward him and then stops, smiling a little wryly.

"I will not pay, not if I stay here till hell freezes over," is the gist of his remarks. "I have room free, meals free, nothing to worry about. Glenn County is my patron."

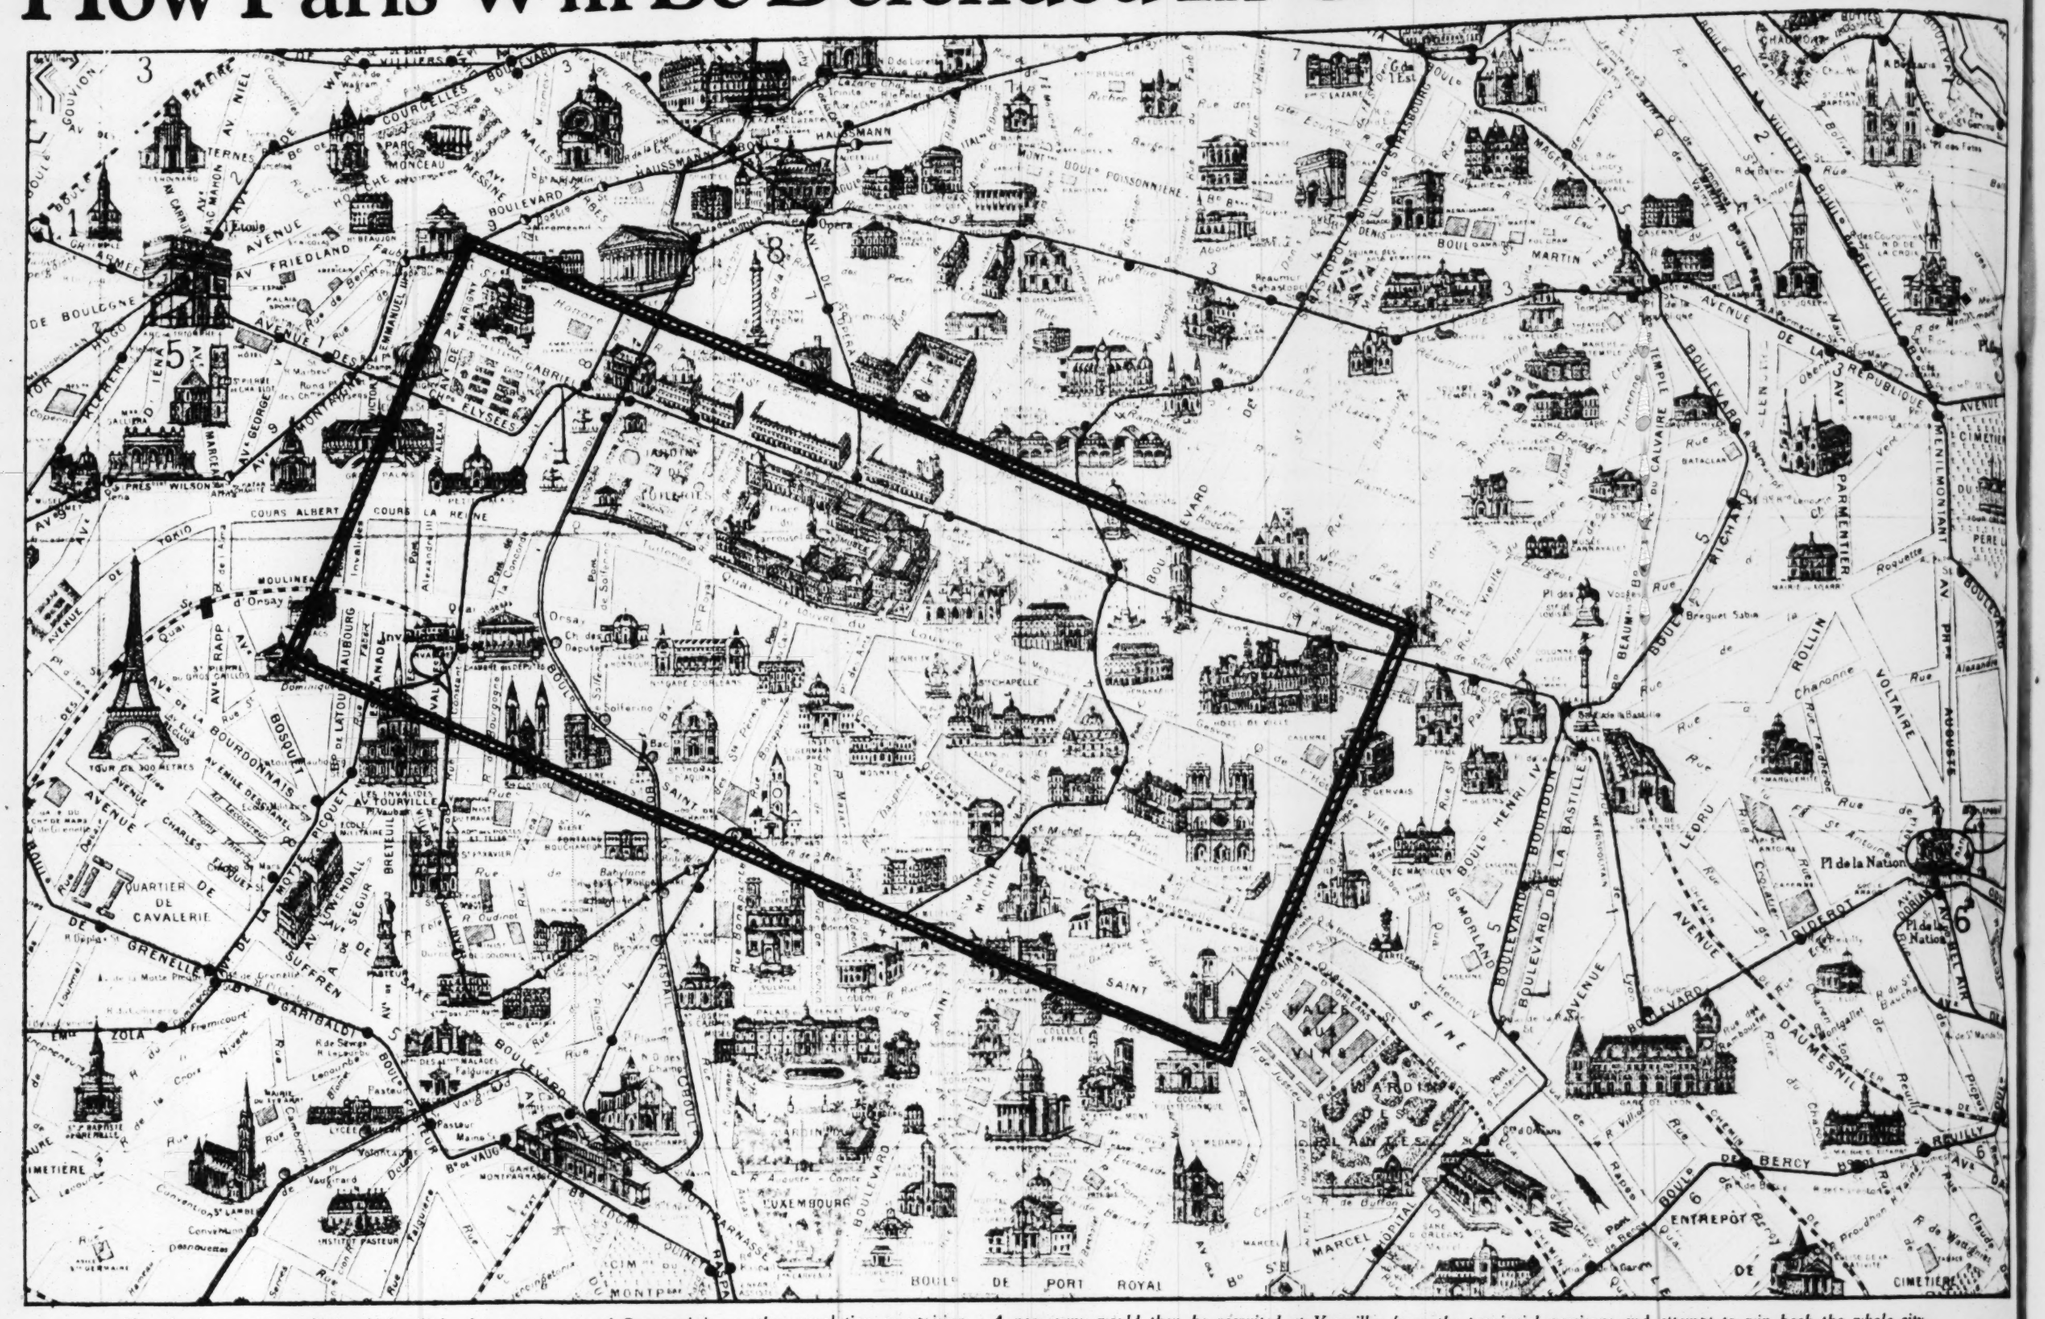
But it isn't funny to Glenn County. Reid himself has figured up that it has cost the county $1476.20 to keep him so far. He would have paid $3960 for the support of his child had his conditions been met.

"He's been in jail almost four years now," grumble county officials, to whom his presence has become a political issue. "You can't tell how much longer he'll stay, either. The county is paying for his keep.

"If Sam Reid would walk out of the county jail nobody would take the trouble to follow him across the county line."

But Sam says no. He wouldn't leave if the jail burned down. He won't leave till he gets legal release and the tacit admission that he's been right all along. And Judge Purkitt says he'll be a long time getting that.

How Paris Will Be Defended In Case of Revolution



Map showing section of Paris which will be defended in case of Communistic or other revolution or uprising. A new army would then be recruited at Versailles from the provincial garrisons and attempt to win back the whole city.

Recently Published Plan, Which Calls for Abandoning All of the City Except a Small Block Containing the Bank of France, Arouses Indignation.

PARIS, France.

A TREMENDOUS sensation was caused here recently by the revelation that the general staff of the French Army has decided to abandon the greater part of Paris in case of grave revolutionary outbreaks at any time in the future.

Under its plan, officially known as Plan Z, the Paris garrison, aided by police forces, would merely attempt to hold a small "island" in the heart of the capital, embracing the Elysee Palace, the ministries and the Bank of France, and virtually surrender the rest of the city, including the rich Champs Elysees, Monceau, Auteuil and Passy quarters. At the same time the War Minister would assemble an army at Versailles, composed of provincial garrisons, and then march against the city, taking whatever means necessary to capture it. The military air force would co-operate with this army in attacking Paris.

This astonishing revelation was made in the current issue of a serious monthly review, La Revue des Vivants, whose editor is Henry de Jouvenel, former editor-in-chief of Le Matin, former French delegate to the League of Nations, now a member of the Senate, and one of the best-informed political men in France.

The people of France are not only shocked at the idea of most of their city being left in the hands of revolutionists—meaning communists to them—but that the General Staff even considered serious outbreaks as a remote possibility.

"A council (apparently the Council of National Defense), presided over by one of our Marshals, met here at the end of June to decide what measures to take in case of outbreaks in Paris," the review explains in this article.

"IF THE Prefect of Police was present, the military element naturally dominated the meeting. It is well known that when riots assume grave proportions, and get beyond the control of the police, the responsibility of re-establishing order falls on the military command, which takes control of operations. There was a divergency of views between the General Staff of the army and General Gouraud, Military Governor of Paris, who was supported by Monsieur Chiappe, Prefect of Police. The latter two supported the plan of establishing throughout the entire city and immediate suburbs strong points of resistance held by infantry, and these supported by powerful mobile columns of tanks, cavalry and armored cars maneuvering around them, as well as protection for the principal communication centers.

"But the General Staff of the army had conceived and followed another plan known as the Z plan. In brief, it consisted of defending, in case of serious troubles, only the 'island' embracing the Elysee Palace and the ministries; the abandonment of the rest of the city to the revolutionists; the organization of an army at Versailles composed of provincial garrisons, and then the march on Paris.

"This Z plan of the General Staff is based on a study of all French history, from Charles V (1364) to Thiers (1875) which seems to show that Paris cannot defend itself from inside, but must save itself from the outside.

"THERE is such a slight prospect of the Government indorsing a plan that would hand over to the revolutionists the banks, the newspapers, the lighting plants and the communications that we would not even have mentioned it if the General Staff had not commenced the application of its plan before the Cabinet had been informed.

"However, in accordance with this Z plan a number of military organizations are to be dissolved shortly and the Paris garrison, which has already been reduced from the 1914 figures of 29 infantry battalions and 20 squadrons of cavalry to 11 battalions and 12 squadrons, is now to be reduced to 8 battalions and 8 squadrons.

"A second meeting of the council was held in August, at which Monsieur Chiappe protested more than before, but this time General Gouraud remained neutral."

The Revue des Vivants implies that, as the result of this second council meeting the Z plan is now the General Staff's fixed policy as regards a future revolution in Paris, unless the Cabinet intervenes, but whether any French Government has sufficient authority to overrule the military on this point is uncertain.

The Review adds that there is no doubt but that the French communists are organizing in a military manner, and that their objective is to capture the capital by armed uprising.

The Strange Tale of How Monsieur Gaillard's Dinner Turned to Leather.

LYONS, France.

ONE SUNDAY evening, in January of this year, Monsieur Georges Gaillard, aged 33, a shoe dealer by profession but an amateur hypnotist, returned home with his wife after a walk and announced that, since she was tired, he was going to cook supper.

He might have known something would happen after a masculine boast of that sort, but he didn't. He stalked boldly into the kitchen, lit the gas stove and put a skillet over the flame. Then he picked up two mutton chops —and those chops have made local history.

To his thinking, the skillet was not quite hot enough, and so he held the chops for a minute. And then it happened. M'sieu Georges started back, his eyes bulging in a wild stare at two shriveled slivers of leather which he had picked up a moment before as that many fresh, excellent, juicy chops of mutton. In his hand they had become dry, mummified. He could scarcely have put a dent in them with a hammer.

In disgust he threw them into the skillet, but they were impervious to heat. To attempt to chew them was foolhardy; to digest them impossible. But out of curiosity he kept them, and, to this day, time, heat, fame and the vicissitudes of frequent handling—they have become virtual "museum pieces" in Lyons—have not altered them in the slightest.

The next day Gaillard went to relate his strange experience to Dr. Edmond Locard, the noted director of the police technical laboratory, and other distinguished savants of Lyons. In their presence he performed even more extraordinary feats. He has repeated these exploits at various times since then.

By simply touching or passing his hands he instantly mummified a beefsteak that had just come from a butcher shop; a fish, a pigeon, a rat. He dried up oranges and bananas so that only the skin and tissue remained. By the same process he dried up the sprouts on potatoes and stopped the germination of vegetable seeds of all sorts. And more remarkable still, he embarked on healing human bodies and, according to many apparently reliable witnesses, he cured cancerous and non-cancerous tumors, suppurating wounds, cysts and other ailments, the theory being that he killed the microbes.

"I have witnessed Gaillard mummify various kinds of fresh meat, and these mummifications cannot be contested," Dr. Locard, who is an expert on trickeries of all sorts, told the writer. "I examined the meat before and after his mystic movements, and there was not the slightest trace of any of the chemicals used for preserving animal flesh. I simply cannot explain this mystery. The man apparently possesses a power that we scientists do not understand."

Monsieur Georges Gaillard.

As regards the reported healing of human bodies, Dr. Locard is equally puzzled.

"I know of persons whom Gaillard has apparently cured of dangerous maladies, but I cannot explain these cures," he said. "The details are very curious, but seem to be well substantiated."

A few days ago Monsieur Gaillard gave a demonstration of his powers in the laboratory of Dr. Richard, a noted Lyons savant, before a group of doctors and chemists. He walked up to a dish of lentil seeds that had commenced to sprout. He made a few passes and slowly the sprouts withered and dried up. He did the same with sprouting potatoes that he had never seen or touched before, and to several other kinds of germinating seeds. The witnesses were utterly astonished.

At the present time a remarkable anti-microbe test is being prepared for him. Dr. Rene Biot, director of the laboratory of the Hotel-Dieu Hospital of Lyons, is gathering specimens of a dozen of the most deadly microbes known to mankind. Gaillard will be taken into a room where these cultures are reposing in glass tubes, and he will be asked to exercise his powers against them. The microbes will then be examined under a microscope by all leading pathologists of Lyons, in the presence of many distinguished doctors and surgeons. The test is being awaited with the most intense interest, for if Gaillard is able to destroy the germs in the glass tubes it will probably mean that he can destroy them in the human body as well, and thereby heal sickness. This dramatic experiment will probably take place in the early part of October.

"I have always possessed a supernatural power that I never understood," said Monsieur Gaillard, who has an excellent reputation.

"When I was a boy at school I could heal other boys of pains, headaches and injuries by placing my hand on the affected spot. At the age of fifteen I realized that I had some sort of hypnotic influence, and began to study hypnotism, but soon dropped it. I forgot all about this until my curious adventure with the mutton chops in January. Then I began to make all sorts of experiments, during which I discovered that I could mummify any meat, fish or birds. I have often taken two birds or two fish, mummified one and not touched the other. The touched ones never showed signs of putrefaction, while the others always putrified in several days. I cannot explain the power or how I exercise it.

"IN THE spring of this year I began to experiment with sick people, and I found I could heal them by touching the affected spot or making a few passes over it. I have instantaneously healed tumors, stomach troubles and other ailments.

"I believe that my power kills the microbes, but that is just my idea. I might also say that I do not have much faith in hypnotism, and I don't believe that I heal through the latter. All I can say is that I seem to have much faith in my power, and this faith does the healing."

Gaillard has a large collection of mummified steaks, mutton chops, pork chops, fish and even eels at his home here, and he invites the whole world to come and examine them.

FOUND SLAIN BY A LONG ISLAND ROADSIDE

Was William L. D'Olier, Celebrated Sanitary Engineer, Put Away to Stop Him From Talking, or Did He Fire the Fatal Shot Himself?

NEW YORK.

ONE of the most baffling mysteries in the history of the New York Police Department has been precipitated by the death of William L. D'Olier, well-known sanitation engineer, who was found shot to death on a lonely road on Long Island on the morning of September 2. The means of death was made clear enough, for he had a bullet wound in his head and his hand rested on a revolver from which a bullet had been fired. But the baffling point is that authorities, after weeks of careful investigation, have been unable to decide whether it was a case of murder or suicide, and the mystery is heightened by the fact that equally strong sets of proofs have been adduced in support of both theories.

Solution of the mystery would, under ordinary circumstances, be only of relative importance, but this case is far from being attended by ordinary circumstances. D'Olier was regarded as an important witness in the forthcoming trial growing out of the $16,000,000 graft in sewer construction in the Borough of Queens. Maurice Connolly, former President of the Borough, who resigned under fire, and Frederick Seely, formerly Chief Engineer of the Queens Sewer Bureau, are the two officials who have been indicted for conspiracy to defraud the taxpayers of Queens.

THE Sanitation Corporation of New York City, of which D'Olier was president, installed much of the equipment in the two large sewage disposal systems in the construction of which enormous graft is said to have been obtained. D'Olier knew a lot about the manner in which contracts had been let. The Prosecuting Attorney was depending upon him for important information. Thus, if it can be established that his death was not suicide, there would remain strong indication that his death was related to the investigation of the sewer scandals.

To understand the situation one must go back some 10 months, when an attorney representing the taxpayers of the Borough of Queens, which is located on Long Island and is one of the five boroughs comprising Greater New York, brought charges of graft and declared that certain officials and contractors worked hand in hand to defraud the municipality. An investigation followed and important revelations were made. It seems that one John M. Phillips, a millionaire politician, had exclusive agency in Queens for a certain kind of patented sewer pipe. And it seems, further, that when Borough officials made advertisements for bids for work the specifications were so drawn up as practically to exclude the use of any pipe but Phillips'. This was done in spite of the fact that the City Charter forbids specifying the use of a patented article except when absolutely necessary. Having thus been assured a monopoly, Phillips then raised the price of his pipe to a figure far beyond what its use cost elsewhere. Contractors who refused to "play ball" with the sewer ring were, in one way or another, prevented from doing any work there. There were, in addition to the above, many other irregularities in the manner in which contracts were awarded, and in the course of the investigation, on March 14, D'Olier was summoned and questioned regarding the manner in which his engineering corporation had received contracts for the installation of several hundred thousand dollars' worth of equipment in the two sewer systems where graft was believed to have been most abundant. His disclosures were not made public, but they were believed important. Soon thereafter Borough President Connolly resigned, and on June 22 indictments were returned against him, Seely and Phillips. Ten days later Phillips died from acute alcoholism while visiting in Atlantic City, leaving his two alleged conspirators to face the criminal charges without him. The date of the trial of Seely and Connolly was set for late in September.

This was the situation when, at 6:20 on Sunday morning of September 2, two men, driving their automobile along a lonely road in Maspeth, Queens County, discovered the body of D'Olier lying by the road in front of Mount Zion Cemetery. They notified the police, who immediately concluded that it was a case of suicide. His valuables, consisting of $87, a gold watch and a ring, had not been disturbed, and the fingers of his right hand rested lightly upon the pistol from which the fatal shot had been fired. Investigation revealed other facts which tended to support the theory of suicide. The sanitation corporation of which he was president and which had been mentioned twice in the sewer investigation, was in financial difficulties. The financial secretary of the company informed the District Attorney that two judgments had recently been obtained against the corporation and that its liabilities were more than $60,000 in excess of its assets. Statements from the only two banks in which D'Olier was known to have accounts showed that there was only a balance of $142.07 in the account of the sanitation corporation and only $479.44 in D'Olier's personal account. It was also learned that in a few days would fall due a $500 premium on his life insurance policies which, according to the state of his bank account, he would not be able to meet. All in all, a strong case was made for the suicide theory.

But equally good reasons for doubting the suicide theory immediately began to assert themselves. The medical examiner who performed the autopsy stated that although there were slight powder burns about the wound, it had not been a contact wound, usual to suicides. When the body was found the head was resting on a large stone, and if D'Olier had shot himself and fallen, it was believed that his head would have been bruised. But no bruise was found. It did not seem likely that he had, in his death struggle, rolled over onto the stone, for the blood confined itself to the spot where his head rested when discovered. It was also observed that there was a very small quantity of blood found there, perhaps less than is usual in such cases, and this gave rise to the supposition that the man may have met his death elsewhere. The medical examiner, in his report to the District Attorney, stated that the autopsy might support a murder or suicide theory, but neither conclusively.

NO ONE opposed the suicide theory more strongly than Mrs. Lavina D'Olier, the dead man's wife. There had been no domestic difficulties. They lived in a large, comfortable house in Pelham Manor, Westchester. They had two young children and a third one was expected soon. She said that her husband had sufficient income, that he always provided well for his family and that he was cheerful about the future. She said she knew of no reason why he should commit suicide and added that she felt certain he would never have left her at this time without at least a note of farewell.

She said that her husband had left home Saturday morning, the day before his body was found, in good spirits. He had said that he had a luncheon enagement at the Hotel Plaza, in New York City, that he had to attend a conference that night in Queens in connection with the sewer investigation, and that he probably would not be home until some time the next day. When he left home he carried a brief case containing papers and wore a comparatively new gray suit of clothes. He even told his wife that he hoped she would have his favorite hot muffins for him when he returned.

It was next learned that D'Olier had luncheon that afternoon with Gilbert C. Waldrop, his attorney and business associate, at the Hotel Plaza, as he had told his wife he would. According to Waldrop, D'Olier left the hotel at 2:45 without naming his destination. "I know of no reason why D'Olier should have taken his life," Waldrop declared. Then the lawyer revealed that he and D'Olier were interested in a road-building enterprise in Kentucky which was to cost some $15,000,000, and which promised to be profitable. In fact, D'Olier was depending on this to re-establish the finances of his sanitation corporation. A few days after D'Olier's death the Kentucky Legislature rejected the road-building plan, but the important fact to be observed is that at the time of his death D'Olier had no inkling of this. In other words, on the day of his death D'Olier had no reason to be unduly worried about the state of his business and was in fact optimistic about the profitable Kentucky undertaking.

What D'Olier did after leaving Waldrop at the Plaza has not been discovered. It was learned, however, that later in the afternoon he made a long-distance telephone call to John C. Cramor of Louisville, Kentucky. Cramor was associated with Waldrop and D'Olier in the road-building plan and in another proposition they were considering, that of marketing a certain mechanical device for automobiles. Cramor said, however, that not a word was spoken about the Kentucky venture, the success of which seemed to be taken for granted. They discussed the other proposition and then D'Olier asked Cramor to be in New York Monday or Tuesday to discuss the business in more detail. Police have not yet been able to learn from what place D'Olier made the long-distance call.

D'Olier's next step was traced to the Graybar Building on Lexington avenue, where his sanitation corporation had offices. It was 7:10 p. m. when he got to the building, and since the building was officially closed at that hour he had to sign a register kept for that purpose. And here another element of mystery is added, for D'Olier, instead of signing his own name to the register, signed that of Gilbert Waldrop, his attorney! Handwriting experts have definitely established the fact that the signature is in D'Olier's hand. None of the attendants at the Graybar Building can recall whether D'Olier was accompanied or alone. And from this point on all efforts to trace D'Olier's movements have failed. It is known, however, that he changed clothes in his office on the tenth floor of the building, for when his body was found it was clothed in an old greenish suit, and the gray suit which he had worn when he left home and at his luncheon engagement was found hanging in a locker in his office. No one saw him leave the building. The office register, however, was signed.

BUT this time it was signed with D'Olier's name, but not in his handwriting. His time of departure was registered as 12:10. The second signature, however, is not believed to be as significant as might at first be thought, for it is believed that one of the attendants at the building later noticed that D'Olier had gone and signed his name to present a balanced record of visitors. This has not yet been established.

After he entered the Graybar Building at 7:10 D'Olier was not seen again until his body was found Sunday morning in Maspath, Long Island, far from his office and more than 15 miles from his home! How did he get there? His black mustache and goatee made his face an easy one to remember, yet no taxicab driver recalls having him for a passenger, much less taking him near Maspeth, Queens. The only public conveyance which runs within a reasonable distance of the place where his body was found stops running after 1:30 a. m., and none of the employes of the line recall having him for a passenger. How, then, did he get to the spot where his body was found? And if he did shoot himself there, why is it that the members of a band of gypsies encamped less than 200 yards away, did not hear the report of his pistol in that quiet section and at a comparatively noiseless time of the night?

There are several other important points remaining to be cleared up. Mrs. D'Olier states that the pistol found at his side was not his, or at least she had never seen it. His pistol, she said, was of a different and more modern model. The pistol she described as his was later found hanging in a holster in the locker of his office.

AT THE same time D'Olier's brother comes forward with a statement to the effect that he recalls seeing the antiquated revolver some 17 years ago, when he and the dead man were together on a farm. Another problem is presented by the brief case which D'Olier carried when he left home. It had papers in it, the exact nature of which no one seems to know. But the brief case has disappeared, and so has the bunch of keys which D'Olier always carried with him. When his safe deposit box was opened after his death it was found to contain nothing but a few blank envelopes and pieces of paper, appearing as if D'Olier had recently removed practically everything from it. Did he have important papers in his brief case which he had taken from his deposit box?

And now comes another important disclosure made by Waldrop and Edward Wallace, an oil man from Oklahoma and a friend of Waldrop's. Both men have told the District Attorney that in their presence one day during the week preceding the murder D'Olier declared that "somebody is going to be bumped off before this thing is over." By "this thing," they say, D'Olier referred to the sewer investigation. They furthermore add that D'Olier told them that he had recently been in conference with Connolly and Seely, the two men under indictment, and that he was to see them soon again for another conference. Connolly and Seely both deny that they have had any conferences with D'Olier. So far nothing has developed to prove that they are not telling the truth, and except for the statements of Wallace, Waldrop and D'Olier's wife there is no evidence to prove that there was a conference in Queens the night preceding the finding of D'Olier's body.

Such, then, is the present state of the D'Olier mystery. Was it suicide or was it murder? The New York police, for the reasons given above, are certain that it is a case of suicide. But the District Attorney, also choosing from the facts stated, is equally certain that D'Olier was murdered. Who is right?

The Man Who Was Too Clever

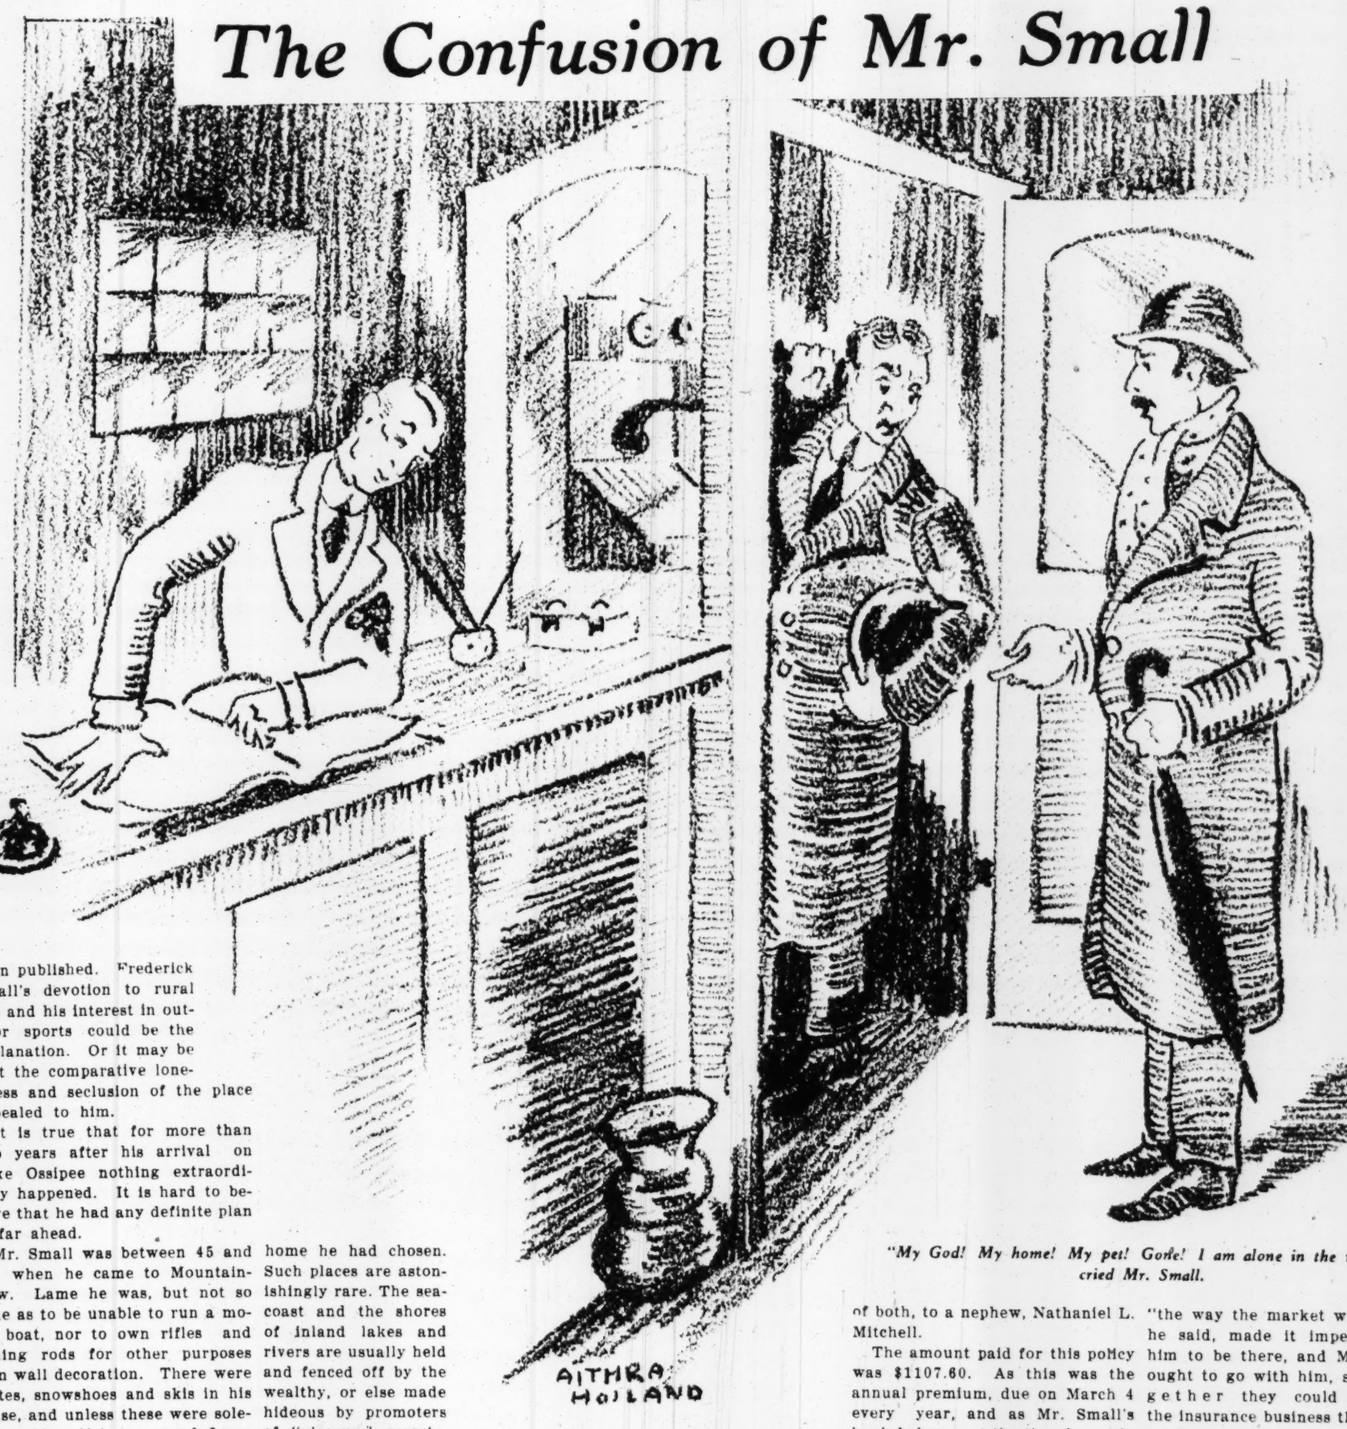
The Confusion of Mr. Small

THIS is the fourth article in Mr. Pearson's series on famous murders.

By EDMUND PEARSON



"My God! My home! My pet! Gone! I am alone in the world!" cried Mr. Small.

FREDERICK SMALL was a perpetually unlucky man. Not in the place of his birth—for who could choose a better city than Portland, Maine? Even the detractors of Longfellow must admit that it was a town of no ordinary charm which inspired "My Lost Youth." From first to last, Mr. Small had the faculty of living in pleasant places, but they seem to have done him little good.

In Portland he broke his leg—playing baseball, so he said—and also he failed in the grocery business. These things may have embittered his life; the accident in the baseball game, at all events, made him limp to his last day. His height, as a result of his lameness, seemed but little more than five feet.

He may have been 23 or 24 when, in 1890, he married Miss Nettie Davis of Minot. I assume that this is a pleasant place, for it is near Poland Springs. His married life was brief, and it ended sadly. His wife, after about a year, died in childbirth. The grocery business having failed, Mr. Small left Portland and went to Massachusetts.

The fragments of information which we have show that in Everett, in that State, in 1899, he married Miss Laura Patterson of Salem. I would not include Everett as one of the conspicuously beautiful towns in which he chose to dwell, but he did not stay there long. He and the new Mrs. Small roamed about, and lived at one time or another in Boston and in Somerville. For a while they lived at "the Bingham Farm" in Hudson, until there happened, in 1900, the first of another series of unlucky events. They were driven from the farm by a fire.

AFTER Hudson came the years in Boston and Somerville. Mr. Small was engaged in stock trading—speculating on the market, or so I take it; not dealing in cattle. It was this career, undoubtedly, that caused him to be described, in headlines, in his later days, as a "Boston broker." He was also, says a report, "well known as a checker player"—but we may be charitable and regard this as mere spiteful gossip.

The greater and national game, however, once more exercised a baleful influence on his life. In 1908 he brought suit against a former president of the Boston National baseball team. Arthur H. Soden was his name; the complaint against him that he had alienated the affections of Mrs. Small. The husband appraised his injuries at no paltry figure, but asked for $500,000. The suit attracted some attention.

Two years later, a Judge reduced the amount and set the damages to which he said Mr. Small was entitled at $10,000.

There was never a trial. A year or so later still a settlement was agreed upon at a figure never disclosed. Mr. Small was granted a divorce, and his former wife removed to New York.

Soon, Frederick Small is found advertising for a country home for an invalid—the nature of the illness does not appear—and his advertisement is answered. From Southboro, Massachusetts, or from a little village nearby called Fayville, came a reply from a family named Curry. Mr. Small went to Southboro, and decided to stay. He also entered upon his third and most disastrous marriage. In December, 1911, he was wedded to Miss Florence Arlene Curry—after an acquaintance of only 10 days. Miss Curry was 32; the bridegroom gave his age as 44.

Mr. Small and Mrs. Small, number three, remained in Southboro for a little more than two years. In May, 1914, they moved, for reasons which I cannot supply, to Mountainview, in New Hampshire. This is a tiny village on the south shore of Lake Ossipee.

The day after they left, a fire of unknown origin destroyed their Southboro home.

The reasons for this removal, a distince of a hundred or 200 miles, to the outskirts of an obscure village like Mountainview, have not been published. Frederick Small's devotion to rural life and his interest in outdoor sports could be the explanation. Or it may be that the comparative loneliness and seclusion of the place appealed to him.

It is true that for more than two years after his arrival on Lake Ossipee nothing extraordinary happened. It is hard to believe that he had any definite plan so far ahead.

Mr. Small was between 45 and 50 when he came to Mountainview. Lame he was, but not so lame as to be unable to run a motor boat, nor to own rifles and fishing rods for other purposes than wall decoration. There were skates, snowshoes and skis in his house, and unless these were solely for his wife's use—and I am pretty sure they were not—we may put aside the lameness as no great handicap to agreeable exercise.

An organ, a violin (valued at $200), a victrola, checkers and chessmen, among the furniture of his home, suggest that he had resources for the evenings. He even had books, worth $40—and this sum, if invested in the publications of Mr. Haldeman-Julius, means a fair library.

As for his defeats in business, it does not appear that he had, in the years in Mountainview, any important debts. He bought the cottage in which he lived, and insured it for $3000. His wife—so he said—had diamonds and other gems worth $6000. (I think he exaggerated. She did have a diamond ring.) He had a bank balance of nearly $5000. He kept a safety-deposit box in Boston, containing securities or valuables of one kind or another.

ALL this property, doubtless, would have seemed small potatoes to the men with whom he associated in his brokerage days in Boston. Yet many of Small's New Hampshire neighbors, country school teachers, tradesmen, parsons or physicians, with half of his pleasures and resources, would have thought themselves lucky if they faced the age of 50 with only one dependent and with capital as great as his.

In Mountainview his life was almost a continual holiday. He had a passion for machinery and enjoyed pecking at his motor boat with spanners and oil cans when he was not sailing her on the lake. His curious electrical apparatus, over which he bent for hours in his workshop, gave him satisfaction. The quiet existence of the woods and the lake was brightly relieved by an occasional trip to Boston: to look after his investments; to make a little deal on the market; to amuse himself with a moving picture or at a play.

There can be no doubt about the home he had chosen. Such places are astonishingly rare. The seacoast and the shores of inland lakes and rivers are usually held and fenced off by the wealthy, or else made hideous by promoters of "pleasure" resorts. But the clearing on the south shore of Lake Ossipee is unspoiled. The approach is by a thickly wooded road, a mile long, from the village of Mountainview. The woods are beautiful, alike in summer and when they are snowbound through the long winter.

THERE are seven or eight little cottages at the edge of the water, mostly hidden from one another in the trees. Thick woods behind the cottages; a narrow beach, and then the bright blue waters of a lake not less lovely than Windermere or Katrine. On the far sides of the lake, miles distant, a broken wall of hills. All this in the clear, cool air of Northern New Hampshire.

In the midst of this incredible peace and beauty moved little Frederick Small and his wife. Mrs. Small, by the way, was not little in stature; her husband described her as a "big, strong, husky girl." From the dealer in Mountainview they bought their supplies, which were delivered at their door. Mr. and Mrs. Small had friendly social relations with some of the other cottagers on the lake, and with a few of the permanent residents of the village.

There is nothing that goes to prove that Florence Small's life was an especially happy one. Her husband did take her out on the lake, and on brief boating trips, but these do not seem to have been hours of unmixed pleasure. When he visited the Fryeburg Fair, which he may have done in a friend's motor car, he may have taken his wife with him. There was one motor trip with the Ferrens, to Bretton Woods, Fryeburg, Portland and Portsmouth. Her sister came once to visit her. But when Mr. Small's business called him to Boston for a night or two his wife hardly dared to go to bed. She kept her clothes on and stayed awake all night—to be ready for the dangers that lonely women imagine and that a few unfortunate ones have actually met.

Early in 1916, Mr. Small began to show that interest in insurance which fills the hearts of insurance officials with deep joy. In February he called by telephone Mr. Winfield Chase of Mountainview and expressed a desire to "talk insurance." Mr. Chase, who was agent for the Travelers' Company of Hartford, had no reluctance about a conversation on the subject, and was at Small's house the same afternoon. The talk was about life insurance; a policy to cover loss by fire had been arranged by Mr. Chase four months earlier: $2000 on the cottage and $1000 upon the contents. Now they discussed insurance for $20,000 upon the joint lives of Mr. and Mrs. Small. But the conversation led to nothing; and a few days later Mr. Small turned to the agent of the John Hancock Mutual of Boston. This was Mr. Edwin Conner, who was also principal of a school at Centre Ossipee.

Mr. Conner was also invited by telephone to call upon the thoughtful husband, and he also was prompt. The two men made a trip to Boston together, as Mr. Small wished to satisfy himself about the financial condition of the John Hancock company. This was done; the officials at headquarters showed him their coffers and exhibited their treasury, or did whatever is customary and necessary to prove solvency, and the investor was content.

HE MADE application for insurance upon the lives of his wife and himself. But the company rejected the application for the reason that the name of Mrs. Small — doubtless to save her trouble—was signed by her husband and in his own hand. There were "fuss and bother; objection on the part of Small and bickerings," but a second application was made. Mrs. Small was now admitted to the secret and she signed with Mr. Small.

The contract provided that on the death of either the sum of $20,000 should be paid to the survivor; or, in the case of the death of both, to a nephew, Nathaniel L. Mitchell.

The amount paid for this policy was $1107.60. As this was the annual premium, due on March 4 every year, and as Mr. Small's bank balance, at the time he made the first payment, was $4835.71, it will be seen that he held life insurance in high esteem as an investment.

The summer passed; Mr. Conner and Mr. Small met occasionally and discussed business. Mr. Small said that he had some friends in Boston whom they might be able to insure. Apparently, there was an arrangement between the two men—a perfectly innocent one, on Mr. Conner's part—whereby some commission was to be paid to Mr. Small for any business he might bring to the other.

MR. SMALL steered his motor boat around the lake, repaired her, and spent some of his considerable leisure in the workshop, which was fitted up at one end of his cottage. For all this mechanical work, of which he was so fond, he needed machinery and materials; a large amount of wire; spark plugs; dry cell batteries—a dozen or two of them; gasoline for his engine; and more wire of various kinds.

He had always been a handy man about the house; more than that, almost a mechanical genius. He once raised his hand in the air and remarked:

"That hand can do anything."

The woods are especially beautiful in September, but many of the summer visitors go back to the city when the schools begin, or soon after Labor Day. By the end of the month the colony on that southern shore of the lake had decreased; when the Emerson family left on September 27, it would appear that, except for the Smalls', the cottages were empty. Mr. Small and Mr. Conner had made an agreement for another business trip to Boston the first week of October.

On the morning of September 28, however, Mr. Conner was called on the telephone a few minutes before 8. He was about to leave for his school, which opened at 8:15. Mr. Small thought that they should go to Boston that day: "the way the market was going," he said, made it imperative for him to be there, and Mr. Conner ought to go with him, so that together they could close up the insurance business they had in mind.

I suppose that they were to call on some "prospects," and Mr. Small, by means of his winning personality, was to induce them to take out heavy insurance. The train by which he proposed to go left at 4:07 that afternoon, after school had closed.

Mr. Conner was very sorry. Had he known a day or two earlier, he could have arranged it. But now, he didn't see how he could get away.

"That is too bad," returned the other. "You ought to go. Can't you get off somehow? It will only be one day."

The teacher thought that it was impossible, but promised to call his associate later in the day, if the chances were more favorable. Mr. Small asked the exact hour he would be called; he would be at the telephone and ready to hear. A few minutes before 1 that noon Mr. Conner kept his promise and reluctantly said that "the situation" had not changed any since morning and that he could not go.

Whether "the situation" referred to scholastic duties or had something to do with Mrs. Conner was not disclosed. Mr. Small was grieved.

"Well, now," said he, "that is too bad. We can clear that business up down there, and it means a nice little sum for us. . . . You must go, if you possibly can."

"Well," returned the teacher, "I have left it this way: if I can possibly make arrangements I will meet you at the train."

And the conversation ended. The day seemed to pass quietly enough at the Smalls' house. The motor boat was hauled up for the season, so there was no cruising in her. Besides, the master of the house was engaged in preparing for his business in Boston.

IN THE morning he had used the telephone for some household duties—kindly assisting his wife. He called up Mr. Charles Sceggel, the grocer, and gave him an order. And at 11 o'clock Mr. Sceggel drove his wagon down the road and delivered the order at the back door. There were five gallons of kerosene oil—which he turned from his own can into Mr. Small's—two yeast cakes, one broom, one dozen eggs, three pounds of pork, a peck of potatoes, and six cakes of Ivory soap.

Mr. Sceggel is a deliberate, courteous and methodical man, who keeps his sales lists in good order and is accustomed to observe what he is about and know what he does. So it became an interesting fact that he stepped into the kitchen for a moment and saw and spoke to Mrs. Small, who was standing in the doorway between the kitchen and the living room.

After the grocer's wagon went up the wooded road, quiet settled over the shore of the lake. At 1 there was the disappointing telephone call from Mr. Conner, already mentioned. At 2 o'clock Mr. Kennett of the Central House, the hotel of Mountainview, received a call by telephone. Mr. Small wished conveyance to the railroad station, to get the 4:07 train. He suggested that Mr. Kennett come at about 3:30.

This service Mr. Kennett had rendered before. There was often a pleasant little ceremony connected with it, and over and above the payment, Mr. Small, who was no snob, was accustomed to invite Mr. Kennett inside to have a "snifter."

It may have been his natural promptness or it may have been the happy anticipation of this stirrup cup that made Mr. Kennett whip up his horse and arrive between 2:30 and 3—at least 15 minutes early. There was, therefore, time and to spare to hold wassail.

But the driver was disappointed and perhaps a little surprised. Early as he was, Mr. Small was earlier. He was standing on the back porch, with his handbag, walking stick, and overcoat. He did not invite Mr. Kennett inside. He was going to make Mr. Kennett the subject of an experiment far more novel and interesting than the mere effect of an ounce or two of rye whisky on the human stomach. Wherever he had picked up the notion, he was going to see if Mr. Kennett was susceptible to psychological suggestion. It puts Mr. Small in a class apart from most of his fellow practitioners.

The driver of the carriage, at Mr. Small's request, had stopped on the way and taken the mail from the rural delivery box, somewhere up the road. These letters he now handed to Mr. Small, while he—sadly aware that there was to be no drinking that afternoon—began to turn his carriage around for the return to the village.

MR. SMALL took the mail, opened the rear door of the house, and threw the letters inside. Then he stepped within for a moment and called out:

"Good-bye!"

After this, he came out on the porch again, closing the door behind him. He stepped into the carriage, and the two men drove away together, up the wooded road.

Mr. Small had made his experiment and had chosen for its subject a native of the mountain region of northern New England—not, perhaps the most favorable material. There are races in the world which are more easily impressionable, upon whose minds tricks of the kind are more apt to succeed.

When they reached the hotel, Mr. Small was soon joined by Mr. Conner. The teacher was still in doubt, but was at last persuaded. When the train left, both men were in the smoking compartment of the Pullman. They read the papers, talked and smoked until they reached Portsmouth.

As they were not due in Boston until eight o'clock, and as there was a dining car in the train, between Portsmouth and Boston, the way to pass the time was obvious. They had dinner, and with the dinner a drink which Mr. Conner briefly and unimaginatively described as "some rye."

At the North Station, in Boston, the two men went by a subway car to Scollay Square, and thence to Young's. Mr. Small registered and took room 113. The hour was still early, and these two gay dogs had no idea of tamely going to bed. It was their first night in the city months. So they unpacked their bags, left Young's and went up to the Parker House, where Mr. Conner bought six picture post-cards to send to his family as souvenirs. Mr. Small asked him for two of the cards and mailed one of them to his wife.

The clever man had a living witness to his presence in Boston at that hour; he now added documentary proof. He wrote on the card:

Fair weather at Young's. Fred. September 28, 1916, 8:40 p. m.

This clinched it. As he wrote the message and showed it to his friend with the time noted so precisely, he remarked:

"Mrs. Small and I are always very exact."

THEN, at the suggestion of the exact husband, they went up Tremont street to the Majestic Theater, to see a moving-picture play called "Were Are My Children?"

They sat through this preposterous show and then went to Clark's Grill on Washington Street, for supper. The evening's entertainment closed with fried scallops and a pitcher of Pickwick ale.

When they returned to Young's, that thing happened which one of them was expecting. It was past midnight. The hotel clerk said to Mr. Small:

"They want you at the 'phone. There has been a fire up your way."

Mr. Small went to the telephone booth followed by his friend. The booth door was left open, and the Boston operator made the connection with Mountainview. Mr. Ferren, the hotel keeper, was on the wire. Said he:

"Mr. Small, we have had a very bad accident here; your house is all in flames; nothing can save it. We have looked everywhere for your wife, but can't find her. We fear she is in the ruins. Where is she?"

The husband expressed no hope, but immediately adopted the worst possible view. He exclaimed:

"My God! my home! my pet! Gone! I am alone in the world!"

Then he added:

"You don't mean it, Frank. You don't mean what you are saying!"

The reply came over the wire: "I do mean it, Mr. Small. Your home is gone."

The bereaved man turned to the other, at his elbow, and said: "Ed, come here—come here and hear what this man says."

Mr. Conner took the telephone and heard the hotel proprietor repeat and confirm the message. He asked again for assurance that the news was true; received it, and then asked:

"What shall we do?"

The advice was:

"Take a good reliable car and come home just as quickly as you can."

MR. SMALL broke down badly, weeping and sobbing, and affecting to many some of those who saw him. Arrangements were made with the hotel for a motor car and driver, and the two went up to their rooms, attended by a bellboy. They packed their bags and Mr. Conner kindly did it for Mr. Small sat on a chair and wept—almost continuously. He restrained his grief for a moment, however, looked up and asked:

"Do you suppose there will be any question with Merritt?"

Merritt was the general agent of the John Hancock Insurance Company.

Shortly after 1 o'clock in the morning they left Boston in the big Packard Twin Six. Mr. Small's distress was real, and it does not appear that during the long dark journey of three or four hours he felt anything but grief and amazement. Mr. Small had a bottle of Monogram Rye with him and braced himself two or three times by its aid.

Now and then, in the intervals of his grief, he would "try to figure out how it had happened." One of his explanations of the affair was that his "little wife must have been sitting before the fireplace reading, as she generally did evenings, and fell asleep, and a spark had come out from the fireplace and set her clothing on fire."

They arrived at Mountainview at half-past four. It was still dark. The road down through the woods to the lake is a fair one, and the car was equipped with strong headlights. In spite of these things, Mr. Small did not order the car to take him to his home. Instead, the car went to the Central House, where Mr. Small had breakfast, and telephoned Mr. Chase, the fire insurance agent. He stayed at the hotel till nearly half-past six.

At that hour, with Mr. Ferren, and perhaps others, he and Mr. Conner visited the ruin. The house was entirely burned, except for one corner of the workshop. The cellar was still smouldering. Trees near the house were scorched—they show the marks today—and some of them were killed by the fierce heat of the night wooden cottage, which for an hour or two had roared like a furnace. But there was water in the cellar—it had oozed in from the lake—and some objects were still preserved there. One, in particular, attracted the attention of Mr. Conner; there were unmistakable indications that a body was still burning in the cellar.

Both men had put on rubber boots; they looked about for a few minutes, and Mr. Small remarked:

"There are six thousand dollars' worth of diamonds and other jewels in there; anyone can have them who can find them."

To a physician who had arrived, he said, either then or later:

"Send for some men and have them search the ruins and see if they can find any trace of my wife's body."

Mr. Conner was more prompt; he found two pails, brought water, and tried to put out the fire which was still burning around a heap in the cellar. Shortly after this the two men returned to the hotel.

Mr. Chandler, the Sheriff, and some physicians, including Dr. Horne, the medical referee, made an investigation about an hour later:

IT WAS then possible to discover that under embers in the cellar lay the body of Mrs. Small. The arms and legs were partly destroyed by the fire, but the head and trunk were almost intact. The doctors very soon noticed a cord tied tightly around the woman's neck; she had been strangled. There was also a bullet wound in the skull, and eight other wounds, as if she had been struck by some heavy instrument; a club or iron bar.

The fire, which had been intended to destroy everything, had burned through the floors and allowed the body to fall into the cellar, where nearly all had been preserved by the water.

Dr. Horne had a conversation with Mr. Small at the hotel.

"What shall we do with the body, Mr. Small?"

The latter asked:

"What! Is there enough left to be buried?"

The doctor assured him that there was, and "he seemed very much taken aback." However, he was able to recall his grief and tenderness.

"Nothing too good; nothing too good, so far as a casket is concerned."

Afterward he decided on economy and ordered a coffin costing $35. Later, however, he bought half a burial lot in the cemetery, and ordered a Rochester florist to send $24 worth of American Beauty roses, with an inscription, in gilt letters, upon the ribbon: "To My Love." He also asked the pastor of the church at Centre Ossipee to conduct the funeral services.

All talk of clergy, undertakers, and burials was, however, only of minor interest in Mountainview. As a matter of fact, the American Beauty roses were not purchased until after the donor was much restricted in his actions. The discoveries at the ruined cottage caused the sheriff to put Mr. Small under arrest. He wept and protested vigorously against this added grief and outrage. He said that his wife was alive when he left his cottage—

"—And I can prove it by Kennett."

TO ONE of the physicians, Dr. Hodsdon, he spoke indignantly:

"Why did you send for the Sheriff? Why did you have me arrested?"

The doctor answered:

"I did not have you arrested, and I did not send for the Sheriff."

"I don't know why this indignity is heaped upon me," Mr. Small complained, "nor why I am treated in such a manner. You know what Kennett's story is."

"I have not seen Kennett," said Dr. Hodsdon.

"Why," he returned, "Kennett knows that my wife was alive when I left home; he saw me kiss her good-by and heard her say, 'Don't forget to get the lace.'"

But, as the sheriff had discovered, Mr. Kennett could give no such convenient testimony. He had only heard and seen Mr. Small. He had heard the words "good-by" spoken into the house. And there had followed—silence. The attempt to recall in his mind an image of something which he might have seen on some earlier occasion, to reawake in his brain the sound of the wife's voice which he may have heard at another time—both had failed. Kennett, the Yankee, had been notably lacking in what some call "imagination" or "vision," and only had in their place that indifferent substitute: common sense.

The reporters talked with Mr. Small after he was lodged in jail. He had had time to think over the tragedy and was forced to abandon the theory of an accident. He said that there were at least three men in Mountainview—enemies—who were capable of the crime. He did not name them. He was also much interested in alternative theories advanced.

BUT he needed more substantial help than those. He had made plans more elaborate and ingenious than those of almost any murderer of whom I have heard. The plot certainly went back seven months—to the purchase of the insurance—and possibly more than two years, to the date of the removal to Mountainview. The contrivance by which the fire was ignited, during his absence, will be mentioned later.

It is the careful preparation of the double alibi which marks the Small case as peculiar, if not unique, in the history of homicides. The attempt at psychological suggestion with the driver Kennett was the first. His own actual physical absence by more than a hundred miles when the fire broke out—and this to be proved by a witness carefully brought along for the purpose—was the second. And both failed, promptly and fatally. With all his cleverness, he had not fared so well as the stupid assassin who makes no plans and deals in no tricks, scientific or psychical.

He was held, by the lower court, for the action of the grand jury. He had counsel, but no defense was put in for him. His brother and nephew came to New Hampshire to lend their support.

The grand jury returned an indictment in December.

Late in December, a day or two after Christmas, the trial began. Ossipee, the county seat, was full of visitors, who overcrowded the hotel and waded disconsolately through the snowdrifts.

The prosecution did not have difficulty in indicating a motive. The evidence about the insurance was too clear. An important group of exhibits were introduced, however—things found in the prisoner's bag when he was arrested. There were memorandum books, account books, and other papers. There was also his Masonic apron, and the deed of his cottage—thoughtfully saved from the fire.

More interesting still was a careful inventory, in his own hand, of the contents of all the lower rooms of the cottage. The value of each article was entered—from the organ, priced at $325, down to a "corn broom" listed at fifty cents. The total was more than $3700. The State invited the jury's attention to the item in the list under "Living Room": "candy, $1.40," and suggested that so perishable an article would not be entered in an inventory unless it was planned to present that inventory very soon for the use of the fire insurance company.

As to Mr. Small's disposition toward his wife, the evidence was impressive. Mr. and Mrs. Emerson were near neighbors on the lake; they were on calling terms with Mr. and Mrs. Small. Three or four days before they left their cottage (which they did the day before the murder), they ate supper with the Smalls and afterwards played hearts.

Mrs. Small dealt her husband the Queen, and that gentleman addressed her in terms that caused her to retire to the kitchen sobbing. After the Emersons went home, they heard a scream from Small's cottage and debated as to whether they should go back and interfere. They prudently decided not to do so.

At another time, as early as 1914, one Philip Davis was in a boat with the husband and wife. Mrs. Small rowed. Davis offered to help, but was restrained by Small. When the boat ran aground and Mrs. Small tried to push it off, the youth was again forbidden to help. Mr. Small at last took up an oar, not for its proper purpose, but to belabor his wife. Davis interfered and prevented this disciplinary measure.

OTHERS, who had been on the lake at night had heard Mrs. Small screaming.

The sister and mother of the late Mrs. Small appeared at the trial. The mother, Mrs. Curry, was summoned for the purpose of testifying as to Small's deftness in tying knots—square knots, like the one in the cord round the dead woman's neck.

The sister, Miss Norma Curry, spoke about her visit at Mountainview, when Mrs. Small was in bed, with what she called "a nervous breakdown." The questions and the testimony of this witness were:

"You say your sister was ill in bed?"

"She was."

"How was she on Sunday afternoon?"

"She was very weak, but she came downstairs."

"While you were there, did you and your sister engage in conversation, and were engaged in conversation when Mr. Small came in?"

"We did."

"And what was the subject of the conversation?"

"It was concerning my dead sister."

When he heard you and saw you talking together, what did he say to Arlene?"

"Well, I would rather not repeat it."

"I think you should."

The witness paused, and then said, in a low voice, and very slowly: "He said: 'Shut up you ——— ——— ———.'"

There was a moment of silence in the Court, and some of those who looked toward the jury thought that one or two of them were gazing with interest at Mr. Small's neck.

The effect of all this upon the jury was marked, but from a legal viewpoint, the testimony of Dr. John Lowell Bacon was fully as important. The story as outlined in the opening address was this.

WHEN the Smalls were living in Southboro, Dr. Bacon, who had attended them before, received a telephone call to their house. He came, and rang the bell, and when nobody answered, rang again, and at last walked in. Florence Small was sitting in the kitchen; there was blood on her face and she showed agitation. Mr. Small spoke up from a corner of the room:

"What to hell are you here for? Who called you?"

The doctor answered: "I had a telephone call; that is why I am here."

"Well, I didn't call you," returned the other. "You get to hell out of here."

The doctor did not act on this suggestion, and Small advanced toward him, picking up a stick of wood from the wood box.

Dr. Bacon had not even taken off his heavy overcoat, but he seized a chair, swung it over his head, and stretched Mr. Small on the floor. In falling, the husband had the misfortune to get his legs under the stove, so that he could not easily get up again. Possibly he preferred not to get up, but to take the count.

The doctor let him remain while he dressed the wound on Mrs. Small's face. Then he asked:

"What is all this about?"

She did not answer, and Mr. Small volunteered an explanation:

"God damn her, I hit her in the head with a bootjack; I'd ought to killed her, and I will, yet."

The admission of Dr. Bacon's testimony was contested by the defense as remote, but, in the end, the doctor was allowed to relate to the jury the remark about the bootjack.

The medical testimony was given by two physicians who were there when the body was discovered: Dr. Hodsdon and Dr. Horne, the medical referee; and by Dr. Howard Kingsford and Dr. George B. Magrath, the last being the medical examiner of Suffolk County, Massachusetts, who was called in as an expert pathologist, as he is in many cases.

Strangulation was the cause of death, by means of a cord which came from Mr. Small's motor boat. Dr. Hodsdon found a bullet in the head—a .32-caliber bullet. Mr. Small's Colt .32 automatic pistol was found in the ruins of the house. The blows on the skull could have been struck by a poker, also found in the ruins. The cumulative effect of the evidence as to three forms of violence used against Mrs. Small, and all by weapons available to her husband, made it difficult for the defense to contend that a stranger had committed the murder.

The face of the dead woman, when found, was covered by something in the nature of a mask of cloth, and under this was an amount of rosin. Dr. Kingsford's examination indicated that Mrs. Small had been killed very soon after taking her noonday meal. The custom in the household was for dinner at noon, or near 1 o'clock, and the State contended that the murder had taken place soon after one. It was the part of the defense, of course, to try to put the time of death much later in the day; if possible, in the evening, when Mr. Small was in Boston.

Of all matters connected with this case, nothing attracted so much interest, from some of the observers, as the elaborate and ingenious plans made for the total destruction of all evidence that a murder had been committed.

EARLY investigators on the scene of the fire found the wreck of an alarm clock. That dry batteries, a great deal of wire, spark plugs, and both gasoline and kerosene were on the premises has already been mentioned. It was not difficult to reconstruct from these materials an apparatus that could be timed to set fire to the house 10 or 12 hours after its owner left it. The fire was first noticed seven or eight hours after he left—at about 10 o'clock. By half-past ten, Mr. Ferren and a crew of men whom he gathered were at the scene, and although the house was a mass of flames, with the heat so intense they could not approach it, they searched the woods, called out, and ran up and down the beach hoping to find Mrs. Small.

Testimony was given and exhibits were shown as to the kind of apparatus that might be made to set the fire. Although not all of them worked perfectly—and the defense did what they could to ridicule this testimony—the jury seem to have been convinced.

But the ingenious Mr. Small had added another touch. The fire was observed to have been one of intense and unusual heat. The floors burned through rapidly and let the body fall into the cellar. The missing portions of the body—parts of the arms and legs—were not burned in an ordinary sense: they were entirely gone, even the bones. Moreover, the stove in the living room was found in a curious condition. It stood directly beneath the spot in the upper room where Mrs. Small's bed was placed. When the bed—with Mrs. Small's body upon it, according to the State's theory—crashed through the upper floor, it came down upon the stove in the living room. Presently, in the violent heat which was consuming everything in the vicinity, the lower floor was also burned and everything fell into the cellar, and into the water which stood there.

THE stove, in places, appeared to be melted; a result that no ordinary heat could effect. Dr. Magrath noticed, and pointed out to the officers, a lavalike substance which was shown on analysis to be the slag left by thermite. This is a welding agent—often used in the welding of steel rails. It is produced by mixing aluminum filings with some metallic oxide. When ignited by magnesium it produces an intense heat that nothing else but a blast furnace could equal.

Moreover, it was known that thousands of pounds of thermite were shipped into New Hampshire every year and used in car shops, in repairing locomotives. There would be no great difficulty in obtaining some of it, but how or where Mr. Small did obtain it does not seem to have been discovered. It was the one imperfection in the case.

The defense was brief and unexpectedly weak. Mr Small did not go on the witness stand in his own behalf. There were one or two character witnesses—including Mr. Mitchell, the prisoner's nephew—who swore that they had never heard harsh language or observed any brutal treatment of his wife by Mr. Small.

It must be apparent that when Mr. Matthews rose to make the final appeal for the prisoner, he was attempting the impossible. He said all that could be said. There was no secrecy or mystery, he averred, about the insurance. Mr. Conner's part in the case was unfavorably reflected upon. The trip to Boston was made openly enough. The two men went to the theater; Mr. Small talked and laughed and was his natural self—was this the conduct of a man who had just murdered his wife?

IN THE evening of January 8, 1917—after about 10 days of trial—the jury went out. They ate their dinner and began consideration of the case at 8 o'clock. At eleven, a tom-tom was sounded by someone outside the courthouse, and the whole town knew that the jury were coming back with a verdict. The prisoner hobbled into court, looking "singularly small, frail, and helpless."

The law in New Hampshire gives a jury the decision as to the punishment, as well as to guilt, and the verdict in this case was:

"Guilty, in the first degree, with capital punishment."

Next morning, at 9 o'clock, he was brought into court for sentence. Asked if he had anything to say before sentence, he replied:

"I know no more about this crime than you do. I am an innocent person."

He said this with his arms spread out.

The Judge said:

"Frederick L. Small: The jury having convicted you of murder in the first degree with capital punishment, it is ordered by the Court that you be sentenced to imprisonment in the State Prison at Concord until the fifteenth day of January, 1918, and that on that day you shall be hanged by the neck until you are dead."

It was by the barest chance that Mr. Small failed. He had thought out everything, to the last detail. He had waited until he was alone in that solitary place; he arranged for the witness to his alibi. He even told Kennett, the driver, to bring the mail, so that nobody else should come down the road, interrupting his plans.

Then, with his hour or two clear, his victim was lured into an upper room, or attacked while taking an afternoon nap. The murder was done in an instant, but death was made sure by other methods.

HE LIMPED around the silent house, going upstairs and down. His fire apparatus was brought from his workshop where he had long been working at it, and experimenting with it to see that it was perfect—as, up to a certain point, it proved to be. The body of the dead woman was prepared like the victim of a sacrifice, and to the thermite was added the inflammable rosin to make sure of destruction.

Then he greeted Kennett, and turned into the house to call out his mock farewell to the corpse of his wife.

Frederick Small was hanged in the State Prison at Concord at 18 minutes past midnight. So far as known, he did not confess to anybody. Neither did he flinch or show fear. The warrant was read to him, and he was given opportunity to speak. He declined it.

Small limped into the room where the gallows stood. He bowed and smiled slightly to one or two of the 35 spectators. He did not tremble or show any frailty, except that frailty of body that had always been his.

As with many another of his kind, better and worse, his death was apparently simple and courageous. It is one of the tormenting ironies of life that many good men do not make as good an end as those whose death is obscure and shameful.

NEXT week's story will be, "Two Victorian Ladies, The Same Being the Misses Madeleine Smith and Constance Kent."

The Case of Gustave von Krankheit and Mr. Terhune

I WISH right here and now to clear up forever the argument which has caught this great city by the ears and divided it into two hostile camps, with violence rampant, with grandsons belaboring their grandmothers with egg-beaters that certainly could be used and should be used for more genteel purposes, and mothers, losing all sense of maternal feeling, biting their three-year-olds on their ears in the pugnacity of argumentative combat.

I speak, of course, regarding the great current controversy, i. e., who wrote the first letter in the dispute by correspondence between Mr. Albert Payson Terhune and my German police dog, Gustave von Krankheit?

Allow me to go back into history to a period some two months past. It was a warm summer Sunday evening, and Gustave and I, worn out by 15 sets of tennis during the afternoon, were lounging in our lounging room in our lounging clothes. I might also add my wife was there, too, lounging in her lounging clothes. I was reading the "Golden Treasury," compiled by Andrew Mellon, my wife was perusing the Police Dog Gazette and Gustave was deep in that day's edition of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

(The reader will please forgive me for these apparently needless details, but I want this controversy ended here and now; I want the facts known as the facts should be known, and I wish never to hear it said that I in any way colored the evidence for or against Gustave von Krankheit or Albert Payson Terhune.)

IT WAS at just 8:42 p. m. that my wife and I were startled by Gustave exclaiming, "Well, I'll be damned!" We both looked up, but he continued to read. Suddenly he slapped the end-table by his side with his paw, and, throwing his cigarette at the lace curtains, exclaimed: "I am going to write Albert Payson Terhune a letter, come what may!" I assure you I am determined."

My wife and I were terribly astonished, for we long had known Gustave's admiration for Mr. Terhune, and we could readily see that on this occasion, at least, his admiration for Mr. Terhune, who up to this time had been his favorite author, was considerably diminished.

My wife, concerned over his agitation, walked over to Gustave, and standing before him in a most kindly, benign and understanding manner, asked: "Gustave, what IS the matter between you and Mr. Terhune?"

I regret to say that at this point Gustave lost his temper, and, turning up his nose, said: "That is my business, and I'm perfectly capable of taking care of it."

My wife, repulsed, likewise lost her temper. I am sorry to say, and snapped at him, inflicting a nasty bite just above Gustave's left eye. But Gustave, much to my surprise, controlled himself, and placing his paw to his wound, ignored her entirely and began to address me.

"Well, I'll be damned!" exclaimed Gustave.

"I have been Albert Payson Terhune's constant reader for years," Gustave related, as my wife flounced out and started mixing a mint julep, "and I have always acclaimed him as a man who has done much to honor my race. But why Mr. Terhune should think it a great feat because some mongrel dog" ——

"Just a moment, Gustave," I interrupted, "let's not be snobbish."

"Oh, all right," he said. "Well, just because some unknown dog, of not particularly lofty origin, up in Michigan, has learned to listen to a telegrapher's code and finally picked up the idea that a few certain dots and dashes means that work is over for the day—just because some unknown dog in Michigan, with hardly any genealogy at all, has learned to do that, I do not see why Mr. Terhune has found it a sign of greatness, and furthermore has deemed it necessary to sit down and write about it for the Post-Dispatch. What, for instance, has Mr. Terhune ever said about me? Not that I should care for the publicity. But what has he? Nothing. So I am going to write him a letter and I am going to do it now."

AND he did. He went straight to my typewriter, which I had recovered from the Sheriff but the day before, and wrote the following brief but comprehensive missive:

"Albert Payson Terhune, Esq.

"Dear Sir: I am highly displeased with your article in today's Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine. What if he did? I have done much greater things myself. I think you use too heavy a hammer for so small a nail. Patronizingly,

"GUSTAVE VON KRANKHEIT."

I saw Gustave mail that letter with my own eyes.

Three days later he received the following reply from Mr. Terhune:

"Gustave von Krankheit, Esq.

"Dear Mr. von Krankheit: that so?

"ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE."

That same evening this missive forwarded by Von Krankheit to author:

"A. P. Terhune:

"Yes it is.

"VON KRANKHEIT."

He received this reply:

"Gustave von Krankheit, Canine.

"You ought to be muzzled.

"ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE."

And that is where the controv stands to date. But the fact rem that Von Krankheit wrote the note, and I am willing to testify And I sincerely hope that this wi tle the argument for once and all. have had entirely too much of b divided within themselves, and thers, sneaking down halls in the of night, setting fire to their spring's bedding.

How a St. Louis Machine Shop Sired Two Big Detroit Industries

Founders of Burroughs Adding Machine Company and Chicago Pneumatic Tool Company Worked Shoulder to Shoulder as Mechanics in This City.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

DETROIT, Mich.

IT WAS back in 1885 that two young men worked shoulder to shoulder in a tiny machine shop in a down-town street in St. Louis. They worked hard and persistently. And they developed two distinct ideas. Today, 43 years later, these ideas have been developed to a state of high perfection. And they represent the major products of two of the largest manufacturing organizations in Detroit. As in the days of their early development, when only the length of a work-bench separated them, the great plants today are separated but by a narrow street.

One of those aforementioned young men, Joseph Boyer, now chairman of the board of directors of the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., was a machinist. The other, William S. Burroughs, was a former bank clerk. Contrary to what his present position might connote, Boyer's idea was not the adding machine. Rather, it was the Boyer pneumatic hammer, popularly known as the "air hammer," one of the most helpful devices used in modern day construction.

Out on Second boulevard, covering 11 acres of ground, neatly clothed with verdant vines, and well back of a nicely groomed lawn, stands the Burroughs plant —a fitting monument to the bank clerk who had an idea. Bordering the Burroughs plant on the north is Amsterdam avenue, just across from which stands the large plant of the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., manufacturers of the Boyer "air hammer," the Boyer pneumatic drill, and the Boyer railway speed recorder.

Principally because of his early and present connection with the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., Joseph Boyer seldom is thought of as inventor of two important contributions to present-day construction and transportation equipment. Few persons know that as Boyer sits in his spacious office in the Burroughs plant directing activities of that $150,000,000 concern, the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., across that narrow street, is manufacturing and shipping a widely different product of his genius to all parts of the world.

Humble shop, at 244 Dickson street, St. Louis, where Boyer and Burroughs worked together and where the adding machine, the air hammer and the speed recording devices sprang from.

Joseph Boyer was born September 19, 1848, in Pickering Township, Ontario, the son of a farmer. Young "Joe" did not like farming, so, in 1866, his father took him to Oshawa, Ontario, where the young man entered the service of a machinist as an apprentice.

Three years later, his apprenticeship served, he set out for California, and arrived in San Francisco. He obtained employment with a marine engine concern. California, however, was not good to him and he decided to leave. With but a few dollars in his pocket he purchased a railway ticket for a point "as far East as he could get." St. Louis was that point. In St. Louis he found employment with the Fulton Iron Works, and one year later went to work for a sewing machine company. The sewing machine company, however, failed soon after Boyer's first day on the job. Boyer then conceived the idea of opening up his own machine shop. Boyer and F. J. Swaine, in 1876, formed a partnership and rented the defunct company's plant. Several years later the partnership was dissolved, and Boyer went into business for himself. Then it was that he, under the simple designation "J. Boyer, Machinist," started the little machine shop that was destined to witness the birth of the adding machine, the Boyer speed recording device and the Boyer air hammer. It was at 244 Dickson street. Now a railroad building occupies its site.

BOYER was a man of modest means in those days. He had a family to support and he kept plugging away at his trade. He had very little time for experimentation, but what time he did have was devoted to perfecting his speed recorder. The air hammer was to come later.

But let Mr. Boyer tell the story:

"Along about in 1884, we were making a large number of bottle molds, that being our principal product at the time. Making these molds was the deuce of a job with the tools with which we then had to work. I found that by applying air pressure to a hammer of my own design I could get in about 15 strokes to every one I could obtain in any other way. The design was very simple, the compressed air, released by means of a trigger operated by the thumb, operating a cylinder built into the nozzle. The device could be used as a chisel as well as a hammer. With but a few minor improvements the air hammer still is the same as it was then.

"One day in 1885, while I still had only a few helpers assisting me in the shop, a young fellow walked in. That young man was William Seward Burroughs.

"'Boyer,' he said, 'I want to rent some space in your shop.'"

"I let him have it.

"Like myself, Burroughs was a poor man. He had but $300, which had been advanced by Richard M. Scruggs, a wealthy St. Louis business man. The $300 didn't last very long; work on the adding machine progressed very slowly, chiefly because of the intricacies of the device. Later on, however, other investors were found, with the result that more than $100,000 had been spent on the machine by the time the first one was built. Between 1891 and 1895 approximately 1000 of the machines were sold annually. In 1906 the Burroughs company had approximately 1500 employes and was capitalized for $5,000,000. Today we have more than 7500 employes in the United States and Canada, alone. We now have branch factories in Canada and England and sales organizations in more than 58 foreign countries. Our production averages 100,000 units annually.

"But again I am getting ahead of my story. While Burroughs was struggling hopefully with his intricate invention, I, on another work-bench in the same shop, was perfecting my air hammer. The Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., at that time located in Chicago, was strictly a sales organization. Through them I arranged a sales outlet for my hammer.

"In the late nineties I was faced with the problem of seeking larger quarters because of the growth of my business. We thought, too, that the climate in Detroit would be a lot more suitable. Well, you know, it is just about as easy to move a plant of that kind from one city to another as it is to move it from one building to another in the same city. So we simply loaded our plant on flat cars and came to Detroit. A machine shop, known as the Boyer Machine Co., was erected down there at Second boulevard and Amsterdam avenue. This site, now occupied by the Burroughs company, then was used by a seed business.

"BURROUGHS, poor man, never lived to see his invention develop into the huge thing it is today. He died in 1898. Early in 1900, several of his associates came to Detroit to investigate the advisability of moving the adding machine plant here. One of them liked the looks of the grounds occupied by the seed company.

"'What's the matter with building our plant right there?' that gentleman asked. I knew that the company, which was then known as the American Arithmometer Co., had many St. Louis stockholders, and they would not be particularly anxious to have the plant leave their city. But I, also, was a stockholder in the Arithmometer Co., and naturally wanted them here. So, while restraining my interest as much as possible in order not to offend my St. Louis friends, I simply said: 'Yes, that would make a nice place.' The site was purchased, and in October of 1904 the American Arithmometer Co. moved to Detroit. That is how the Burroughs adding machine and the Boyer air hammer again became neighbors."

Joseph Boyer.

Mr. Boyer's change from owner of the Boyer Machine Co. to chairman of the Burroughs organization came in this way:

Subsequent to the death of Mr. Burroughs, Boyer had acquired considerable stock in the Arithmometer Co. In 1898, six years before the company came to Detroit, Mr. Boyer was elected vice president and director of the company. In 1902 a group including Charles M. Schwab purchased the Boyer Machine Co., their sales agents, the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., and two other manufacturing agents in Cleveland and Franklin, Ohio, and reorganized the four companies into what today is the Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co. After the sale of his company, Mr. Boyer devoted all of his time to the American Arithmometer Co., which, in 1905, was re-ogranized as the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., with Mr. Boyer as president. He served in that capacity for 15 years, then in 1920 Mr. Boyer left that post. But not the organization. He became chairman of its board of directors.

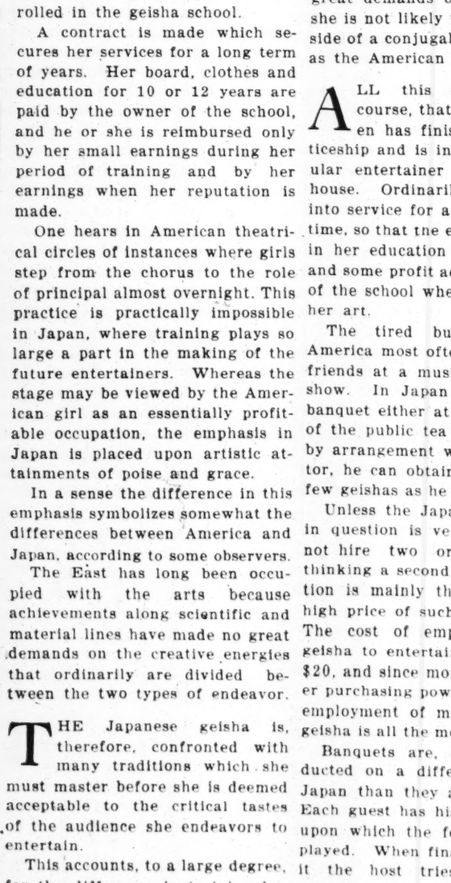
Geisha Girls Form Real Profession

Ten or Twelve Years in a Specialized Training School Necessary to Make Talented Japanese Girls Competent for These Activities.

A chorus of Geishas. —Photos by Gilliams Service.

SAY, I'd like to be a musical comedy star," says the typical American flapper, and forthwith enrolls in a dancing school to learn steps enough to make her eligible for a part in the chorus.

But that is not the way it is done in Japan, where much of the entertainment is provided by the native geisha girls. Unlike the future American prima donna who sees a first opportunity in the chorus, the Japanese geisha girl is trained from an early age in the fundamentals of her art.



A Geisha girl in a typical attitude.

The profession of geisha is reputed to be far too exacting for the ordinary Japanese maiden. Accordingly, her training is placed in the hands of national institutions, which concern themselves solely with the training of girls to entertain at banquets.

As early as 6 or 7 years of age, the future Japanese geisha is enrolled in the geisha school.

A contract is made which secures her services for a long term of years. Her board, clothes and education for 10 or 12 years are paid by the owner of the school, and he or she is reimbursed only by her small earnings during her period of training and by her earnings when her reputation is made.

One hears in American theatrical circles of instances where girls step from the chorus to the role of principal almost overnight. This practice is practically impossible in Japan, where training plays so large a part in the making of the future entertainers. Whereas the stage may be viewed by the American girl as an essentially profitable occupation, the emphasis in Japan is placed upon artistic attainments of poise and grace.

In a sense the difference in this emphasis symbolizes somewhat the differences between America and Japan, according to some observers.

The East has long been occupied with the arts because achievements along scientific and material lines have made no great demands on the creative energies that ordinarily are divided between the two types of endeavor.

THE Japanese geisha is, therefore, confronted with many traditions which she must master before she is deemed acceptable to the critical tastes of the audience she endeavors to entertain.

This accounts, to a large degree, for the difference in training between the American dancers and the Japanese geisha girl. Her whole education is devoted to the acquirement of those arts which will afford pleasure and entertainment to others.

Unlike American entertainers, the Japanese geisha girls are licensed, but this does not imply, as many Americans suppose, that they are necessarily weak of moral fiber. There is no more immorality among geisha girls as a whole, according to one authority, than there is among any American class.

Good sense and wit are as necessary to the prospective geisha as an ability to acquire the difficult esthetic principles which lie at the foundation of her art. Like the American show girl, she must know how to wear clothes well. But in addition to this achievement she must possess an ability to express herself in the most graceful, natural manner.

While apparently some American chorus girls have no difficulty in marrying into good and wealthy families, their success in marriage is not always assured. Possibly the same is true of the geisha, but it is definitely known that many geishas have founded noble families and that others are much sought after by the more intellectual types to rule their households.

In many instances, states one authority, the American conception of the geisha has been formed as the result of a contact with geisha girls in an open port. Here they are likely to be less careful of their morals, to mingle freely with foreigners and to sully, in other ways, the luster of an otherwise brilliant name.

Under ordinary circumstances the geisha is no more harmful than the chorus girl seen from a theater seat 12 rows back. She may lead a man to spend his money more extravagantly than is his custom, she may lead him on the down-road through making too great demands on his purse, but she is not likely to form the third side of a conjugal triangle, viewed as the American views it.

ALL this presupposes, of course, that the geisha maiden has finished her apprenticeship and is installed as a regular entertainer in a public tea house. Ordinarily, she is bound into service for a stated period of time, so that the expenses incurred in her education may be covered and some profit accrue to the head of the school wherein she learned her art.

The tired business man in America most often entertains his friends at a musical or supper show. In Japan he "throws" a banquet either at home or in one of the public tea houses. There, by arrangement with the proprietor, he can obtain as many or as few geishas as he desires.

Unless the Japanese gentleman in question is very rich he does not hire two or three without thinking a second time. His caution is mainly the result of the high price of such entertainment. The cost of employing a single geisha to entertain is from $5 to $20, and since money has a greater purchasing power in Japan, the employment of more than one geisha is all the more extravagant.

Banquets are, of course, conducted on a different plan in Japan than they are in America. Each guest has his separate tray, upon which the foods are displayed. When finances can stand it the host tries to provide a geisha to sit opposite each diner.

Her work, however, does not stop when she has provided the most careful attention to service. She is there to entertain the guest throughout the meal, and while a pretty face is generally considered as good a stimulus to digestion as any the world over, she adds to physical attractiveness by engaging the guest in witty sallies. Thus, by pleasing the guest, the meal is made more enjoyable.

When the meal is over, the geisha's activities assume more the nature of the American show girl's. In a sense her earlier activities might be compared to those of the hostess in a night club, but since a definite caste and regard attaches to her occupation, the comparison is, perhaps, ill-advised.

After the Japanese guest has finished his meal, the geisha occupies herself with singing, dancing and, not infrequently, in playing games with the patron and his guests. Clad in beautiful, flowing robes, the geisha is said to have esthetic possibilities which as yet have not been realized in American entertainment circles.

And it is here that her long training is given the opportunity to show itself in its true worth.

DAMASK—
beautiful damask
now covers the new Beautyrests

MATERIAL as beautiful and fine as the fabrics you would select for other furnishings! Truly a wonderful advance in beauty and luxury to have a completely comfortable mattress which harmonizes with and adds to the decorative scheme of the room.

Simmons have now wrought this amazing change in the famous Beautyrest Mattress. A change that makes as great a contribution to appearances as the inner construction of the mattress makes to comfort.

Now beautiful damask in French patterns covers the new Beautyrest Mattresses. Staunch as the old-fashioned striped ticking, it is lustrous with the satin beauty traditional to damask.

Patterned in wreaths or medallions of delicate leaves the damask is made in six lovely colors to blend with favored decorative schemes. There is a light blue, Venetian blue, lilac, sea-foam green, beige and rose. Top and bottom are fashioned in one piece, eliminating unsightly uncomfortable seams and all possibility of their tearing apart.

Mrs. Henry W. Taft says of the beds in the rose guest room in her Park Avenue apartment—"The Simmons Bed with its model mattress and spring I consider an improvement over the usual style. The coil center in the Beautyrest Mattress is a great improvement in comfort. And the new damask covering is as great an advance in appearance. It makes for the first time a handsome looking mattress."

The best furniture and department stores already have the Simmons Beautyrest in the lovely new damask.

You may have this handsome and luxurious sleeping equipment at no advance in price over the old-fashioned coverings.

In furniture and department stores, Simmons Beautyrest Mattress $39.50; Simmons Ace Spring $19.75. Simmons Beds $10 to $60; No. 1567, $53.75. Look for the name "Simmons." The Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco (Above) ASK YOUR DENTIST the secret of gleaming teeth. "Keep dingy film off your teeth," he will say. That's why the use of Pepsodent, the special film-removing dentifrice, is so widespread today.

A Film Clouds Teeth
You Must Remove It

The new way dentists advise that gives dazzling teeth and combats tooth and gum disorders

MANY people never know the natural whiteness of their teeth. There is only one way—that is to remove daily the film that forms on teeth.

Within ten days you will see teeth growing whiter—will note an added brilliance. You will find teeth less subject to decay and pyorrhea.

Ordinary brushing ways fail to remove this stubborn film successfully. For this special purpose dentists are urging the scientific method—through use of Pepsodent.

FILM—its dangers and removal

Film is that slippery coating that forms on teeth. Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel it.

It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and

Germs by the millions breed in film. It fosters bacteria of decay and serious tooth and gum disorders.

Film hardens into tartar. And tartar plus germs is the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Pepsodent, through the most recent findings of dental chemistry and dental practice, acts in an utterly new and different manner. It first curdles the film and then removes it in gentle safety to enamel.

It acts further to firm the gums and give them healthy coral color.

Millions have discovered it on dentists' advice. Millions use it because they know it keeps teeth whiter, brighter and healthier than they dreamed was possible. Get it wherever dentifrices are sold, or write to the Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, for free 10-day

SMILES ARE DAZZLING WHITE when film is gone. Teeth sparkle like polished jewels. Gums firm to healthy coral tint. Thus this new scientific way of dental care becomes one of the greatest beauty treatments of the day, and with its unique therapeutic and prophylactic qualities, a great aid in oral hygiene.

Dorothy Gray

The Tragedy of Neglect shows in these three places

NEGLECT, like time, knows three subtle ways to destroy a woman's loveliness. Insidiously it traces tragic wrinkles at the corners of her eyes and mouth, it makes her clean-cut chinline droop, and it weaves a network of tiny lines in the once-satiny texture of her throat. Any one of these three things will make a woman look old, however few her years.

It was Dorothy Gray who discovered how fatigue and time put their ageing marks on throat and chin and eye, and she was inspired to devise sane, effectual treatments and preparations that combat a drooping chinline, a crepy throat, lines and wrinkles.

You can readily follow these treatments in your own home, using the same method and preparations which have proved so tremendously successful in actual treatments in the Dorothy Gray salons in six cities. These authentic Dorothy Gray preparations are sold at leading shops of your city, while the simple, scientific Dorothy Gray method is clearly explained in a serviceable booklet which will gladly be sent you on request.

BROADCASTING

THE Blindfold Test

Graham McNamee

Announcing

BRAND NO. 1 . . . "doesn't appeal to me"

BRAND NO. 2 . . . "we'll waste no time over this"

BRAND NO. 3 . . . "as smooth as a winter broadcast"

BRAND NO. 4 . . . "full of static . . . No. 3 wins!"

On the afternoon of July 24th, Graham McNamee, in the presence of responsible witnesses, made the blindfold cigarette test before the microphone. A camera and a stenographer recorded the result.

"This is Graham McNamee speaking . . . broadcasting the results of the blindfold cigarette test. They are tying the blindfold around my eyes and are going to give me one each of the four leading brands to choose from . . . I am now smoking the first cigarette . . . The taste doesn't appeal to me. It's a bit harsh. We'll lay that one aside and try No. 2 . . . No, that's worse than the first one. We'll waste no time over that . . . Well here's No. 3 . . . Ah, that's different! As smooth as a broadcast on a starry winter's night . . . Now, No. 4 . . . something wrong with this one. Don't know what. Seems full of static. I'll choose No. 3 . . .

Ladies and Gentlemen of the Radio Audience, I have just learned that my choice [No. 3] is an OLD GOLD."

Graham McNamee

GRAHAM MCNAMEE, America's most popular radio sports reporter, recently reported the Tunney-Heeney fight, to which millions of radio fans all over the world listened.

Where Is the Fat of Yesterday?

Have you noted how fast excess fat, with men and women, has disappeared in late years? Slender figures are the rule. Think what millions have gained in youth and beauty, health and vigor by that change.

A great factor has been a discovery made some 25 years ago. Medical research found a cause of excess fat. It lies in weakness of a gland which largely controls nutrition. Too much of the food goes to fat.

Modern physicians in treating obesity now feed that gland substance. And that is the main factor embodied in Marmola prescription tablets.

Marmola was perfected by a famous medical laboratory. Its chief factor is a gland food. People have used it for over 20 years—millions of boxes of it. Users have told the results to others—the loss in weight, the gain in health and vigor. Thus, year by year, the use has grown to very large proportions. In the past year alone it has doubled.

The results are seen everywhere. Excess fat has been banished to a large degree.

Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the scientific reasons for results. When fat departs and new vigor comes, you know exactly why. No hard work, no starvation. Just take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal.

Try this method which for over 20 years has brought new joys to so many. You owe that to yourself. Watch the gradual loss of fat. Enjoy the new energy that comes. You will be delighted. Don't wait longer. Get Marmola now.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

There's nothing else like it

The remarkable efficiency of Old Dutch Cleanser in producing Healthful Cleanliness and for economical cleaning is due to its unique and distinctive quality and character. There is nothing else like it.

The microscope shows that the particles of Old Dutch are flaky and flat-shaped—made that way by nature, unlike anything else. This drawing of a highly magnified particle illustrates how Old Dutch cleans—a smooth clean sweep without scratching.

Old Dutch particles have a further distinction. They possess a cleaning energy, scientifically described as similar to "adsorption" which takes up and carries away the invisible and often dangerous impurities, assuring Healthful Cleanliness.

Use Old Dutch and you will be assured of a perfectly clean and smooth surface. This is so because Old Dutch contains no hard, scratchy grit.

There is nothing else like it. This drawing of a highly magnified gritty particle shows how grit scratches, mars the surface and provides catch-alls for health-endangering impurities. It is more difficult to keep a scratched surface clean.

Millions of housewives have found Old Dutch perfect for all household cleaning. You will find it so too, and like it because your work is done more quickly and easily.

Old Dutch Cleanser homes are healthful homes

When you look at Old Dutch through the microscope— this is what you m-

Thousands of flaky, flat-shaped particles. This drawing of an enlarged Old Dutch particle shows how they work. A clean sweep without marring the surface. Old Dutch does not contain scratchy grit. This drawing of an enlarged gritty particle shows how it will damage surfaces.

Utensils used in the preparation of food should be perfectly clean to avoid the danger of contamination. When you use Old Dutch you are certain of Healthful Cleanliness and proud of the spick and span ... of your kitchen and cooking utensils.

Old Dutch removes the dirt and not the surface. Try this test. Sprinkle a little Old Dutch on the porcelain drain board of your sink. Take a smooth coin, lay it on top of the cleanser and rub gently. You will see there is no grit and no scratches.

In the bath room use Old Dutch Cleanser for your family's protection. It removes all visible dirt and the invisible impurities that endanger health; makes everything spick and span, sanitary and wholesome. Old Dutch is safest for porcelain and enamel.

CAREFUL in her habits...but

Thousands never have clean teeth because their dentifrices try to "cure" and fail to clean

CAREFUL HABITS alone don't insure proper mouth care. The habits may be wrong ones.

Folks who brush teeth with an idea of treating or doctoring them instead of plain, thorough cleansing usually don't succeed in either curing or cleaning.

Eminent dental opinion insists that real cleanliness is the best means for making teeth attractive and protecting against mouth troubles.

Colgate's follows dentists' recommendations

"What kind of dentifrice would you like your patients to use?" we asked leading dentists. They answered, "Give us a simple, non-medicated dentifrice that really cleans. Give us as much cleansing power as possible without harm to the teeth—nothing protects and beautifies teeth like cleaning." So we made Colgate's a cleanser. Constant touch with the latest ideas of the dental profession and continuous research only emphasize the importance of a clean mouth. And on the advice of men who know most about mouth care, we continue to make Colgate's the finest dental cleanser advancing experience and science can perfect.

This searching foam cleans and protects

When you brush with Colgate's you are really cleaning your teeth. Rapidly-acting Colgate foam sweeps through your mouth—goes rushing, searching in and out and around teeth and gums—carrying away mucin deposits . . . polishing enamel glistening smooth . . . destroying acids that destroy teeth . . . sweetening all mouth surfaces.

Colgate's quickly convinces that cleansing is the one important function of a dentifrice. The trial tube is a ten-day supply. It is free. Just return the coupon.

The Miracle of a Cream that is

Cleanser . . Astringent . . Base . . in One

NOW the busy modern woman can save precious minutes every day—in one swift operation she can cleanse her skin, tone it, make it ready for powder—with this amazing New Cream that washes away!

IN thirty swift seconds—a complete scientific facial!

Miraculous? Yes—but only as all the triumphs of modern science seem incredible at first.

The very second it touches your face Pinaud's Cream begins to gather up from the pores all the day's accumulation of dirt, powder, rouge and natural secretions of the skin itself. "Floats" them to the surface like a magic magnet.

Then at the touch of clear, cool water Pinaud's Cream liquefies and melts away!

For it is actually soluble in water. Instead of trying to remove it by the usual sticky, incomplete wiping process—you just wash this cream away!

Indeed you must wash it away—if it is to work for you the miracle it can. For as it goes, it sweeps with it all the dirt collected from the pores. And never deposits a single trace of fatty, waxy sediment in the skin (as dermatologists point out creams usually do) to coarsen the pores and foster blackheads.

First smooth Pinaud's Cream on lightly, quickly. You need not rub it in with the strenuous, stretching motion used with other creams. Swiftly it gathers up the day's dirt from your pores. Next soak a pad of cotton or a washcloth in cool water and wash both cream and dirt away—quickly, delightfully.

Now a whisk of powder—a touch of rouge! You need no astringent. Perfectly, scientifically cleansed, your pores close naturally. No "base" either. Powder clings marvelously to the new silken softness Pinaud's Cream brings to your cheek. Now see how fresh, how young, how petal-smooth, how radiant your skin looks!

Now you need no astringent! All the fretwork of tiny nerves and muscles just under the surface skin is refreshed and invigorated.

Now you need no powder base! The delicate oils of Pinaud's Cream supple your skin delightfully, naturally. For they reproduce almost exactly the fine natural oils of the skin itself. There is no greasiness, yet powder clings to your cheek as smoothly as the peach-bloom to the peach.

And now this swift but comprehensive scientific facial is complete—your skin cleansed, toned, suppled in one easy half-a-minute!

But still more important than the time it saves you is the fact that each day you use Pinaud's Cream you can see new beauty unfolding, like the velvet petals of an opening flower!

No wonder the famous French House of Pinaud spent fifteen years of research perfecting this extraordinary New Cream! . . . At leading drug and department stores. Pinaud, Paris and New York.
